To

THE RIGHT HONOURABLE VISCOUNT CROSS, G.C.B.,

Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India.Simla, the 19th July, 1892.

MY LORD,

With reference to paragraph 2 of our Despatch No. 32 (Financial dated the 17th February 1892, we have the honour to address Your Lordship on the subject of the pay and status of Cantonment Magistrates in India.

2. Prior to the year 1887, Cantonment Magistracies were divided into two grades, on a consolidated pay of ₹1,000 and ₹700 a month respectively the tenure of the appointments was not limited to any term of years, the holders being required to vacate them only when they became entitled to Colonel's allowances or reached the age of 55 years. In 1886 His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief expressed his opinion that those regulations were not adapted to prevent the retention of the appointments by inefficient officers, and that the public service had suffered seriously thereby. His Excellency therefore recommended that the tenure of the appointments should be limited to a term of five years capable of extension, under special circumstances, up to seven years.

3. Local Governments having been consulted, the proposal of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief was sanctioned as a provisional arrangement in the Resolution quoted in the margin. Officers desirous of becoming Cantonment Magistrates were required to pass a preliminary examination in law; and the pay of the appointments was fixed at ₹600 a month for a subaltern and ₹700 for an officer of higher rank, with an increase of ₹100 in each case after passing the Departmental Examination by the higher standard. It was ruled that all officers who had been appointed Cantonment Magistrates on and after the 1st January 1887 should be brought under the new rules. The latter decision was subsequently modified by permitting Cantonment Magistrates appointed between the 1st January and the 11th August 1887, to elect under which system of pay they would serve.

4. In the early part of the year 1890, it was represented to us by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief that the new rules did not work altogether satisfactorily, and required reconsideration. Objection was taken from a military point of view to the system on the grounds that, owing to the advance of military education, officers necessarily become more or less inefficient during a long period of absence from regimental duty; that officers seeking employment as Cantonment Magistrates are generally those who desire to leave regimental and even military life, and that it was unlikely that they would be inclined to do military duty again after having been placed in an independent civil position for a dated 11th August 1892.

(See pages 88-82 of Home Department Judicial Proceedings for May 1888.)

lengthened period. It was added that from a civil point of view also the system appeared to be objectionable, as an officer would hardly become a really efficient Cantonment Magistrate much before the expiration of his tenure of office, when he would have to make way for another inexperienced officer.

5. Before coming to a decision we consulted Local Governments and Administrations on the subject. The replies are briefly to the following effect. The Government of Madras are in favour of the removal of the limitation imposed by the orders of 1887, and consider that in the matter of reversion to military duty, Cantonment Magistrates should be placed on exactly the same footing as other military officers in civil employ. The Governments of Bengal and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh propose a ten years' limit, the former suggesting that an officer who does not revert after ten years should be treated as permanently in civil employ. The Chief Commissioner of Burma suggests that the Local Government should have the option at the end of five years of sending a Cantonment Magistrate back to military duty or of retaining him permanently in civil employ. The Bombay Government recommend that the continuance of the appointment should be considered at the end of every five years. The Chief Commissioner of the Central Province suggests the formation of an "Army Judicial Department," from which both the Cantonment Magistracies and the Judge Advocate General's Department could be recruited. The Punjab Government propose that all Cantonment Magistrates should be placed on one graded list for the whole of the Bengal Presidency, the pay of the grades ranging from Rs 400 to 1,300, and officers being eligible for promotion from grade to grade and liable to transfer from one province to another.

Although the remedies proposed are various, there is a consensus of opinion against the present system, which involves the appointment of inexperienced Cantonment Magistrates who, even if they prove successful in their appointments, have to revert to military duty just at the time when they become most useful.

6. We are accordingly of opinion that the system provisionally introduced in 1887 should be abandoned, and that it is advisable to revert to the system which was in force before 1887, but with this essential difference, that whereas the highest pay of a Cantonment Magistrate under that system (Rs 1,000) was hardly sufficient to induce competent officers to adopt this line of employment permanently, the pay of the higher grades should now be so regulated as to make the appointments sufficiently attractive as a career. This result will, in our opinion, be further aided by giving preference for appointment to the Judge Advocate General's Department to Cantonment Magistrates who qualify themselves for it. We propose that appointments in that Department should be reserved preferentially (though not exclusively) for qualified Cantonment Magistrates, the candidates being required to pass the prescribed examinations for the Department and to be attached to the Judge Advocate General's Office for a period of three months' probation so as to secure some knowledge of English Law and Procedure.

7. As regards the rates of pay, we propose that allowances on the scale given below in addition to Staff Corps pay of rank be sanctioned for Cantonment Magistrates —

	R
On first appointment . . . . .	200
On passing the departmental lower standard examination . . . . .	250
Ditto ditto higher ditto . . . . .	300
After five years' substantive service as Cantonment Magistrate . . . . .	400
After ten years' ditto ditto . . . . .	500

Under these proposals the salary of Cantonment Magistrates will range from Rs 425-12 to Rs 1,327-14 a month: a subaltern will receive something more than his regimental emoluments, the superior rates of allowances are sufficiently high to induce an officer who finds the work of Cantonment Magistrate suitable to him to adopt that line as a career; and the officers concerned will enjoy the prospect of a continuous increase of salary.

We recommend that the whole emoluments of an officer holding a Cantonment Magistracy under the new system be treated as salary.

8. To guard against the retention of unsuitable officers in civil employ we propose that an officer holding a Cantonment Magistracy should be able to exercise the option of reverting to military duty, on giving reasonable notice, at any time up to five years from the date of his first appointment and thereafter up to ten years with the approval of the Local Government and of the Commander-in-Chief. After ten years he will no longer be eligible for return to military duty, unless selected for an appointment in the Judge Advocate General's Department. The Government of India will, however, as in the case of military members of Commissions in non-regulation provinces and commissioned medical officers in civil employ, retain the power of directing an inefficient officer's reversion to military duty at any time.

9. In recommending this scheme for Your Lordship's sanction we may observe that it is not possible at present to estimate the financial effect of our proposals. The Cantonment Magistracies which will be affected by the measure are about 36 in number. In the event of the scheme being sanctioned by Your Lordship, it is our intention to consider separately the question of grouping the Cantonments in order that the higher grade officers may, as far as possible, be placed in charge of the more important stations, and of arranging a system of transfer from one Cantonment to another, irrespective of provinces, when this is found desirable in the interests of the public service. We also propose on receipt of your sanction to give each existing Cantonment Magistrate, whether serving under the rules of 1887 or those previously in force, an option once for all of electing the new scale or continuing to serve under his present terms.

We have the honour to be,

MY LORD,

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble Servants,

LANSDOWNE.

Military,
No. 133.

To His Excellency the Most Honourable the Governor General of India in Council.

MY LORD MARQUIS,—In Your Excellency's Finance and Commerce Despatch of 19th July 1892, No. 185, on the subject of the pay and status of Cantonment Magistrates in India, you show that the opinions of the Local Governments and Administrations are against the present system, as failing to attract competent officers, and you accordingly propose that appointments in the Judge Advocate General's Department should be reserved preferentially (though not exclusively) for qualified Cantonment Magistrates, that allowances ranging from ₹200 to ₹500 a month should be given in addition to Staff Corps pay of rank, and that the whole emoluments of an officer holding a Cantonment Magistracy under the new system be treated as salary.

2. These proposals have my approval, and also your additional proposals in connexion with reversion to military duty, transfer of officers, and option of election by existing Magistrates.

3 I request that as soon as the financial effect of the new scheme has been ascertained, a report may be furnished to this Office.

I have the honour to be,

My Lord Marquis,

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble Servant,

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is Rs 45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs 6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 550 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year, but an eighth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

PETIT BARONETCY BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER moved that the Bill for settling the Endowment of the Baronetcy conferred upon Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, of "Petit Hall", in the Island of Bombay, be taken into consideration.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble DR. RASH BEHARY GHOSE moved that section 12 of the Bill be omitted. He said :—

"I confess that it is not without a certain degree of reluctance that I move the amendment which stands in my name. One of the foremost captains of industrial enterprise in India, Sir Dinshaw Manockjee, has by his princely charities so endeared himself to all his countrymen that it is by no means an agreeable duty to have to oppose any of the provisions of a Bill which has been settled in concert with his legal advisers and which may therefore be presumed to embody his own wishes. Among a people who have always been distinguished for their munificence there is probably no name more illustrious than that of the recently created Baronet; and the provisions of the Bill now before us may not altogether unreasonably be regarded as a fitting recognition of the eminent services rendered by Sir Dinshaw Manockjee to the country. But, although I trust I yield to no one in my appreciation of the many claims to distinction possessed by the Parsi Baronet, I cannot forget that the proposed legislation is of a very exceptional character. It is an encroachment on the rule against perpetuities as known among lawyers—a rule based not on any artificial reasoning but on the most obvious principles of public policy, and which lays down that except within certain well-defined limits you cannot fetter the free transfer of property unless for purposes useful and beneficial to the public, or, as they are technically called, charitable uses. Among Hindus, as the law now stands, the right to prevent the unrestricted transfer of property exists, if it can be said to exist at all, in a most attenuated form. Greater latitude, and perhaps with more reason, is allowed in the English law, but even in England the limits within which alienation may be restrained are rigidly defined; and the well-known process of settling and resettling estates among the great English landowners does not, I may add, constitute any real exception, as it does not in any way trench upon the rule against perpetuities, but the mode in which this is accomplished is of too artificial a character to be readily intelligible to any one who is not a lawyer. The inviolable character of the rule under discussion and the jealousy with which it is guarded may be very well inferred from the fact that in the course of nearly two hundred years we come across only two instances in which the Legislature in England has interfered with it. Blenheim was settled inalienably on the family of the Duke of Marlborough by 3 & 4 Anne, c. 6, 5 Anne, c. 3, and 5 Anne, c. 4, and more than a hundred years later Strathfieldsaye was in the like manner settled on the family of the Duke of Wellington by 54 Geo. III, c. 161; but no provision is to be found in any of these Statutes at all similar to the provisions of section 12 of the proposed Act. The law, if I might say so without impropriety, has wisely set limits to the right of fettering inheritances, and I do not think that any subject of the Queen-Empress can fairly complain if we deny him a privilege which a great nation, not perhaps effusively demonstrative but full of the most generous impulses, refused to a Marlborough and a Wellington. It is said that this Bill has been drawn on the model of Act XX of 1860. Now, I have looked into that Act, and I do not find anything in it at all analogous to section 12 of the present Bill. The section under notice is altogether a new departure for which I confess I have not been able to find any sufficient justification. It would also seem to be wholly unnecessary. The income of the property comprised in the proposed trust is evidently deemed sufficient, at any rate for the present, to support the dignity of a Baronet conferred upon Sir Dinshaw Manockjee. If, however, at any time in the future, that income should happen to be inadequate for the purpose, the funds might be easily augmented by the less objectionable process of adding to them such securities as are mentioned in section 11 of the Bill. I would also beg to point out that, even as regards any contemplated addition of immoveable property in the future, the acceptance of my amendment would only make this difference, that, instead of applying to the Governor of Bombay in Council, Sir Dinshaw Manockjee, or his successors, as the case may be, would have to move the Legislature; and I am sure any application bearing the honoured name of Sir Dinshaw Manockjee would always secure the respectful attention of Hon'ble Members. Moreover, there is no reason why the Legislature should delegate its functions in such matters to the Local Government, a course which, in my humble judgment, should be adopted only in cases of imperative necessity. I have only to add that in setting aside the ordinary law of the land in favour of a subject, however distinguished, we cannot proceed too cautiously, that such measures do not always fulfil the expectations entertained by their promoters, and that, in this country specially, exceptional legislation of the present order might create a precedent of a very inconvenient and embarrassing character."

The Hon'ble SIR GRIFFITH EVANS said that he was not aware until he was informed by his hon'ble friend the mover of the amendment that this Bill differed in its lines from the Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy Act. He had originally only read the Statement of Objects and Reasons.

"The Statement of Objects and Reasons was as follows:—

'The object of this Bill is to settle the endowment of the Baronetcy conferred on Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit.

'It has been framed on the lines of Act XX of 1860 and has been settled in concert with Sir Dinshaw's advisers and the Government of Bombay.'

This satisfied him, and he had not looked at the Bill itself and did not suppose it was at all different from the Act of 1860. He found, however, that, as had been pointed out by his hon'ble friend Dr. Rash Behari Ghose, there were two clauses of it entirely different from, and not to be found in any form in, the Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy Act. The Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy Act provided, roughly speaking, for an endowment for making inalienable a sum of money calculated to produce a lakh of rupees in order to support the title and dignity of the Baronetcy. The present Bill made an endowment of securities yielding an income of Rs. 1,25,000, which securities were bonds of the Municipal Corporation of Bombay and which were not likely to alter in value. That was amply sufficient. But section 11 of the Bill, which was not to be found in any other Act, and which he would be inclined to omit altogether, provided that a Baronet for the time being or any one on his behalf might, with the sanction of the Bombay Government, augment the funds and securities, and that the trustees might accept those securities, which would be added to the endowment and which would be for all time withdrawn for purposes of commerce; for the notification by which this would be done would be irrevocable, and it was a matter which could not be undone.

The next section (12), that against which the amendment was directed, provided in a similar manner with regard to immoveable property. It provided that, upon application to the Government of Bombay, the baronet for the time being might ask to be allowed to add any immoveable property in the Presidency to the endowment, and that upon a resolution of the Governor of Bombay in Council the property in question should be so added and the Act should take effect with respect to it. It did not seem to him that those provisions were in any way necessary. He should perhaps not have troubled about them, seeing that the Bill was only a personal one, if it were not that those personal Acts were likely to be more or less numerous unless power was taken by Government to deal generally with this matter; and the reason why he desired to trouble the Council in this particular instance was that a precedent would be created, and if the Council had anything to do of this kind in Bengal there would be considerable dissatisfaction if the same powers were not given as those which were proposed in this Bill; and, therefore, if the clauses in question were allowed, an exceedingly embarrassing precedent would be created for the future. He should also remark that in this particular case those Parsi Baronets belonged to a trading class—a class illustrious for their wonderful power of making money and managing business. One must remember that the case was not the same as it would be in England, where a man who belonged to a great trading house had some high honour conferred upon him and thereupon generally became a member of the landed aristocracy and left trade. There was no reason to suppose that those Parsi traders would ever be anything else but great and wealthy traders or that they would depart from the line followed by their forefathers. There was a great objection to those clauses being made use of to tie up large funds and obliterate them for the general use forever, and there was still greater objection to tying up land, specially in the Island of Bombay, a great trading centre, where land was limited, and to making such land inalienable for ever, unless there was some necessity for such a step. There was only one precedent, so far as he knew, for the course proposed, and that was to be found in the Murshidabad Act. In that Act the Council would find a clause which provided for the addition of further immoveable property to the Murshidabad endowment with the sanction of the Governor General in Council. That had been done under special circumstances. It was felt generally that the existing endowment was not as large as one would like it to be considering the position of premier noble of Bengal which had been given to the Nawab. It was also felt that our connection with the Nawab's family, the former Rulers of Bengal, whose estate had gradually shrunk to its present dimensions, made it desirable that his case should receive exceptional consideration; and it was believed that any addition that could be made without expense to the State to the Murshidabad endowment would be gratifying to everybody in view of the fate which had befallen the House. That was partly a political matter, and it was felt that there would be no danger of any excessive endowment being made: it was also thought that the Murshidabad Nawabs might inherit certain lands in the hands of other members of the family and desire to add them to the endowment.

The only object in this case was to provide such an endowment as would prevent the hereditary honour conferred by Her Majesty being brought into contempt by the poverty of the holder. This seemed amply provided for without these sections. He was aware that the power was safeguarded in the present Bill by requiring the sanction of the Governor of Bombay in Council; still he feared that, if in future the Government were to be approached for leave to add to the endowment by a wealthy holder of the title who had earned gratitude by fresh benefactions, such leave might be granted without much consideration as to the evil effects of rendering a trader's assets inalienable and tying up land in Bombay for ever. But it was mainly on the ground of its being a bad precedent and one that might embarrass the Government here in dealing with this subject that he objected to the clauses in question. He would suggest whether it might not be well under those circumstances to adjourn the consideration of the Bill and refer the matter to Bombay. He should not like the Council to do anything so ungracious as to cut out anything from a Bill of this kind without further consultation with the Bombay Government and Sir Dinshaw Petit. But he thought it must be evident to the Council that it would be inadvisable to allow any power in the Bill such as the clauses in question provided for, and it was very possible that if a further reference was made to the Bombay Government the matter would be satisfactorily arranged.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER said:—

"With regard to the last point which the hon'ble member has mentioned, I may explain that this question was deliberately raised by the Government of Bombay, and I should like to read to the Council the correspondence which passed rather more than a year ago. If, however, the Council should be of opinion that any object would be gained by sending this Bill back to the Bombay Government, I should have no objection.

"On the 18th November, 1891, the Advocate General wrote the following opinion. I do not propose to read it all and will leave out the immaterial portions of it:—

"I see no reason on behalf of the Government of Bombay to object to any of the provisions of the Bill as now settled by the Legal Remembrancer, except those contained in sections 11 and 12 thereof, which seem to me to require the serious consideration of Government before they should be allowed to form part of the Bill. Section 11 enables any person or persons at any time or times hereafter to increase the stocks and moveable securities subject to the trusts of the Act, and no limit is placed on the amount of increase. It is possible, but by no means certain, that the assent of the Corporation would be required.

Section 12 gives the same power with regard to immoveable property in the Presidency of Bombay, subject, however, in the case of persons other than the Baronet for the time being to the consent of the Governor of Bombay in Council. I give what seems to be the effect of the clauses without following their wording.

'Now the Bill is in itself an exception to the ordinary law forbidding the creation of perpetuities, and like Act XX of 1860 creates such a perpetuity for the purpose of adequately supporting a hereditary dignity conferred by Her Majesty. For that purpose Act XX of 1860 settled funds producing an annual income of Rs. 1,00,000, and the present Bill settles funds producing an annual income of Rs. 1,25,000; in each case a mansion house being also settled. Presumably the amount settled is in each case sufficient, in the opinion of Government, adequately to support the dignity conferred. It seems to me a matter open to grave objection that it should be hereafter possible to place a larger amount of property than the Legislature has allowed beyond the reach of the ordinary law against alienation and perpetuity. I am disposed to think that the Legislature ought again to be consulted before this is done; and I am decidedly of opinion that at least the consent of this Government or of the Government of India should be in every case a condition precedent. I do not think that the risk of excessive endowment is an imaginary one, for in my experience as counsel I have constantly found it to be the desire of wealthy natives to tie up their property to the utmost extent practicable, even at the risk of litigation; and I think that this tendency would be encouraged if the settler could subject his property to a perpetual statutory settlement, as would be the case under these clauses of the Bill as they at present stand. I should add that no similar clauses are to be found in Act XX of 1860.'

"So that my hon'ble friend will see that this very point has been raised by the Advocate General in the most explicit form possible. Upon that the Under-Secretary to Government wrote to Sir Dinshaw Petit on the 3rd December, 1891, as follows:—

'I am directed to enclose copy of an opinion stated by the Hon'ble the Advocate General on sections 11 and 12 of the draft Baronetcy Endowment Bill. I am to inform you that Government concur in the Advocate General's view of the impolicy of those sections even if the consent of Government is made a condition precedent, and am to request that you will state whether you have any objection to make to the omission of the sections from the Bill.'

"So that the Council again will see that the Government of Bombay thought that the prima facie case was exactly the same as the Advocate General had described it.

"On the 17th December, 1891, Sir Dinshaw Petit replied acknowledging the receipt of that letter and saying:—

'In submitting the clauses in question for the consideration and approval of His Excellency the Governor in Council, I can assure His Excellency that I had no intention that the Act should be availed of for the purpose of tying up property which was not required for the support of the title. My object in inserting the clauses in question was to provide to some extent against the contingency of the income afforded by the present endowment at some future date proving inadequate for the due support of the title.

'An income which comparatively few years ago was sufficient to cause the possessor of it to be regarded in Bombay as an exceptionally wealthy man is now possessed by hundreds of natives in Bombay, and it therefore occurred to me that what is to-day considered an exceptionally large income may at no great distance of time come to be regarded as quite the reverse. I had also in mind the possibility of the holder of the title being possessed of no means other than the property subject to the trusts of the Act, and being the father of a large family or having large calls upon his income.

'As I myself am concerned to see that all future holders of the title are in a position to support the title with due dignity and also to command the influence and respect which, in this country more particularly, are largely attributed to wealth, and wealth alone, I should be glad if Government would reconsider the matter with a view to some such provisions as those referred to being inserted in the Act.

'I submit that the previous sanction of His Excellency the Governor in Council to any addition to the property subject to the trusts of the Act is a sufficient safeguard against the abuse of the powers intended to be conferred by sections 11 and 12 of the Act, and I should have no objection whatever to that consent being made a condition precedent to the exercise of the powers proposed to be conferred by section 11, as it already is to the exercise of the powers proposed to be conferred by section 12 of the Act.'

"Now that letter was written on the 17th December, 1891, and it is obvious that the Government took it into very serious consideration, for they did not answer it till the 19th January, 1892, and their answer was practically contained in a letter to the Acting Solicitor to the Government of Bombay to the following effect:—

'I am to intimate that Government approve of sections 11 and 12 as modified by the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, and to request, if the Hon'ble the Advocate General has no further corrections to suggest, that the Bill may be forwarded to the legal advisers of Sir Dinshaw for any remarks they may have to record before it is finally submitted to the Government of India.

"So that the Council will see that the question has been before the Government of Bombay, that the point has been stated in the most explicit form, has been considered after hearing what Sir Dinshaw Petit had to say upon the subject, and that the Government of Bombay have deliberately come to the conclusion that these clauses should be inserted. Personally I have myself rather a strong objection to the tying up of land in perpetuity, and I think it very likely that if, in the first instance, the case had come before me, I should have taken the objection, at any rate to section 12—I have no very strong objection to section 11—that was taken by the Hon'ble Dr. Rash Behari Ghose; but, although I have no particular interest in the question personally, I should hesitate very much to interfere with the deliberate conclusion which has been come to—I may almost say as a matter of agreement—between Sir Dinshaw Petit and the Government of Bombay; though of course I do not dispute the right of this Council to alter the Bill in any way it pleases."

The Hon'ble SIR GRIFFITH EVANS asked permission to make a remark on the letters which his hon'ble friend had just read. He had heard those letters now for the first time, and there was no indication of anything of the kind in the Statement of Objects and Reasons. Now, having heard them, he was wholly dissatisfied with the reasons given in the letter of Sir Dinshaw's advisers. The same considerations would apply to every person who had wealth and on whom an honour of this kind had been conferred. All that the Legislature was concerned with was upholding sufficiently the dignity of the title which Her Majesty had given. The Council would, no doubt, take into serious consideration anything that Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit had said; but the Government of Bombay had given no reason for abandoning the objection taken by itself and its Law Adviser, and this was a matter which might embarrass the Legislature in other directions; and therefore he would still ask the Council to adjourn the discussion in order that the question might be referred for the further consideration of the Bombay Government.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said:—

"I think it is quite clear that the suggestion made by the Hon'ble Sir Griffith Evans for an adjournment is a perfectly reasonable one. The point which has been discussed is probably presented for the first time to several Members of Council, and it certainly is by no means an unimportant one. The Bill, as has been observed, is a personal Bill, but there is no doubt that it affects very important questions of principle. It is a matter of notoriety that the Government of India has been approached with suggestions for similar legislation of a personal character, and I believe it is no secret that the larger question, whether it may not be desirable to provide by legislation of general application for the settlement of different forms of property, has also been urged upon us.

"Under these circumstances I think it would be very regrettable that, in a Bill of this kind, we should take any steps which might hereafter commit us upon so important a matter.

"I should myself be inclined to say that, of the two clauses—clauses 11 and 12—to which special attention has been drawn, clause 12 is open to much more serious objection than clause 11. The power to settle land has always been regarded with much greater jealousy than the power to settle securities, and my first impression is that the power to settle securities, subject to the consent of the Local Government, is not, on the face of it, an unreasonable power to ask for. The power, however, to settle land has always been regarded, and rightly regarded, with much greater jealousy, and the proposal to confer it in the present case raises much more serious difficulties.

"Under these circumstances, I think the discussion had better stand over for the present, and we shall consider whether it will be necessary or desirable to approach the Government of Bombay again, before proceeding further."

The further consideration of the amendment was postponed.

BANKERS' BOOKS EVIDENCE BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER moved that the Bill to extend the provisions of the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1891, to the Books of Post Offices carrying on Savings Bank or Money Order business be taken into consideration. He said:—

"I have been asked in making this Motion to explain that I was under a misapprehension last week when I said that the Director General of the Post Office had taken exception to the view of the Select Committee that these books were public documents. Mr. Fanshawe writes to me to say that he never in any way questioned the view of the Select Committee that the books were public documents. What he did was to consult the Government Solicitor as to the procedure to be followed when postmasters were called upon to produce their books, and thereupon the Advocate General volunteered the opinion that the books were not protected by the Act. I beg leave, therefore, to withdraw Mr. Fanshawe's name from what I said in the matter last week. Under any circumstances, however, it is more desirable to settle a question of that kind by legislation than by litigation, and therefore I still propose to ask the Council to pass this Bill. But, before moving that it should be passed, I must ask permission to propose a verbal amendment. The fact is I was not able to give notice of this amendment because I did not know until late last night the particular form in which Mr. Fanshawe would like the Bill to be passed, and I could not give notice of the amendment until I had heard from him on the subject. He prefers, instead of the words 'any post office carrying on savings bank or money order business in respect of such business,'—the only really enacting clause in the Bill,—the words 'any post office savings bank or money order office.' That will involve an alteration in the title and an alteration in the preamble, and, with the permission of the Council, I propose to alter the whole thing, so that it shall run in the way in which I am going to read it. It will be—

'A Bill to extend the provisions of the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1891, to the Books of Post Office Savings Banks and Money Order Offices.'

Whereas it is expedient to extend the provisions of the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1891, to the books of the savings banks and money order offices of the Post Office, It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and commencement

1. (1) This Act may be called the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1893, and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

2. After clause (b) of sub-section (2) of section 2 of the said Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1891, the following clause shall be added, Addition to definition of "bank" and "banker" in section 2, sub-section (2), of Act XVIII of 1891.

namely:—

"(c) any post office savings bank or money order office."

"That re-arrangement will put it into the shape in which the Post Office desire it to be, and it is made entirely for the satisfaction of the Post Office."

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS remarked that he understood the substance of the Bill would not be altered by these verbal amendments.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER replied that it would be precisely the same.

The amendment was put and agreed to.

The Motion was then put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also moved that the Bill, as amended, be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Thursday, the 2nd February, 1893.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, January 14th, 1893.

Ordinary cold weather conditions have prevailed over India during almost the whole of the week under review. From the 8th to the 11th pressure was highest over North-Western India and lowest over the south of the Bay and off the west coast of the Peninsula, the wind circulating cyclonically around the high pressure area. After the 11th the barometer began to fall over North-West India and the high pressure area advanced eastward to the central parts of the country, and the winds, though still preserving their anti-cyclonic directions, generally shifted to south-east and east in North-West India. On the 13th a slight depression appeared in the north-west and rain fell in Baluchistan, and showers subsequently extended to the north-west of the Punjab on the 14th. The mean temperature was low, more particularly at the commencement and middle of the week.

On the 8th pressure was increasing except in parts of North-East India. A large high pressure area overlay North-West India, while readings were low over the south of the Bay and off the west coast. Pressure exceeded the normal average over North-Western India, but was below in the south, hence the pressure difference was greater than usual. The winds were anti-cyclonic and blew freshly in several places. The unsettled weather which was crossing Northern India during the previous week had reached North-Eastern India, and showers were reported from Northern Bengal and from Sibsagar, as well as from a few places in the Central Provinces and from Madras and Cuddalore. Elsewhere the weather was fine. On the following day, though the barometer was falling in the north-west and rising elsewhere, the general distribution was unchanged, though the pressure difference had decreased. The winds were also practically unchanged and the weather was fine. Light showers were reported from Sibsagar and Madras. On the 10th pressure was falling briskly in North-West India and slowly over the Peninsula, but was rising elsewhere. Readings were high over the central parts of the country, over the north-west of the Punjab, and over the Upper Assam Valley, and low over the south of the Bay. Gradients were moderate. The anti-cyclonic circulation of the winds was again practically unchanged. The force was fresh at several stations and was strong over the south-west of the Bay. There was no rain at any station. The chart of the 11th showed that pressure was falling almost everywhere, but the change was fairly uniform, and there was again very little alteration to record in the general distribution. Readings were highest over Rajputana and Central India and the north of the Punjab, and lowest in the south of the Bay. Calms had appeared over a large part of the Punjab, but otherwise the circulation of the winds was little altered. The strong winds noticed over the south-west of the Bay had spread to the south of the Peninsula, where the force was strong to a gale. There was again no rain anywhere. On the 12th pressure was still falling everywhere, but, except in the North-West, where the decrease was rapid, the changes were unimportant. Pressure was highest over the Assam Valley, but a high pressure area was also shown over the central parts of the country. Calms prevailed over a large part of Northern and Central India, and the only important change in the wind directions was the shift to south and south-south-east at Peshawar, Cherat, and Chaman. In the south of the Peninsula strong winds continued. There was no rain anywhere. The chart of the 13th showed that pressure was increasing slowly over the north of the Punjab and the south of the Peninsula, but was still decreasing elsewhere. The fall had been brisk in Baluchistan and Sind, and a shallow diffused depression was crossing the Indus. Elsewhere there was little change in the general distribution. The winds had shifted to east at Chaman and Jacobabad, and rain was reported from those two stations, and snow from Srinagar. Elsewhere the winds were very little changed and the weather remained fine. On the 14th pressure was decreasing over North-East India and recovering elsewhere. Readings were uniform and the winds varied considerably. Rain had fallen over the north-west of the Punjab and in Baluchistan, but the amounts were small.

Temperature—Has been generally low throughout India. The following table shows the variations of the mean temperature from the normal on each day of the week for the principal provinces of India :—

In all the provinces, except Madras, there has been more or less deficiency. The greatest deficiency was 5°5 in the Central Provinces followed by 3°5 in Guzerat and Central India, and by 2°6 in Bengal, Assam, and the North-Western Provinces. In the remaining provinces the variations from the normal were small. The mean temperature of the whole of India was below the normal average on each day of the week.

Rain.—The rainfall of the week was very light and very scattered. Fifteen of the fifty-one rainfall divisions received some rain, but of these fifteen divisions, in no less than twelve the average actual rainfall of the division was less than one-tenth of an inch for the week. Assam (Brahmaputra) received an average actual fall of 0'30 inch for the week, North Bengal received 0'24 inch, and the Central Provinces (Central) 0'12 inch, and these were the largest amounts. The divisions which received rain were mainly those lying along the line of the Himalayas, but Sind, the divisions in the Central Provinces, the East Coast (north and south), and Madras (south-central) also had light showers. Assam (Brahmaputra), North Bengal, and the Central Provinces (central) received a trifling excess of rain as compared with the normal average, but elsewhere, even where rain was received, there was a deficiency.

The three concluding columns of the table show that since the commencement of the year the rainfall has been heavy in North Bengal, North Bihar, in nearly the whole of the North-Western Provinces and of the Punjab, and in the central parts of the country, but has been lighter than usual elsewhere.

There have been no heavy falls.

On 22nd and 23rd very good rain in Ramnad and southern part of Tinnevely, which will be of very great benefit. Harvest in Northern, Deccan and Western districts proceeds favourably; in other districts yields poor outturn. Condition of standing crops unaltered. Water supply in smaller works of Southern districts being exhausted. Pasture and fodder generally sufficient, though scarce in parts of Southern districts. Prices of cheapest grain very slightly easier in Tinnevely and Madura; elsewhere prices almost stationary.

Bombay.—For week ending 25th January.—Slight rain in parts of Sind. Standing crops damaged by blight, rats or cloudy weather in parts of Satara, Bijapur, and Belgaum. Jowari (Sorghum vulgare) diseased in parts of Poona. Crops otherwise good. Harvesting of early crops continues in three, and that of late crops commenced in five districts. Preparations for next season progressing in two districts. Prices generally steady. Agricultural stock good. Fodder sufficient.

Bengal.—For week ending 21st January.—The weather has been cloudy and rain has fallen over a considerable part of the province, but, except in Orissa and East Bengal, the falls have been generally light. The rain where received, has done good to the spring crops, which are doing well. The poppy crop has also been benefited and the tobacco crop continues promising. Spring rice is being sown, and lands are being prepared for autumn rice and jute in the Rajshahi division and for indigo in Behar. The winter rice harvest is not yet concluded in all districts. The harvesting of pulses, mustard, potato, and sugarcane is in progress. Prices of rice continue practically unchanged. Cattle are healthy. The supply of fodder and water is plentiful in all districts.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 25th January.—Weather cloudy and cold with light rain in most districts. Spring crops flourishing and prospects good everywhere. Slight damage by hail reported from Benares. Poppy generally healthy. Pressing of sugarcane in full progress. Supplies and fodder ample. Prices stationary.

Punjab.—For week ending 25th January.—Rain has fallen in nearly all districts. Weeding of spring crops over. Irrigation in progress. Condition of standing crops generally reported good and the recent rains have been very beneficial. Mustard is reported to have been slightly damaged in Hissar by hail and by insects in parts of Lahore. Condition of cattle is generally good. Fodder sufficient in all districts, except in part of Dera Ismail Khan. Poppy crops flourishing. Prices rising in one district, stationary elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 25th January.—Weather cloudy in the Nagpur and Chattisgarh country, with heavy falls of rain in Wardha, Nagpur, Bhandara, and Raipur. Prospects of winter crops are good, save in parts where the crops are reported to have suffered somewhat from cloudy weather, and heavy rain accompanied by hail. Threshing of rice in Bhandara and Bilaspur, and reaping of tur (Cajanus indicus) and til (Sesamum) in Wardha in progress. Land being prepared for autumn sowings in Nimar and Sambalpur.

Burma.—For week ending 21st January.—LOWER BURMA: Reaping nearly completed everywhere and threshing in progress. No change in prospects of crops. UPPER BURMA: Reaping of wet-weather paddy, jowar (Sorghum vulgare) and other millets continues. Ploughing, sowing and transplanting of dry-weather paddy in progress. Island and cold-weather crops progressing. Crop prospects unchanged. The price of paddy has fallen generally; Bhamo is the only district in which there has been a rise of any importance. The price of rice shows a corresponding decline, except at Shwebo, Minbu, and Pyinmana, where it has risen somewhat. Numbers on relief works: Meiktila, 545.

Assam.—For week ending 24th January.—Slight rain. Crop prospects good. Condition of cattle normal. Fodder and water sufficient.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 25th January.—BERAR: Slight rain. Weather cold. Reaping of jowari (Sorghum vulgare) and tur (Cajanus indicus) and picking of cotton continue. Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 25th January.—MYSORE: Crops and prospects good, except in parts of the Chitaldroog district, where water supply is scanty. No material change in prices.

COORG: Reaping of rice and picking and curing of coffee still in progress. Prices stationary. Water and fodder sufficient for cattle.

Central India.—For week ending 25th January.—Slight rain in Bundelkhand and Baghelkhand; more needed in former. Fall sufficient in other parts of Central India. REVIEWING THE ANNUAL REPORT ON THE POST OFFICE OF INDIA FOR 1891-92.

No. 382 S. R., dated Calcutta, the 27th January 1893.

RESOLUTION.—By the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department.

READ—

Report on the Post Office of India for the year 1891-9 .

RESOLUTION.—There were no changes in the working of the Inland Post of sufficient importance to require special mention, but the steady progress which marked every branch of postal business in former years has been uniformly maintained.

2. The following were the principal changes in the working of the Foreign Post :—

- (1) The reduced rate of postage (2½ annas per half-ounce) on letters to the United Kingdom was applied to all British Colonies and Possessions and to all foreign countries and places in the Postal Union with effect from the 1st April 1891.
- (2) The rates of postage on post-cards and all classes of packets from India to the United Kingdom and all other Union countries were reduced with effect from the 1st January 1892.
- (3) An arrangement was concluded for a parcel exchange with Bangkok.
- (4) The value-payable parcel exchange introduced experimentally in January 1891 between India and Ceylon was made permanent, and the weekly steamer service between the two countries was supplemented by an additional bi-weekly service.
- (5) Postal communication was established between Zanzibar and British Central Africa (Nyassaland).
- (6) The Australian Colonies entered the Postal Union on the 1st October 1891.
- (7) A new overland mail route was opened between Burma and Siam, the old route being closed.

3. The transactions of the Imperial Post Office during the year compare as follows with those of the previous year :—

* These are corrected figures and do not agree with the figures in the Report for 1890-91.

4. There was an improvement under each head with the exception of foreign money orders, the decline in these as regards orders issued in India being principally in orders on the United Kingdom and as regards orders payable in India in orders from Egypt. The decline is material and is not explained. The demand for post-cards continues to increase, and the value-payable parcel system is growing in popularity. The number of value-payable parcels rose from 1,108,888 in 1890-91 to 1,251,004, the declared value from 116½ lakhs to 134½ lakhs of rupees, and the commission realised from Rs2,12,200 to Rs2,41,865 in 1891-92. It is satisfactory to observe that, doubtless in consequence of the reduction of postage on letters between India and the United Kingdom, there was an increase during the year of over half a million in the number of letters and post-cards exchanged between the two countries.

5. The postal articles actually delivered were 97.22 per cent. of the whole number sent out for delivery, the proportion in the previous year having been 97.31 per cent. There was an increase of nearly a million in the number of unpaid (including insufficiently paid) letters, the increase being partly accounted for by the greater strictness with which insufficiently paid letters have of late been checked. As the Director General remarks, however, the number of unpaid letters has for the last ten years varied between 26 and 28 millions while the increase in paid letters has been very large.

6. The money-order business makes steady progress. The number of inland money orders issued (excluding transactions with Native States) was 7,783,296 of the aggregate value of Rs16,44,09,526,—an increase in value of 6.02 per cent. over the figures of 1890-91. Of this number, 92 per cent. were for sums not exceeding Rs50, orders not exceeding Rs10 being 60 per cent., and not exceeding Rs5, 82 per cent. of the whole. The average value of an inland money order was Rs21-1-11. Including foreign money orders, both ordinary and telegraphic, the total transactions in this branch of business during the last two years were as follows :—

		1890-91.	1891-92.
Issued	Number of money orders . . .	7,323,146	7,870,788
	Value „ . . .	Rs15,89,13,652	Rs16,80,46,172
	Commission realised on money orders
	Issued . . . . .	Rs19,64,512	Rs20,95,666
Paid	Number of money orders . . .	7,341,950	7,903,145
	Value „ . . . . .	Rs16,06,30,271	Rs16,97,88,145

7. The number of articles insured during the year was 265,610, or more than that in 1890-91 by 2,883, but both the total declared value (Rs7,65,40,274) and the insurance fees (Rs2,02,737) were less by Rs33,75,943 and Rs8,136 respectively. The decrease was probably due to the limitation of value for postal insurance to Rs1,000; but, as remarked in the Report, further experience will be required before the full effect of the limitation can be known.

8. The operations of the Postal Savings Banks shew satisfactory progress. The following is a statement of the transactions during the last five years :—

	No of Banks	No of accounts at the close of the year	Deposits during the year.	Withdrawals	Value of deposits at the close of the year
			Rs	Rs	Rs
1887-88 . . . . .	3,966	261,157	3,76,98,811	2,14,03,335	5,04,88,357
1888-89 . . . . .	6,056	311,001	4,31,51,982	3,69,63,554	5,88,64,681
1889-90 . . . . .	6,350	358,272	3,27,83,155	3,50,51,411	5,86,96,755

1891-92 . . . . .	6,452	463,453	4,03,67,077	3,56,50,232	7,05,93,160

9. The number of complaints made by the public against the Post Office was 8,306, exceeding the number in the previous year by 118. More than two-fifths of the whole proved to be groundless. Considering the magnitude of postal transactions the proportion of complaints is insignificant, but the Government of India is glad to notice that special instructions have lately been issued with the view of dealing with this branch of work effectually and promptly.

10. The following statement shows the revenue and expenditure of the Post Office in the last three years :—

	1889-90.	1890-91.	1891-92.

— Deficit or + Surplus .	—7,52,316	+62,125	—5,04,921

The expenditure in 1891-92 was more than that in 1890-91 by about ten lakhs of rupees. The increase occurred under the following heads:—

11. The thanks of the Governor General in Council are due to Mr. Fanshawe for the continued success of his administration of the Post Office, and to Mr. Kisch for his services at the Vienna Postal Congress. His Excellency has also noticed the names of the officers (mentioned in paragraph 59 of the Report), who have done good work during the year.

ANNUAL REPORT

ON

THE POST OFFICE OF INDIA

FOR THE YEAR

1891-92.

No 11855, dated the 16th December 1892

From—A U FANNHAWK, Esq., Director General of the Post Office of India,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce

I have the honour to submit the Annual Report on the Post Office of India for the official year 1891-92.

2. There was no new departure to chronicle under the head of Inland Post, Principal events Inland Post. nor was there any event of special importance during the year, but it may again be claimed that there was continued progress in every branch of postal business. The employment of pensioned soldiers of the Native Army in the Post Office was made the subject of general instructions at the end of 1890, and the matter was under consideration during the year. Experience so far seems to show that these pensioned soldiers are not suitable for the duties of postmen, but it is hoped that it may still be found possible to provide some field for their employment in the department, and a special scheme for training such of them as may desire service in the Post Office before they take their pensions is now under trial in the Punjab. The payment of military pensioners at post offices was continued during the year in that province, and, so far as the interests of the pensioners are concerned, may be said to be an unqualified success. Salt revenue was also received during the year in the Punjab and the North Western Provinces and Oudh under the same conditions as in the previous year, and the matter is dealt with in the appropriate section of this report. Further scope was given to the rent money order system in the Lower Provinces. This was first introduced in the districts comprised in the Burdwan Commissionership in 1889, and then extended to the Presidency, Dacca, and Rajshahy Divisions, and during the year under report was made applicable to all the other districts in which the Bengal Tenancy Act is in force. This system and the revenue money order system were also introduced experimentally in seven selected districts of the Central Provinces; and as an illustration of the constant adaptation of the Post Office agency to the requirements of other departments it may be mentioned that in the Umballa district a regular scheme for paying patwaris and village school-masters by money orders was introduced, and that in the same district the value payable post was adopted as a means of supplying copies of court documents to suitors and others without necessitating their attendance at the court houses for the purpose of obtaining them. In several parts of the country there were serious interruptions of the mail service during the year, for which special arrangements had to be made. The most important of these occurred in July and August 1891 on the Bombay and Baroda Railway, which was breached by exceptional floods for a distance of nearly 100 miles between Navsari and Baroda, and for several weeks it was a matter of great difficulty to maintain postal communication. The field post offices in connection with the Miranzai and Hazara expeditions returned in June 1891, and the successful work done by them was referred to in last year's report. In April 1891 a field postal service had to be organized for the columns that marched on Manipur; the post office at that place had disappeared, and the establishment of new mail lines from the side of Assam was an arduous task but the special field arrangements were closed as soon as possible, and communication re-established as part of the ordinary postal service of the country on the 9th May 1891. In Burma, also, some special mail arrangements were necessitated in connection with the columns operating on the Bhamo frontier and in the Chin hills.

Principal events,
Foreign Post

3. The following were the principal events of the Foreign Post. The reduced rate of postage on letters to the United Kingdom, viz.,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  annas per  $\frac{1}{2}$  oz., was made applicable with effect from the 1st April 1891, to all British colonies and possessions and all foreign countries and places in the Postal Union, where a higher rate had previously been in force. A number of countries and places were added to the list of parcel and money order exchanges through the United Kingdom; and an arrangement was concluded for the exchange of parcels through the post with Bangkok in Siam. A new overland mail route was opened between Burma and Siam via Myawaddy and Rahong, the old route via Papun and Chiengmai being closed; and postal communication was established between Zanzibar and British Central Africa (Nyassaland). The fourth International Postal Congress was held at Vienna during the year, at which the Indian Post Office was represented by Mr. H. M. Kisch, Postmaster-General, Bengal, but the Acts of this Congress did not come into force until the 1st July 1892. The following British colonies of Australasia, viz., British New Guinea, Fiji, Islands, New South Wales, New Zealand, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, entered the Postal Union on the 1st October 1891, an event which was regarded as one of great importance; and the postage rates on post-cards and all classes of packets from India to the United Kingdom and all other Union countries and places were reduced with effect from the 1st January 1892. The value-payable post between India and Ceylon, which had been introduced experimentally with effect from the 1st January 1891, was established as a permanent exchange; and towards the end of the official year, the weekly steamer service between Tuticorin and Colombo was supplemented by an arrangement made with the British India Steam Navigation Company for an additional bi-weekly service.

Working of the P. & O.
Contract

4. According to the terms of their contract, the P. and O. Company's mail steamers with the European mails are due in Bombay at 8 A.M., on Monday of each week; but during the year under report, the steamers arrived on the preceding Saturday on five occasions, on the preceding Sunday on thirty-one occasions, and on Monday within contract time on sixteen occasions. On seven occasions the steamers failed to reach Bombay within contract time, the delay being in each case less than 9 hours. In two instances, the delay was due to the detention of the mail steamers in the Suez Canal, in three instances to severe weather encountered after leaving Aden, in one instance to detention at Brindisi, owing to the late arrival of the mail train, and in one instance to an accident to the steamer's machinery. The average time occupied by the mails between London and Bombay was 16 days 8 hours and 11 minutes homewards, and 15 days 19 hours and 19 minutes outwards.

Charge of the Post Office.

5. Mr. H. M. Kisch held charge of the Department for seven days from the 1st April 1891, and for the remainder of the year the administration was in my hands.

Section I.—Post Offices, Letter-Boxes and Village Postmen.

6. Appendix I gives the number of post offices, letter-boxes and village postmen of the Imperial Post in each circle on the 31st March 1892 in comparison with the number at the close of the previous year, and in the marginal abstract will be found the figures of the past two years for the whole of India for both the Imperial and District Post separately and together. The number of post offices has increased altogether by 344 during the year, of which 223 were Imperial and 121 were District post offices. In consequence of the abolition of the distinction between Disbursing and Head post offices, rendered desirable for account purposes, a number of Head offices were reduced to the status of Sub-offices, and in furtherance of the policy of substituting a cheap agency for the charge of small offices, some number of the less important Sub-offices were converted into Branch offices and placed in charge of extraneous agents. Of the 223 Imperial post offices opened during the year, nearly all were village offices in charge of school masters or other persons not regular servants of the Post Office. In every circle, except Oudh and Central India, there was an increase in the number of Imperial post offices open at the close of the year, the largest increase being in the Punjab and Madras, where several District post offices, which were self-supporting, were taken over by the Imperial Post. The number of Imperial letter-boxes increased by 887, the largest increase, 332, being in the North-Western Provinces, where the subject of collection of letters in villages continued to receive special attention. Besides the post offices, letter-boxes and village postmen of the Imperial Post shown in Appendix I, there were at the close of the year 1,146 post offices, 2,439 letter-boxes and 2,590 village postmen of the District Post.

Section II—Postal Lines.

7. Appendix II contains statistics according to postal circles regarding the length of lines over which mails are conveyed by the various agencies used by the Post Office for this purpose. There has been an increase under every head as the marginal abstract will show. The length of lines over which mails are conveyed by the various agencies used by the Post Office for this purpose. There has been an increase under every head as the marginal abstract will show. The increase in the railway mileage was due, as in last year, to the opening of new sections of railway in various parts of the country, or to the utilization for the conveyance of mails of sections not previously used for this purpose. The most important of the new sections was the railway from Jodhpur to Bikaner in Rajputana, and the principal extensions of existing lines were on the Mu Valley Railway in Burma, on the South Indian Railway in Madras, on the Gaekwar-Mehsana Railway in Bombay, on the Rohilkand-Kumaon Railway in the North-Western Provinces, on the Bengal-North-Western Railway in Oudh and Bihar, and on the North-Western Railway. Under the head of mail cart lines 691 miles were newly opened during the year, including the Murree and Srinagar line, 105 miles in length, but mail cart services were closed over a mileage of 625 miles, owing to the extension of railways and other causes, so that the net increase, under this head, was 66 miles. The total number of miles of runners' lines opened during the year was 6,016, and the total number closed was 3,122, the net increase being 2,594 miles, of which 1,312 miles were opened in the Punjab circle, and 710 miles in the Madras circle, chiefly owing to the conversion of District Post establishments into Imperial. Under the head of steamer lines, there were 165 miles opened and 121 closed, or a net increase of 44 miles at the close of the year. The chief changes were in the Burma circle.

Section III. - Correspondence and Parcels.

General
results

8. The estimated number of postal articles of all kinds, exclusive of money orders, that were issued for delivery during the year was 389½ millions, or more than 21 millions in excess of the number issued in the preceding year. Statistics showing the different classes of articles delivered in the various postal circles will be found in Appendix III, and a summary of the general results is given in the statement below :—

Year	Post cards	Letters paid.	Letters unpaid	Letters registered	Total of letters and post cards	Newspapers	Parcels	Book and pattern packets.	Grand total (all postal articles except money orders)

Percentage of Increase	11.56	4.50	3.34	9.94	7.08	3.91	10.84	3.23	6.73

In the total number of articles issued for delivery, there was an increase under every head and in every postal circle. The largest proportional increase, 10.27 per cent., was in Rajputana, while in Burma, Oudh and Bombay there was an increase of over 9 per cent., and in eight other circles an increase of above 5 per cent. More than 112 million post cards were issued for delivery during the year, being an increase of 11½ millions, or 11½ per cent., over the figures of the preceding year, and in various parts of the country, specially in Bengal, including Eastern Bengal, the number of post-cards is now as great as the number of paid letters, though the popularity of this form of communication has not yet been established in Burma and Sind. There was an increase of nearly a million in the number of unpaid, including insufficiently paid, letters as compared with an actual decrease last year, but there is no reason for thinking that this is due to any material change, though some part of the increase may be attributed to the greater strictness that has been insisted on of late in checking cases of insufficient postage. During the last ten years the number of unpaid letters has varied between 28 millions and 26 millions, while the number of paid letters has steadily increased from 96 millions in 1882-83, to 154 millions during the present year. The proportion of unpaid letters to paid letters is still remarkably high in Burma, Assam and Oudh. There was an increase of half a million in the number of letters registered during the year as compared with the figures of last year, and the total number of registered letters has now reached six millions. The chief increase was in the Madras Presidency where registration has for some years past been more popular than in any other part of India, and where a million and a half articles out of the total six millions were registered. The Postmaster-General, Madras, believes that this is largely due to the fact that in Southern India, remittances are made more frequently by currency notes than in other provinces owing to the fact that the hundi system is not much used. There was also a marked increase, of nearly 11 per cent., in the number of parcels, and separate evidence has shown that the great bulk of these are small parcels, the traffic which the Post Office rightly wishes to foster. In connection with the parcel business of the Department, it may be mentioned that a request was received during the year from a Brahman pundit in Rajputana, that the Post Office should undertake the conveyance of the ashes of dead Hindus by parcel post to Hardwar, and it was represented that if it could be guaranteed that the parcels should be safely delivered into the waters of the sacred stream by Brahman postmen, for which a special charge was to be made, a large traffic would be secured.

Foreign correspondence including that with the United Kingdom

9. The figures in Appendix III include the foreign correspondence received in India for delivery, but a special table is given at the end of this paragraph showing separately the amount of correspondence in each direction between India and the United Kingdom, and between India and foreign countries. The effect of the reduced letter postage rate can be plainly seen in the large increase of over half a million in the number of letters and post-cards exchanged with the United Kingdom, and though the rate of increase, as regards letters and post-cards taken together, was much greater in the case of those received from home, there has been a fairly equal development in both directions of the traffic in ordinary letters alone. The number of ordinary letters (excluding post cards and soldiers' and seamen's privileged letters) sent to the United Kingdom during the year was over 12 per cent. higher than it was in the previous year, while the number received from home was nearly 11 per cent. higher. There was a remarkable increase in the number of book packets received from the United Kingdom, while in the case of newspapers there is no material difference between the figures for this year and those for the previous year. On the other hand, there was a much larger proportional increase in the number of newspapers sent home from India than in the case of book packets. The reduced packet postage rates were in force for three months of the year, but this can hardly be said to have had any effect on correspondence despatched from this country, though it is probable that it may have had something to do with swelling the number of book packets sent out from home. Statistics of correspondence with foreign countries are taken only once in three years, alternately in May and November, and the figures given in the table are those of May 1890, so that no remarks are called for regarding them. It will not be possible to form any conclusions as to the effect of the reduction of postage rates on correspondence exchanged with foreign countries until the statistics to be taken in November 1893 are received

results of Foreign Parcel Post

11. The parcel traffic with the United Kingdom continues steadily to increase, the total number of parcels sent and received showing an advance of nearly 12,000 over the figures for the previous year. Nearly 86 per cent. of the whole foreign parcel traffic was with the United Kingdom. There was an increase of 4,425 in the number of parcels exchanged through the British Post Office, and of 7,516 in the number exchanged through the agency of the Peninsular and Oriental Company. But while the year's results show an increase in the aggregate number of parcels exchanged, in the total revenue realized by the Indian Post Office there was a falling off. This decrease mainly was due to a fall in the average weight of the parcels received during the year from the United Kingdom through the agency of the Peninsular and Oriental Company, which is now chiefly used for book parcels at the special rate of sixpence a pound. During the year under report the number of these parcels increased from 32,833 to 39,088, but the reduction in packet postage rates, with effect from the 1st January 1892, will probably put an end to the use of this agency for book parcels below 5lbs. in weight. In the parcel traffic with Continental Europe, the increase during the year was small, whereas with other countries, the increase was nearly 53 per cent. This was largely due to the rapid development of the business done with Ceylon since the introduction of the value-payable system with effect from the 1st January 1891. The progress of the foreign parcel traffic as a whole since 1873-74 will be seen from the table in the margin.

12. The figures given in paragraph 8 of this report shew that 339,349,934 <sup>Delivery work of the year</sup> letters, post-cards, newspapers, packets and parcels were issued for delivery during the year. These figures are only approximate, being calculated from actual enumerations made for a week at a time twice during the year, and represent the delivery of the mails properly so called. In order, however, to ascertain the entire delivery work of the year, it is necessary to add the number of money orders which are also now delivered and paid by postmen. The entire delivery work is shown by the following figures:—

Sent out for delivery (including 7,910,249 money orders)	347,260,143
Received back undelivered	9,646,401
Balance actually delivered	337,613,742
Sent to Dead Letter Offices	3,404,513
	341,018,255

These figures show that the percentage of articles delivered to the whole number sent out for delivery was 97.22 as compared with 97.31 in the previous year.

13. The total number of letters, post-cards and other articles excluding <sup>Dead Letter Offices</sup> money orders that reached the various Dead Letter Offices, of which there are eleven, was 4,586,874 as compared with 4,267,016 received in the previous year. The distribution of these articles among the different Dead Letter Offices, and the way in which they were disposed of, are shown in detail in appendix IV of which a summary is given on the next page. Of the total number of articles, 419,172 were successfully disposed of by being redirected and then delivered to the addressees, while 1,843,943 were returned to the senders and 775,377 were found to be unreturnable. A noticeable feature in the year's work of the Bombay Dead Letter Office was the large number of post-cards to be dealt with, which were 28,855 in excess of the number received in the previous year. There was an increase of three millions in the post-cards issued for delivery in the year which accounts to some extent for this, but the special increase in the number of refused and unclaimed post-cards is ascribed, among other reasons, to the fact that large numbers of these cards were posted with imperfect addresses, for the purpose of canvassing for votes, by candidates during the municipal elections that took place in the course of the year in Bombay.

incidents in Dead Letter
Office work

14. A large amount of valuable property was found, as usual, in letters and other articles posted without address, or with addresses so incorrect or incomplete that the covers had to be opened in order that the senders might be traced. The total value of the property dealt with by the Dead Letter Offices of Bengal, Bombay, and Madras, including cheques, bills of exchange, currency notes, and jewellery, amounted to R.,53,007, and a further sum of £89-9-6 in sterling, and the whole of this, with the exception of articles of the total value of R10,852, and of £51, was successfully delivered. The number of articles that reach the Dead Letter Offices with neither name nor address upon them has been constantly increasing of late years, and the Bombay Dead Letter Office alone had to deal with 4,293 letters, post-cards, and packets of this kind. One letter, with a blank face, posted at Sholapur, was found to contain the first halves of currency notes of the aggregate value of R900, and hundis for R4,900, which were correctly delivered. In two other instances strange incidents came within the experience of the Bombay Dead Letter Office. A Goanese, who was subsequently ascertained to be a lunatic, posted in Bombay no less than 429 letters illegibly addressed to various Goanese residents of that city or of Goa, the contents of which proved to be old hand-bills, tramway prize cheques, rags, and other trash of a similar description; while four uncouth packets, discovered in a letter box in a village in the Savantwadi Native State, contained rupees which were believed to be part of the stolen property in the case of a theft that had occurred in the house of a Hindu priest belonging to the village. The object with which the money was placed in the letter-box remained a mystery. In the Calcutta Dead Letter Office, a registered letter, received back from Constantinople as having been refused by the person to whom it was addressed, was found to contain three pearls valued at R700, and as the sender could not be traced, the property has been sold and the sale-proceeds credited to Government. There was a large increase during the year, as already pointed out, in the number of book packets received by the foreign post, and 9,462 book packets or newspapers reached the Bombay Dead Letter Office without wrappers. Attention has been called to this subject on former occasions, but it still seems necessary to insist on the importance of having secure fastenings for the long transit between the United Kingdom and India. Special enquiries were made in all cases in which it was found possible when detached wrappers were received, and in this way the contents of packets were correctly delivered in 214 instances.

15. Particulars regarding the sale of post-cards, postage stamps and embossed envelopes will be found in appendix V, and similar information regarding service post-cards and postage stamps in appendix VI. A statement compiled from these appendices showing the sales of each kind of post-card, postage stamps, and embossed envelopes, is given on the next page. In consequence of the reduction of the letter postage to the United Kingdom and Aden with effect from 1st January 1891, a new one anna single and a new two anna reply foreign post-card was brought into use during the year under report, and the sales of these were 61,400 and 9,957 respectively. The introduction of a new stamp of the value of  $2\frac{1}{2}$  annas caused a falling-off in the sales of the  $4\frac{1}{2}$ -anna envelope and the 4-anna and  $4\frac{1}{2}$ -anna postage stamps, the old stock of which had to be overprinted last year with the  $2\frac{1}{2}$ -anna postage rate to meet immediate requirements. A new one rupee stamp combining two colours, the need for which was forced upon the Department by the forgery of the one-rupee stamp referred to in paragraph 17 of the last year's report, was also introduced during the year. Altogether there was an increase of R3,82,476 in the value of ordinary stamps and of R99,382 in the value of service stamps sold during the year. As noticed in last year's report the largest sales of ordinary stamps were in the Bombay Circle, where they aggregated in value over 18½ lakhs of rupees, then comes the Madras Circle, where the sales amounted to over 17½ lakhs of rupees, while in Bengal they reached the sum of 16½ lakhs of rupees. Of ordinary postage stamps the inland post-card with a quarter anna impressed stamp still continued to have the largest sale, the number sold during the year being over 80½ millions. The post-card is more largely used in Bombay than elsewhere, and the total sales in the Bombay Circle were about 7 millions more than in Bengal in which the sales stood the next highest. The small half-anna envelope, which is sold for the nominal value of the impressed stamp, comes next with a sale of over 65½ millions, Bombay still maintaining the lead, and the half-anna postage stamps next with a sale of over 43½ millions in which the Bengal circle stands foremost. There was a falling off in the sales of the special kinds of square envelopes which are sold at prices to cover the cost of paper as well as the value of the stamps, while little advance was made in the sales of the special registration envelopes, the Madras Circle, as usual, heading the list in the matter of these sales. In the sales of service post-cards and postage stamps, there was a falling off in the case of the special envelopes for soldiers which has formed the subject of special enquiry, and of the ½ anna and the 8-anna labels for which no special explanation is forthcoming. It should be added that besides the sale of postage stamps, one anna revenue or receipt stamps of the aggregate value of R2,63,904 were sold during the year through the agency of the Post Office, and that in Burma, postmasters retailed on behalf of Government general stamps of the value of R37,300.

18. There was a curious attempt to counterfeit a postage stamp during the year on the part of a Native resident of Madras who was subsequently proved to have been out of his mind. Several letters, including one to the address of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress, were noticed in the Madras post office to have been stamped with obviously counterfeit half-anna stamps. These letters bore regular serial numbers on the outside, were superscribed "On His Majesty's Service" and franked by the name of C. G. Cothundarama Naidu, Magistrate of the World. On enquiry being made, it was found that this was the real name of the person who had posted them, who was an engraver by profession, and the police discovered in his house the plate and instruments used by him in the manufacture of the stamps. The counterfeit stamp was of a light brown colour, and was evidently an attempt to copy the design of the impressed stamp on the quarter anna post-card, but in place of the imprint of the Queen's head in the centre, it bore a Native head—a likeness of the forger—with the inscription "World Emperor" round the circle containing the head, and the words "Half-Anna" below. There was no attempt to copy the water mark or the perforation of a genuine half-anna stamp, and the imitation was clumsy and incomplete. The forger was committed to the High Court, Madras, to stand his trial on various charges of counterfeiting stamps, but was acquitted on the ground that he was of unsound mind at the time when he committed the offence.

Section IV.—District Post.

17. There is nothing new to be said as to the general position of the District Post, and all that is necessary here is to recapitulate what has been stated in former reports. The sources of revenue from which district post establishments are maintained vary in different provinces, as will be seen from columns 6 and 7 of the statement on the next page, and the notes at the foot of this statement; and though in one or two provinces the administration of the funds is vested in District Boards, the practical management rests with the heads of the postal circles under the control of the Local Government. The primary object of the district post, as frequently pointed out, is to provide postal communication between the head-quarters of districts and revenue and police stations in the interior of the country, but for some years past its funds have been spent on rural delivery and the postal development of backward districts, and this is a branch of postal administration that now requires further attention. The improvement of rural delivery generally has been rather overshadowed of late by the constant growth of the money responsibilities of the department, and the introduction of new classes of business. These have made special demands on the time and duties of supervising officers, and left them less leisure to devote to the interior of districts. Steps are now being taken, however, to deal with the subject systematically, and establishments that pay their way will be regularly taken over so as to set funds free for further development. The matter has received special attention during the year under report in the Punjab. Additional funds have been obtained, partly by making remunerative District Post establishments Imperial, and partly by claiming the full amount of the district dāk cess in some districts; and with these funds a large number of new offices on a small scale have been opened. The Post-master General has also introduced successfully the policy, that has been found to work so well in other provinces, of employing school-masters to hold charge of these offices on a small allowance.

18. In the statement on page 12 a comparison is instituted for the past two years between the establishments, income, expenditure, and operations of the District Post. The total income for the year was Rs10,78,424, and the expenditure Rs10,28,126. There was an increase of 121 in the number of district post offices and of 46 in the number of postmen and village postmen, which occurred mainly in the Punjab circle, and an increase of 129 in the number of letter-boxes chiefly in the North-Western Provinces circle, but there was a decrease of 1,434 miles in the length of mail lines, principally in the Madras and Punjab circles, caused by the transfers, already referred to, of various District Post lines to the Imperial Post. There was an increase of 940,665 in the number of articles, which includes money orders, delivered by the District Post agency, and an increase of 711,538 in the number posted in the district post offices and letter-boxes, while the percentage of articles returned as undeliverable fell from 4.90 per cent. to 4.69 per cent. Details of letters and other postal articles sent to and received from the District Post are given according to postal circles in Appendix VII.

Section V.—Money Orders.

19. The total number of money order offices at the close of the year was 9,961 as compared with 9,542 at the close of the previous year. The number of inland money orders issued, not including transactions with Native States which are for the first time shown separately in this report, was over 7½ millions, representing an aggregate value of nearly 16½ crores of rupees, on which a commission amounting to over 20½ lakhs of rupees was realized. * Exclusive of money orders of Native States and the Portuguese Settlement previously included in this statement margin will be found the usual table showing the yearly progress of the money order business since it was taken over by the Post Office in 1880. During the year under report there was an increase of 7.58 per cent. in the number of inland money orders issued, an increase of 6.02 per cent. in the value of such orders, and an increase of 6.99 per cent. in the amount of the commission realized as compared with the figures of the preceding year. The average value of an inland money order was Rs21-1-11 against Rs21-8-6 in the previous year. A special analysis has been made of the money orders of the year particularly with a view to ascertain the proportion of orders of small value to the total transactions, the last previous statistics of this nature having been recorded in 1889. The result of this has been to show that 2½ million orders or 32 per cent. of the whole, as compared with 31.27 per cent. in 1889, were for sums not exceeding Rs5; that 4 million orders or 60 per cent. of the whole were for sums not exceeding R10; and that 92 per cent. of the whole were for sums not in excess of R50. The legitimate work of the Post Office is in connection with small remittances, and these results are, therefore, satisfactory. It may be added that, though the commission on sums not exceeding R5 is undoubtedly high, the figures already quoted sufficiently prove the popularity of the postal agency for remitting sums of this character.

20. The following statement shows the distribution of the inland money order business among the various postal circles :—

* Exclusive of money orders of Native States and the Portuguese Settlements previously included in this statement.

More than one-third of the whole business of the year was transacted in the Lower Provinces, and Calcutta alone was responsible for about 25 per cent. of the total number and value of money orders issued, and about 42 per cent. of the total number and value of money orders paid, in the Bengal Circle. The marked excess of payments over issues in Calcutta was due, as explained in previous years, to the extensive use made of the value payable system by the tradesmen of that city. Of the total number of money orders paid by the Calcutta General Post Office and its town sub-offices, about 528,911, or 65 per cent., were value payable money orders. In other respects there has been no change in the general character of the money order business in the different provinces. In the North-Western Provinces, Bihar and Oudh the payments were largely in excess of the issues, whereas in Burma, the Central Provinces, Assam, Sind and Central India, the issues were far greater than the payments

21. The Revenue money order system has again made progress in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and in the Lower Provinces. It is now applicable to the whole of the North-Western Provinces, having been extended during the year to the Kumaon District, and the total number of revenue money orders issued in those provinces and Oudh rose from 120,029 in 1890-91 to 131,737 during 1891-92; the amount of revenue paid to Government by this means was Rs25,10,530 as compared with Rs25,18,842 in the preceding year; and the commission realized by the Post Office was Rs36,911 as compared with Rs33,158. In the Lower Provinces, the number of revenue money orders received for payment rose from 156,701 to 165,706, but the actual amount of revenue remitted fell from Rs15,70,817 to Rs14,39,768. In Madras and the Punjab, the system was under trial in certain selected districts during the whole of the year, but was not much used. The total number of revenue money orders issued in the six districts of the Madras Presidency selected for the experiment was 723, of an aggregate value of Rs8,256, on which a commission of Rs140 was realized, as compared with 467 orders of a value of Rs4,912, and yielding a commission of Rs5, during the eight months of the previous year. It was decided, however, that the experiment should be continued until August 1893, though the character of the land settlement in that Presidency, and the general practice of paying revenue to the head man of the village, render it unlikely that the system will ever be largely used. In the Punjab, the system was introduced from 1st November 1890 in four districts, and the number of revenue money orders issued during the year under report was 1,720 of the aggregate value of Rs1,29,833, on which Rs1,411 was realized as commission. In this Province, also, the system is to remain under further trial, and the question of extending it to other districts is under consideration. With the approval of the local Government, the system was for the first time introduced experimentally with effect from 1st October 1891, in the following districts of the Central Provinces, viz, Bilaspur, Nagpur, Hoshungabad, Jubbulpore, Narsinghpur, Raipur and Wardha, and during the six months that it was in force in these districts, 150 Revenue money orders, aggregating in value Rs39,109, were issued, on which the commission realized was Rs420.

22. The system for the remittance by money order of miscellaneous Government dues also made progress in the Lower Provinces, North-Western Provinces and Oudh. In the Lower Provinces, including the Bihar and Eastern Bengal postal circles, 63,922 official money orders, aggregating in value Rs10,99,077, were paid during the year by book transfer, as compared with 53,216, aggregating in value Rs9,35,798, paid during the previous year, while in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the number of such orders issued during the year was 14,935 of an aggregate value of ₹2,90,393, as compared with 12,460 orders for ₹2,39,744 issued in 1890-91.

Rent money orders.

23. The number of rent money orders issued in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh during the year 1891-92 was 58,997, and the aggregate value of the remittances ₹7,76,181, as compared with 55,036 orders for ₹7,07,403 issued in 1890-91. The average value of each money order was over ₹13½ against ₹12½ in the previous year, and the commission realized from these orders was ₹12,316, as compared with ₹11,276 realized in 1890-91. The number of rent money orders issued during the year in the Lower Provinces, including Bihar and Eastern Bengal, was 40,477 as compared with 23,385 issued in the previous year, and the amount of rent paid in this way was ₹5,17,257 as compared with ₹2,66,869 in the previous year. The average value of each rent money order issued in the Lower Provinces was about ₹12½, and the total commission realized was ₹8,592 as compared with ₹4,710 realized in the previous year. The increase in the rent money order business was due to the extension of the system to the remaining districts of the Lower Provinces in which the Bengal Tenancy Act is in force. The rent money order system was introduced from 1st October 1891 experimentally in the districts of the Central Provinces mentioned in paragraph 21, and during the six months of the year that the system was in force, 409 rent money orders aggregating in value ₹8,283 were issued on which a commission of ₹121 was realized.

The transactions of the Portuguese Settlements hitherto shown in the foregoing statement have been excluded, as they are properly speaking foreign money orders and have been classified as such elsewhere. It will be seen that the payments made by the Imperial Post Office on account of money orders issued by Native States have again been considerably larger than the issues by the Imperial Post Office on those States. The business on the whole has been slowly but steadily increasing.

The number of telegraphic money orders issued was 97,659, representing an aggregate value of over 106½ lakhs of rupees as compared with 84,975 such orders issued in the previous year aggregating in value over 92½ lakhs of rupees. The commission realized was R1,11,738 as compared with R94,724 realized in the previous year. The average value of a telegraphic money order was R109-4-1 against R108-15-1 in 1890-91, and the commission amounted to R1-0-9 per cent. on the issues. It will be seen that Burma, as noticed in previous years' reports, is responsible for nearly half the total number of telegraphic money orders issued, most of which were for payment in the Madras Presidency. On this point the Postmaster-General, Madras, writes :—

"It is noteworthy that the average value of telegraphic orders is more than four times greater than the average value of ordinary inland orders. The number of inland telegraphic and of inland ordinary money orders paid is much greater than the number issued in this circle : and this is due to the fact that large numbers of Madrassis proceed to Burma and Ceylon to do business or in search of employment, and remit their profits or earnings to their homes by this means. It is a somewhat surprising fact that petty traders make use of this system for the purpose of remitting money in connection with their business, because for a business remittance the charge is decidedly high. This fact shows how imperfect the commercial development of the country still is, and what a very important part in commerce is filled by the Indian Post Office."

It is true, no doubt, that telegraphic money orders are used for trade remittances. The special analysis of the year's returns, already referred to, shows that 10 per cent. of the total number of these orders were for sums ranging from R300 to R600, and in Burma, the actual number of telegraphic orders of this class was largely in excess of the number of ordinary orders issued for similar sums. On the other hand, however, although the lowest charge for a telegraphic money order is R1, there were over 10,000 cases in which the amount remitted by telegraph varied between R5 and R10, 2,000 cases in which it exceeded R4, but did not exceed R5, and 600 cases in which it was even less than R4. The great majority of these orders originated in Burma and were chiefly sent, it is believed, by Natives of India to their relations and families. It is probable that the use of the telegraph for such small sums was due to the fact that a promised home remittance had been neglected or put off till the last moment, and that the system has been found an assistance to improvident human nature.

During the year, 187 orders of the aggregate value of Rs25,105 were telegraphed to Bombay, to be advised to foreign countries, and of these, 146 were for the United Kingdom, 26 for Goa, and the rest for Germany, France, Italy and Egypt.

Telegraphic
frauds.

26. During the year under review there were five cases of telegraphic money order fraud. In three of these cases the fraud was committed in the usual way by means of false personation; the amount involved was small, and there was no loss to Government. In the first case, payment was made to an imposter without proper precautions being taken to ensure a real identification as required by the departmental rules, and the sub postmaster in fault was required to make good the amount to the remitter. In the second case, the man who personated the payee was paid in the presence of the agent of the firm to whose care the remittance was addressed, and the Post Office was not responsible for the wrong payment. In the third case, the swindler turned out to be the real payee's brother, and the remitter, the payee's father-in-law, withdrew his complaint. The other two cases of fraud were of a different and more serious character. In the first of these a signaller named Van Haaften, employed in the Central Telegraph Office, Calcutta, fabricated a number of telegraphic advices for sums aggregating Rs7,650, purporting to have been issued from Rangoon for payment at Dacca, and succeeded with the assistance of a confederate, a shop-keeper at Dacca by name Cohen, in obtaining payment of the money. The absence of credit for the amounts in the accounts of the Rangoon office, led to the detection of the fraud and the prosecution of Van Haaften and Cohen, who were tried before the High Court, Calcutta and each sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for three years and a half. In consequence of this case, special measures are now taken to ensure the immediate examination and check of telegraphic money orders in the Comptroller's Office. The other case referred to was also one of the fabrication of a telegraphic advice, but in this instance the fraud was committed by the sub-postmaster of a Combined post and telegraph office in Burma, who prepared a telegraphic advice for Rs500 purporting to have been issued by an office in the Bombay circle. The remittance was made payable to a fictitious payee, and the sub-postmaster after misappropriating the amount from his office cash, absconded.

27. Foreign money orders for the United Kingdom, for the colonies and for European countries and Egypt are issued in sterling, payments being made by the remitters at the rates of exchange fixed by the Post Office from time to time for this purpose. It was stated in last year's report that the method of determining the rate of exchange was under consideration as a small loss had occurred on the exchange with foreign countries, and colonies other than the United Kingdom, and countries served through it, and, as the result of the rate finally adopted, the accounts of the year will show a net gain by exchange on money orders exchanged with Continental and Colonial Governments of over Rs28,228 when the transactions with France and North Borneo for the fourth quarter of 1891-92 are adjusted. The average rate of exchange for the year was 16½d. per Rupee against 18½d. in 1890-91. The particulars of Foreign sterling money orders are shown below :—

The number of money orders issued on foreign countries fell from 52,295 in 1890-91 to 45,750 in 1891-92, and the value from £196,730 to £157,922, resulting in a decrease of £438 in the amount of commission realized. The orders advised by foreign countries and paid in India also show a decrease of 1,631 in number, and £49,052 in value in the year under report. The fall under issues by India principally occurs in the exchange with the United Kingdom and is no doubt due to unfavourable exchange rates. The decrease under payments by India is chiefly in the exchange with Egypt.

The money order business with Ceylon has been more important than in previous years owing, in some measure, to the growth of the value-payable system. The chief transactions are remittances to Southern India from that colony made by emigrant coolies and others who go there to obtain employment or to trade. Some modifications in existing arrangements, affecting the Foreign money order exchanges, were made during the year. It was noticed that large money remittances were being sent by registered letters from the Italian Colony in Africa to Aden, and it was accordingly arranged from 1st January 1892, that the Italian post office at Massowah should advise money orders direct to Aden, the latter continuing to advise money orders for Italian-Africa through the Bombay post office. The latter office was also constituted an intermediary office for money orders issued by Egypt on Mauritius, the Seychelles, Ceylon, Straits Settlements, China, Japan and Australia, so as to prevent the delay in payment to which they had previously been subjected owing to their being advised through the British Post Office.

* The balance shown last year was No 1888 value Rs 40,039-4. The difference is due to subsequent adjustments made in the accounts for 1890-91.

The actual amount which lapsed to Government during the year is not known, as the outstanding void money orders are reported to be under special examination. The total balance standing on the register of forfeited money orders at the end of the year was Rs 56,020 against Rs 18,194 standing at the close of the previous year.

30. The following statement gives an abstract of the entire money order business of the Post Office in the year including inland and foreign money orders, both ordinary and telegraphic, the foreign sterling money orders being shown in Indian currency at the rates in force when the transactions took place :—

31. The statement on the margin shows the sales of British postal orders during the year. The total number of orders sold was 30,625 as compared with 39,683 orders sold in 1890-91, and the total value, including the poundage of the British Post Office, amounted to R1,97,663 as compared with R2,77,604 in the previous year. large falling-off in the sale of British postal orders is probably due to the fall in exchange. The decrease is principally under the 5 shilling, 10 shilling, and 20 shilling orders, which, however, still continue to be the most popular, 22,769 of these orders having been sold during the year, while the total number of orders of other denominations sold was 7,856. The commission of the Indian Post Office on the total sales amounted to R928 only. A large part of the reserve stock of these orders were returned to London in 1890-91, and it was hoped that last year was the beginning of larger sales, but experience seems to show that no real demand exists for these orders, however convenient they are found by a small section of the public.

Section VI.—Savings Banks.

32. On the next page will be found a statement showing in detail, according to postal circles, the Savings Bank transactions of the year as compared with those of the previous year. At the close of the year there were 303 Head Banks and 6,149 Sub Banks, or a total of 6,452 offices open for the transaction of Savings Bank business against 6,455 in the preceding year,—a decrease of 3 offices during the year. The number of depositors at the end of the year was 463,453 against 408,544 at the end of 1890-91, showing an increase of 54,909, or 13.41 per cent., 164,658 accounts having been opened and 113,719 accounts closed during the year under report. The amount deposited during the year was more than 403½ lakhs of rupees as compared with 347½ lakhs in 1890-91, the amount withdrawn was 356½ lakhs as compared with 321,7 lakhs in 1890-91; and the interest paid was 24 lakhs as compared with 21½ lakhs in 1890-91. There were 463,453 accounts open at the close of the year as compared with 408,544 accounts open at the close of the preceding year; the total amount standing at the credit of depositors was nearly 706 lakhs of rupees, or an increase of 71½ lakhs; and the average balance at credit of each depositor was R152.32, as compared with R155.35 in the previous year. Of the 463,453 active accounts at the end of the year 24,475 were Public, Regimental, and Police accounts with a balance of R70,39,914 in their favour and of the remaining 438,978 accounts 57,310 were opened on behalf of minors by their parents and relatives with a balance in their favour of R1,24,15,682.

* Inclusive of R1,08,79,977, the aggregate balance of accounts transferred from one Post Office to another

33. As noticed in the previous year's report, the highest number of accounts open, and the largest balance in favour of depositors at the close of the year was in the Bombay circle. The average balance for each account has decreased in every circle, except Assam, but the amount is still highest in Bombay, Sind, and the Punjab, and lowest in Madras. The number of accounts opened on behalf of minors by their parents and relatives is also highest in Bombay and, proportionately to its total transactions, in Sind.

34. The statement below shows the number and value of accounts held by Europeans and Eurasians as compared with the number of accounts held by Natives of India. Nearly 85·4 per cent of the total number of accounts were held by Natives of this country. It will be seen that Bombay and Madras have by far the largest number of European and Eurasian accounts.

35. The statement which follows is a classification of depositors according to their occupation. The highest number of accounts was held by the professional classes with fixed and variable incomes, representing 40 per cent. of the whole. The next in importance are the depositors included under class VI, who have either no occupation or who live on the income of others or on the rent of lands, houses, etc. To these belonged over 37 per cent. of the accounts, while the domestic class held 63,089 accounts, or 13 per cent. of the whole. For some years past there has been no material change in the general character of the depositors in our Post Office banks.

in Govern-

36. Under Government securities the total amount invested by depositors was Rs1,08,900 as compared with Rs2,26,200 in 1890-91, and the balance of securities in the hands of the Comptroller General at the end of the year was Rs3,68,200 against Rs3,66,600 at the close of the preceding year. The total number of transactions was 213, of which 179 were purchases and 34 were sales. Government paper was sold in the market at a high rate of premium during the year, and this probably accounts for the decrease in the number and value of investments in Government securities.

The figures for the year under report show an increase of 2,852 in the number of letters, and of 31 in the number of parcels insured, as compared with the figures of the preceding year, but the total value of insured articles fell off by nearly 31 lakhs of rupees, and the amount of the insurance fees by Rs8,136 or 3·85 per cent. The limit of value of Rs1,000 for postal insurance was in force during 11 months of 1890-91, and no very satisfactory explanation of the difference between the results of the two years is forthcoming, but it is probable that traders and others who have been in the habit of sending specially valuable articles by parcel post have now made fresh arrangements for the transmission of their goods. The letter insurance business showed a remarkable advance last year notwithstanding the introduction of the limit of value, and some further experience will yet be required before the full effect of the change can be known, but it was expected that the new limit would affect parcel business more directly than the letter insurance. Most of the insured letters still contain currency notes, and nearly a third of the year's transactions occurred in the Madras Presidency where this mode of making remittance appears to be largely in vogue for trade purposes. As regards parcel insurance Bombay stands first with a total of 48,244 parcels, and the greater part of the insurance business is transacted in the Presidency town. As an illustration of the course of trade it is interesting to note that 13,000 parcels were insured in Rajputana, and there is reason to believe that this total is swelled by several practices which appear to be in some measure special to that part of the country. Marwaris and others are in the habit of travelling constantly between their homes and the places where they carry on business, and it seems to be the custom with many of them to send their jewellery on these occasions by post in insured parcels so as to ensure their safe transit. It is also stated that a large amount of jewellery is borrowed for marriages and other ceremonies in Rajputana, and sent by post between the borrower and lender. The average value for which each letter was insured during the year 1891-92 was R261 as compared with R270 in the previous year, and the average value for which each parcel was insured was R301 against R320 in 1890-91.

33. There were 28 claims for compensation for the alleged loss of insured articles during the year as compared with the same number in 1890-91, and 20 in 1889-90. In 24 out of the 28 cases the liability of the Post Office was admitted, the loss having been caused by fraud or neglect on the part of servants of the Post Office in 17 instances, and by highway robbery in the other instances. Two of the latter cases occurred in Native States and the loss which amounted to R550 was recoverable from the Durbars concerned. A statement of the cases in which compensation was paid during the last two years is given on the margin, and it will be seen that the payments by the Post Office in the year under report amounted to R4,713-8 or 2.32 per cent. of the total amount realized as insurance fees, the percentage in the previous year being 3.55. Of the four cases in which compensation was not paid two were pending at the close of the year, while in the other two the Post Office declined to accept responsibility. In one of the cases in which the claim was rejected the parcel was insured for R1,000, the contents being declared as gold ornaments and jewels, but the actual jewellery found in the parcel was only worth R240, the rest of the weight being made up by a copper coin and stones. The parcel had been delivered in good condition under a clear receipt, but was not opened by the addressee till the arrival of the sender ten days after delivery had been effected. In the second case the addressee of an insured parcel that was said to have been duly delivered stated that it never reached him, and declared the signature on the receipt, which had been accepted as genuine, to be a forgery. The postman who had been entrusted with the parcel for delivery was prosecuted for making away with the article and convicted of this offence, but the conviction was subsequently set aside on appeal by the High Court of Madras, and it was then decided that the Post Office was justified in declining to accept liability.

in 1877 is shown in the marginal statement from which it will be seen that the system still continues to grow in popularity. In the year under report there has been an increase of 142,116 articles sent by the value payable post as compared with an increase of 98,000 in 1890-91. The total amount that the Post Office has had to recover from the persons to whom these articles were sent, and to remit to the senders, was upwards of 131½ lakhs of rupees and the amount of commission realized on the transactions of the year was R2,44,865 against R2,12,200 in the previous year. It has again to be pointed out, as on former occasions, that nearly half the entire business of the year was transacted in Bengal, and chiefly in Calcutta. Out of a total of 544,641 articles sent by the value-payable post in Bengal, 529,911 were actually posted in Calcutta and its Town Sub Offices; and of the total amount of 59 lakhs of rupees recovered by the Post Office on account of value-payable parcels 58 lakhs were paid to despatching firms in Calcutta. In the Madras circle the number of value-payable articles delivered is markedly in excess of those posted, and this is another indication of the course of trade in the country, the value-payable system showing that a number of articles are drawn by Madras from Calcutta, Bombay, and Northern India.

of articles sent through the post as value payable. Although the largest proportional increase was 20·62 per cent. under the head of "value-payable railway receipts" the increase on the whole was mainly brought about by the increase in the number of value payable parcels, which rose from 446,399 in 1890-91 to 507,991 in 1891-92. There was also an increase of 12·38 per cent. in registered letters and packets and an increase of 10·08 per cent. in unregistered packets. The average value of each article, calculated on the whole business of the year in all classes, was R10-12-0, as compared with R10-7-11 in the preceding year, and the average commission on each article has remained stationary. Of late there have been very few instances of cheating by means of the value-payable system, but a case of the kind was brought to light during the last quarter of the year in the Bombay Circle, and an extract from the Post Master General's report on the case is given below :—

"One Anna Saheb Powar, a habitual swindler, was prosecuted by the Bombay Police for cheating the Rajah of Ramnadi (Madras Presidency) in respect of a sum of Rs 463 by means of a value-payable letter sent to the address of the Rajah's Personal Assistant. The addressee on receipt of the cover paid the amount specified for recovery in the hope of finding in it a value-payable railway receipt note for certain valuable articles promised by the swindler as travelling agent of a fictitious firm, Messrs. N. Venstone & Co, Bombay, to be despatched by rail to the Personal Assistant's address; but no articles were sent and the cover did not contain the expected document. The Police enquiries showed that the swindler had cheated several other Indian Chiefs in a similar manner. He was sentenced to one year's rigorous imprisonment by the Presidency Magistrate."

This is the first complete year's working of the value payable system between India and Ceylon, and the result is fairly encouraging, 5,572 value-payable articles, aggregating in value Rs 9,820, were posted in India for Ceylon, while 374 value payable articles, aggregating in value Rs 5,748, were posted in the contrary direction.

Section IX.—Miscellaneous.

41. The statements below show the position of the old and new departmental security funds. All subscriptions realized from Post Office servants are credited to the new fund which was started in 1883, whereas all charges, decreed against the security fund under the rules governing its treatment, are debited against the old fund, and this course will be followed until the balance of the old fund is exhausted. The balance at the credit of the old fund was thus reduced from Rs 11,826, as it stood on the 31st March 1891, to Rs 23,892 on the 31st March 1892, while the balance of the new fund, excluding the value of Government securities of the 4 per cent loan purchased in favor of the fund, stood at Rs 3,00,539 on 31st March 1892, against Rs 3,10,742 on the same date of the previous year.

Complaints
public.

42. The number of complaints made by the public, which came to the knowledge of the heads of postal circles, was 8,306 as compared with 8,188 in the previous year. These figures represent all complaints made by the public to heads of circles and to postmasters of Presidency offices, as well as all complaints received direct by postal superintendents and others and subsequently reported to heads of circles, and may be accepted as embracing not only all the serious complaints, but also the great majority of complaints which are not mere enquiries. There was a slight increase of 1·44 per cent. in the total number of complaints received during the year, but more than two-fifths of these proved to be groundless. It is fully recognized in the administration of the department that complaints and enquiries require constant care and attention though at times no doubt the Post Office has to bear a good deal of unjust blame, and special instructions have lately been issued as to the importance of dealing effectually and promptly with this branch of work.

Complaints
regarding
of articles

43. The number of complaints received during the year regarding registered letters, ordinary parcels, insured articles and value-payable articles is shown in the statement below. The total number of these complaints rose from 370 in 1890-91 to 465 in 1891-92, and the number of cases in which blame was established against the Post Office was 128 as compared with 106 in the former year, while there were 15 cases in which complaints proved groundless, and 28 in which no definite conclusion was arrived at, or which were pending at the close of the year. Complaints must be expected to increase in number, though happily they do not increase in proportion to the growth of business in these special branches of postal work. During the year under report there was an increase of over half a million in the number of registered letters; of nearly 200,000 in the number of parcels, of nearly 3,000 in the number of insured articles, and of over 142,000 in the number of value-payable articles. Complaints, which proved to be well-founded were made by the public in respect of only 60 out of nearly 6½ millions of registered articles; 34 out of about 2,100,000 parcels; 12 out of upwards of a quarter of a million insured articles, and 22 out of more than 1½ million of value-payable articles:—

ing offences were cases of theft from the mails. These figures correspond closely with those given in the previous year's report, except that there was a considerable decrease in the number of Savings Bank frauds as compared with 1890-91. Of the offenders, 76 were departmental postmasters and clerks, 47 were extraneous agents in charge of post offices, 3 were postmen and village postmen, and 9 were mail carriers. Compared with the results of the previous year there was an increase in the numbers of offences committed by extraneous agents, and a decrease in the number of those committed by regular servants of the Department including postmasters, clerks, and postmen, but it should be added that the number of offices under the charge of extra departmental branch postmasters was 3,655 as compared with 3,423 in 1890-91. The total amount of defalcation and losses due to the dishonesty or negligence of Post Office servants was R23,990-4-0 (in the previous year it was R39,529) of which R10,719-4-10 was recovered from the offenders or their sureties, R3,482-5-8 was written off against the Guarantee Fund, R9,581-11-10 remained unadjusted at the close of the year, and R206-14-5 was debited to Government as actual loss.

45. In the Punjab there was a serious loss of Government money from the Montgomery post office. This case was at first thought to be one of house-breaking, but enquiry showed that the theft was probably committed by a member of the office establishment. The Postmaster General, Punjab, describes the circumstances as follows in his Annual Report:—

Special instances of fraud by Post Office servants.

"The only case which appears to offer any special features is the Montgomery robbery case, in which, it may be remembered, the entire cash balance, amounting to Rs62-4 was robbed on the night of the 14th May 1891. There is evidence to show that the cash balance was locked up on the evening of the 13th idem in the treasure chest, which had two large Aligarh locks on it. The chest itself was embedded in the floor and was further protected by means of an iron cover, which was fastened with two No. 1 size Aligarh locks, there was also a lock to the door leading into the office room. The Postmaster and his family occupied a room within a couple of yards of the treasure chest, and two postmen were sleeping outside the office and within a few feet of the chest. It is alleged that thieves broke into the Post Office, forced open the five locks and carried away the cash without disturbing the Postmaster or the postmen. On examining the locks it was observed that considerable violence would have had to be used to break them open in the manner in which they were broken, and that the noise must have roused the postmen and the Postmaster. The fact, therefore, that these men had declared that they had not been disturbed, threw suspicion on them, and the theory formed was that either they had connived at the theft or that the locks had been previously tampered with in such a manner that but little additional force was required to burst them open. This theory was further strengthened by the fact that all the locks gave way in exactly the same place. The circumstance that a box of stamps for which clerk Budruddin of the Montgomery Post Office was responsible and which was kept with the cash, had not been touched, threw suspicion on the clerk, and as he had been in charge of the office and had also acted as treasurer, of course he had opportunities for tampering with the locks in the manner suggested. The Police enquiries failed to secure any sufficient evidence for conviction, but they also directed suspicion against the clerk, who was dismissed while the Postmaster was reduced one grade for want of care."

Another case that may be mentioned was that in which the branch postmaster of Malkanagiri, a very remote office in the Jeypore hill country in the Madras circle, misappropriated the value of certain money orders and a portion of his cash balance, amounting in all to Rs21-8. This man, unable to face an examination of his accounts, committed suicide by shooting himself on learning that the Inspector had arrived for the purpose of enquiry into the state of his office. The sub-postmaster of the Allahabad Cantonment post office also embezzled Rs125-7-5, and when the theft was discovered and a warrant obtained for his arrest committed suicide by laying himself down on the railway line in front of an advancing train some miles from Allahabad. The sub-postmaster of Talli-Tal (Naini-Tal) killed himself by taking an overdose of opium after misappropriating Rs50 received for the issue of money orders; and in another case the suicide of a sub-postmaster in Assam was followed by the discovery of a small deficiency in his office cash, though it is doubtful whether this was the cause of his taking his life.

belonging to
Office

46. Two frauds in connection with the money-order business of the Post Office and one fraud in connection with the Savings Bank were committed by persons not belonging to the Post Office. In one of the money-order fraud cases the money order was payable to a purdanashin lady and one of her relatives obtained payment of the amount on a forged letter of authority. The offender was convicted. In the other case payment was made to an individual who personated the real payee and was identified by a resident well known to the Post Office officials. Both men were convicted of cheating. In the Savings Bank case a person obtained possession of a pass-book belonging to a depositor and by personating the latter fraudulently withdrew Rs1-13-6 from the account. The impostor was prosecuted and convicted and the money was recovered and re-credited to the account. Excluding cases of highway robbery, which are separately dealt with, there were 27 cases of house-breaking and theft of Government money from post office safes and mails as compared with 19 in the previous year, but the total amount stolen was only Rs1,671-15-4 compared with Rs4,566-10 in 1890-91, of which Rs671-4-2 was recovered, Rs549-11-5 debited to Government as actual loss, and Rs447-15-9 was outstanding at the close of the year.

31 attacks by highway robbers on the mail during the year as compared with 29 in 1890-91. Of this number 25 occurred in British territory and 6 in Native States. The following statement shows the postal circle and the district or Native State in which each attack on the mail was made. There were 13 cases in the North-

Western Provinces and 5 in Bihar as compared with 8 and 1, respectively, in the previous year, and there was an increase from 1 to 3 in the number of mail robberies in Bombay. On the other hand there were fewer cases in nearly all other postal circles and none in Burma or Assam.

48. The only case in which the contents of the plundered mail were of any considerable value occurred in Gwalior territory where the loss consisted of a parcel insured for R700, the value of which was recovered from the Native State. In 12 out of the 31 cases the entire mail, and in 12 other cases a portion of the mail, was recovered, and the total loss of Government money amounted only to R331-10. Out of 14 prosecutions instituted 8 convictions were obtained. In a case which occurred in the Nizam's Dominions, the robbery was committed by escaped convicts who killed one of their number to prevent his falling into the hands of the police and betraying the rest. Six of the gang were captured and three sentenced to ten years' rigorous imprisonment each. Of the 13 mail robberies in the North-Western Provinces 5 were, it is believed, committed from malicious motives or were the result of local feuds and planned with the object of bringing the opposite faction into trouble. In two of these cases the runners were suspected of complicity and prosecuted, but acquitted for want of sufficient evidence. In another case also in the North-Western Provinces, the robbery was, in the opinion of the Police, the work of a gang whose object was to levy black mail on the surrounding villages. In one of the Bihar cases there was reason to suppose that the mail was attacked with a view to obtain possession of certain official documents. In a case which occurred in the Savanur Native State, in the Bombay Presidency, the robbery was committed by two men at the instigation of the runner's discarded wife and her relatives. In the one case which occurred in the Punjab, a sowar carrying the mail between one field post office and another in the Miranzai, was killed, and the mail, which contained only ordinary correspondence, was stolen. In the Pishin district (Baluchistan) a village postman, while on his beat, was robbed and murdered by men supposed to be Kakad Pathans. This, however, was only technically a case of mail robbery. Two cases of highway robbery were attended with fatal results to the mail carriers, one of whom was killed on the spot while the other succumbed to his injuries subsequently while in hospital. In 23 cases the mail carriers or their escorts were severely beaten or wounded, and in 10 of these cases the men were so seriously injured as to necessitate their detention in hospital or under medical treatment. In addition to the actual cases of highway robbery, there were 8 cases of unsuccessful attempts, 6 in British territory and 2 in Native States.

49. Apart from highway robberies of the mail and attacks upon mail carts and runners, there were during the year several cases of fatal accidents to postal servants. On the 17th of September 1891, a runner, while carrying the mail on the Pal-Lahara Line in Bengal, was drowned while crossing a nalla. The body was afterwards found and the mail recovered uninjured. There were four cases of suicide on the part of postmasters of small post offices, which have been already described. During the riots that broke out in Benares on the 15th April 1891, a band of rioters attacked the Ganges Bridge post office, broke the notice boards, and letter box and did other damage, but failed to get possession of the office cash. The band then passed on to the railway station where they invaded the office of the mail clerk, broke open the mail box and stole a small sum of money, all the box contained. A number of these men were arrested, but the missing money was not recovered. In the Punjab, the mail tonga with mails from Rawalpindi for Murree was swept away on the 6th August 1891, in a flood caused by the sudden rising of a stream. In this case most of the mails were recovered and no lives lost. The Goalundo post office in the Faizpur District of Bengal was blown down in a storm, and fourteen post offices were destroyed by fire during the year in various parts of the country, but in no case was any serious loss sustained. The life-boat belonging to the Diamond Harbour post office in the 24-Pergunnahs of Bengal, and originally built at a cost of Rs53, capsized in a heavy storm on the 21st September 1891 near Kalpi, and three of the crew and one passenger were drowned.

circle by circle in Appendix IX, and an abstract of this Appendix is given in the margin. The total numerical strength of the Post Office was raised by more than 1,000 during the year, owing chiefly to the general development of the work of the Post Office and it now stands at 46,015. The largest increase was in the staff of postmen and other servants, and the greater part of this increase occurred in the Bengal and Bombay circles.

51. The charges incurred on account of printing work done by private presses amounted to Rs35,655 against Rs52,432 in 1890-91 as finally adjusted. The reduction in expenditure under this head in the year under report occurred mainly in the Railway Mail Service, Bengal and Madras circles, and was due partly to the substitution of manuscript labels for the printed labels previously in use in the Railway Mail Service, and partly to the removal of work from local presses at Allahabad and elsewhere to the Contractor for Government Printing, Calcutta, when it was ascertained that this would lead to economy.

Section X.—Non-Postal Branches of the Post Office.

52. During the year under review 78 combined post and telegraph offices were opened, and 13 such offices were closed. There was, therefore, an increase of 65 in the total number of combined offices, as compared with an increase of 57 during the previous year. Of the 78 new combined offices, 60 were at places which had previously been without a Government telegraph office, and 43 at places at which there was previously no Government or Railway telegraph office. The greatest progress in this direction during the year was made in the Punjab circle, where 25 new combined offices were opened, Burma coming next with 11 new offices. At the close of the year under report there were altogether 1,001 Government telegraph offices open, of which 247 were departmental Telegraph offices, and 754 were combined post and telegraph offices. During the year 189 servants of the Post Office qualified as signallers, while 91 were still under training when the year closed. The number of post offices under the charge of telegraph masters or regular signallers of the Telegraph Department was 10 as compared with 9 in the previous year, most of which are in Burma.

Telegraph work of the Post Office

53. The statement given below shows the traffic statistics of combined offices under the Post Office according to postal circles, and it will be seen that Madras again heads the list with a total of 152 combined offices and a revenue of over 2½ lakhs of rupees derived from telegrams. On the total figures of the 754 combined offices, there was an increase of 153,333, or 16·91 per cent, in the number of messages sent, and 160,765, or 17·16 per cent., in the number of messages received. In revenue there was an increase of Rs1,56,122, or 19·32 per cent, over the figures of the previous year, while the total revenue from messages sent from combined offices exceeded the expenditure on the establishment of the offices by Rs8,81,331.

Telegraph
offices.

54. In addition to the work done by combined offices, as shown in the statement above, the Post Office also renders assistance to the Telegraph Department by booking at all other post offices, except a few branch offices, telegrams tendered by the public, and sending them by post to the nearest telegraph office for onward transmission by wire. During the year under report there was a decrease in the number of receiving offices at which telegrams were booked, the number standing as 1,709 at the close of the year as compared with 1,801 at the close of 1890-91, though there were 186 more offices of the kind than in 1889-90. On the other hand, the number of messages, and the revenue realized, was larger than in the previous year, the figures showing that R35,860 were realized from 40,731 messages in 1891-92, as compared with R33,129 from 35,739 messages in 1890-91.

The number of messages collected by post offices in the Persian Gulf on account of the Indo-European Telegraph Department was 372 against 361 in 1890-91, and fees to the amount of R2,246.10-0 were realized, as compared with R2,100-8-0 in the previous year.

Post Office
agency and passenger service.

55. The Government carrying agency and passenger service between Kalka and Simla with branch lines of the carrying agency to the hill stations of Kasauli, Dagshai, Solon, and Subathu, is the only service of the kind now directly managed by the Post Office. The total expenditure on both services exceeded the total earnings by R54,909, but this deficit is R21,016 less than the deficit of R75,925, shown in the previous year on the whole service including the line between Umballa and Kalka, which was closed on the opening of the Delhi-Kalka Railway.

Receiving
Salt-Revenue
at Post Offices.

56. A system of receiving salt-revenue at post offices was introduced experimentally at the beginning of 1890-91 in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and in the Punjab. The main object with which this work was undertaken, as stated in the last year's report, was to provide small traders with an opportunity of paying in money, on account of purchases of salt from the established salt depôts, at or near the places where they reside or carry on business; and it was hoped that this would tend to create a class of small direct purchasers, and ultimately lead to a reduction in the price of salt to the consumer. The system remained in force during the year under report without any modification of the conditions under which it had worked in the preceding year, and a sum of more than 85 lakhs of rupees was received as salt-revenue by the Post Office agency as compared with a sum of 75 lakhs in 1890-91. For some years past traders have been allowed to pay in salt-revenue at treasuries and sub-treasuries, but the special advantages offered by this department, by the free transmission of the indent to the salt depôts, and in other small ways, and the greater accessibility of post offices to the public has led to the practical transfer of the whole of the work of receiving revenue on behalf of the salt department to the Post Office. It has now been definitely arranged that salt-revenue should only be received in future at post offices away from treasury and sub-treasury stations, where the work can be undertaken with due regard to considerations of postal convenience and safety, and a charge, on the analogy of the money order commission, is to be made for the service rendered by this Department. The treasuries will, therefore, resume their legitimate work in connection with salt-revenue, and the sums that will be paid in at post offices in the interior of districts will probably be very small. The agency of the Post Office, however, will still be available away from treasury stations to those who are willing to pay a small percentage for the convenience of having their money received on the spot.

Section XI.—Financial Results.

57. The receipts and charges of the year as shown in the Post Office accounts are given in detail in Appendix X, under two main heads, Postal Service proper and Non-postal branches, and a summary of the results will be found in the statement below :—

Under the head of Postal Service proper, the receipts for the year were Rs. 5,05,492 in excess of the receipts for 1890-91. This was principally made up of an increase of Rs. 1,25,838 in postage and commission on account of money orders and British postal orders realized in cash; of Rs. 1,89,860 in the revenue derived from the sale of ordinary postage stamps; and of Rs. 98,074 in the revenue from service postage stamps. Under the head of Non-postal branches, the receipts were Rs. 7,756 less than in the preceding year; and the net revenue of the Post Office realized under both heads during the year under report was Rs. 4,17,736 in excess of the net revenue realized in 1890-91. The total charges of the year show a marked increase of Rs. 6,39,050 over the charges of the previous year, the greater part of which is due to an item of Rs. 4,65,410 on account of stationery supplied to the Post Office and printing work done, the cost of which has now been thrown by Government for the first time on the department. In addition to this new charge, a payment of Rs. 1,45,849 to State Railways by the Railway Mail Service, and an expenditure of Rs. 1,12,159 for additional establishments for the office of the Comptroller, Post Office, and for the Railway Mail Service and Bengal circles, have contributed to swell the charges of the year. Under the head Non-postal branches, the deficit on bullock train transactions has risen from Rs. 39,688 in 1890-91 to Rs. 64,186 for the year under report, owing chiefly to the falling off in the year's receipts caused by the abolition of the section of the service between Umballa and Kalka in consequence of the opening of the Delhi-Umballa and Kalka Railway from 1st March 1891. The head passenger service relates to the service between Umballa and Simla, and includes the mail service between those places. No separate charge is assessed on account of the mail service, and the deficit on the passenger service as a whole is therefore shown in the accounts as a charge under mail-cart charges, the receipts and charges of the passenger service being taken to balance each other.

and charges of the year, which includes not only items shown in the Post Office accounts, but certain other receipts and charges credited and debited to the Post Office in the Finance and Revenue Accounts. These other items are shown in the margin, and, if the figures quoted are added to the previous figures, the total receipts of the year under all these heads will amount to ₹1,41,59,253, and the total charges to ₹1,49,61,171. There was thus a deficit of ₹5,01,921 on the year's transactions, which would have been less than half a lakh had not the Post Office been required to bear the new stationery and printing charge already referred to, as compared with a surplus of rather more than half a lakh in 1890-91. But the district post figures should properly be excluded from this calculation, because the revenue derived from the district post, except as regards one comparatively small item, is not credited as such in the Finance and Revenue Accounts, although all the charges for establishments are debited to the Post Office under head III in Appendix XI. If this is done, the deficit of ₹5,01,921 will be converted into a surplus of ₹5,81,098. There are, however, further indirect charges which ought to be taken into account if the true financial position of the department is to be made clear. These charges are shown on the margin, in accordance with the usual practice, and amounted in all to ₹6,40,718. If this sum is deducted from the surplus of ₹5,81,098 already given, the net financial result will be a deficit of ₹56,620. In stating the financial position of the Post Office in this way, no allowance has been claimed on account of the special services which the Post Office, although now strictly treated as a commercial department, is called upon to render to Government in managing the savings bank, not only without remuneration, but without receiving the cost of the establishments that have to be employed for this branch of business, in carrying official correspondence at exceptionally low rates, and in such other matters as receiving salt-revenue and paying pensions.

Section XII.—Notice of Post Office Officials.

59. At the close of the year Mr. K. J. Badshah left India on long leave, after holding charge of the North-Western Provinces circle as Postmaster General for five years, and I take this opportunity of bringing to the notice of Government the valuable work done by him in various directions in those provinces. Mr. F. P. Williams, Superintendent of Post Offices, Cachar, rendered excellent service in connection with the postal arrangements for the Manipur columns in April 1891, and was specially mentioned in Major-General Collett's despatches. The following officers, whose names have been brought to notice by the Heads of circles, should also be mentioned: Mr. T. D. Dinwiddie, Superintendent of Post Offices, Coonoor, for successfully maintaining the mail service between Metapolyam and Ootacamund, where two bridges were carried away in October 1891 and the road rendered impassable for mail tongas; Rai Bahadur Lachman Singh, Superintendent, Railway Mail Service, for his complete and effective mail arrangements at the time of the serious interruption in the Bombay Baroda Railway in July and August 1891; and Mr. A. O. W. Lemarchand, Superintendent of Post Offices, Rawalpindi, for the special zeal and energy displayed by him in making postal arrangements for the new military colony in the Gujranwala district. I cannot close this report without expressing my regret at the loss by retirement and death of two tried and valued servants of the department. In February 1892, Mr. C. A. Stuart, who had been acting for nearly two years as Postmaster General, Madras, retired from Government service after a long and honourable career in the Post Office; and Babu Bishnu Chandra Datta, who was appointed substantive Deputy Postmaster General of Eastern Bengal, and received the title of Rai Bahadur shortly after the close of the year, unfortunately died in June last, after holding the appointment for a few months only.

Column 2.—These figures represent the net proceeds of the sale of ordinary postage stamps after deducting the sale discount.

Column 3.—The great differences observable in this column are due mainly to changes of system in the treatment of official correspondence, which was charged at full letter rates up to 1868-69, at the same rate as ordinary correspondence (letters, packets, &c.) from that time to 1872-73, and afterwards at a low privileged letter rate of one anna for 1000 (about 600).

Column 4.—The figures in this column show the revenue undisturbed by the changes of system in respect of official correspondence detailed in the note regarding column 3.

Section 47 (4) of the Indian Railways Act, IX, of 1890.

Letter No. 457 T., dated the 8th December 1892, from the Director General of Railways, proposing certain additions to those rules in regard to the working of station and distant signals on the North Western Railway.

OBSERVATIONS.—It has been represented that, owing to the manner in which station and distant signals are constructed on the North Western railway, the system of signalling in force on that line differs from that laid down in rule 87 of the General Rules referred to above, and that to admit of the present system being continued without contravening the orders on the subject an amendment of rules 77 and 87 is necessary.

RESOLUTION.—The Governor General in Council is therefore pleased, under section 47 (4) of the Indian Railways Act, IX, of 1890, to sanction the following additions to rules 77 and 87 of the General Rules of 1892 referred to above being applied to the open lines of the North Western railway :—

Rule 77.—At end of this rule before the word "green" add the words "white or."

Rule 87.—Add the following as clause (e) :—

"Where the station signal is not constructed to show the 'all right signal,' the signals prescribed in clause (c) may be shown to trains

ORDER.—Ordered that the General Rules, which have already been published in the Gazette of India, dated the 14th May 1892, be further notified to the railway servants, and to the public, by a copy thereof, as herein modified, being kept open to inspection, free of any charge, in the office of the station master of every station on the North Western railway.

Ordered also that this resolution be communicated to the Director General of Railways, for information and guidance, and that it be published under a notification in Part I of the Gazette of India.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year, but an eighth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, January 7th, 1893.

The unsettled weather which prevailed throughout the north of the Indian region during the previous week continued and extended during the week under review. The barometric recovery which had succeeded the depression of last week continued during January 1st, but on the 2nd pressure was giving way rapidly over a large part of North-Western India, and on the 3rd a deepish depression lay over Rajputana. This depression advanced slowly eastward and rain fell over North-Western and Central India on the 3rd, 4th and 5th, over the central parts of the country only on the 6th, and over the central parts of the country and North-Eastern India on the 7th. Over the Peninsula and Burma the weather has been generally fine, but in the former region some showers fell on a few occasions. At the stations on the North-West Himalayas snow was very continuous during the earlier part of the week and the wind was high and squally. Temperature has been low in North-Western India and Burma and about normal elsewhere.

On January 1st pressure was falling over the Peninsula and generally rising elsewhere. The general distribution was fairly normal, readings being highest in the north-west and lowest in the extreme south. The wind directions also were about the average, but the force was somewhat higher than usual in the extreme north-west and at several places in the Peninsula. Light rain had fallen at Rawalpindi, Peshawar and Negapatam, and light snow at Gnatong, Murree, Cherat, and Srinagar. The chart of the 2nd showed that the barometer was falling rapidly over Sind and Guzerat and slowly in most other parts of the country. Readings were high all over Northern India and low in the extreme south, while a slight depression existed over Guzerat. Northerly winds prevailed over the Bay area, south-easterly and southerly winds over the Bombay Presidency and easterly winds at the central stations, while calms prevailed in the south. Light showers of rain had fallen at several central stations and at Roorkee and Nellore. On the 3rd a deep depression was shown over Rajputana, the abnormal depression of the barometer at Jeypore being 0'119". Pressure was commencing to recover somewhat over the Indus Valley and Baluchistan and was rising in Bengal, but in all other regions it was falling. Readings were highest in Assam. The depression from Guzerat had advanced into the Central Provinces. The winds were cyclonic over North-West and Central India and were little changed elsewhere. Rain was falling over nearly the whole of the Central Provinces and of the North-Western Provinces, over a large part of the Punjab and at Ajmere and Karrachi. Snow-storms were reported from the North-West Himalayas and Baluchistan. The amounts were generally moderate or small, and Hoshangabad and Pachmarhi were the only stations which received over one inch. By the morning of the 4th the depression had almost filled up, pressure was rising almost everywhere, and a large area of high readings had been developed over the north-west of India. Readings remained lowest in the extreme south and gradients were moderately steep. The cyclonic circulation of the winds was largely broken up, but easterly winds were still reported from several northern stations. Elsewhere the directions were fairly normal. Rain continued over a large part of Central and North-Western India and snow on the North-West Himalayas, but in Baluchistan and Sind the fall had ceased and the weather was clearing. The amounts were heavier than on the previous day. Lucknow received 2½ inches, and Cawnpore, Ludhiana, Amballa, Nagpur, Akola, Bareilly, Jubbulpore, Ranikhet over 1 inch. On the 5th pressure was generally rising except in North-Eastern India. The rise had been rapid in North-Western India and the normal cold weather distribution of pressure had been established, readings being highest over the Punjab, relatively high in Assam and lowest in the extreme south. Gradients were, however, somewhat steeper than usual. Rain was again reported from several stations in the Central and North-Western Provinces, and also from those along the foot of the hills in the Punjab. Snow had again fallen on the Hills. The amounts were, however, smaller again, and no station recorded more than one inch. By the morning of the 6th pressure was falling everywhere, the change being greatest in the north of the Punjab. The general distribution was not, however, much changed, the areas of high pressure as well as that of low pressure occupying approximately the same position as on the preceding day. Gradients were much slighter. The wind directions were very irregular. Light showers were reported from several central stations and from Bareilly and Madras. On the 7th pressure was falling over North-Western India and the Peninsula, but was nearly steady elsewhere. The general distribution was again unchanged, and the winds over a large part of the country were anticyclonic circulating around the high pressure area in the north-west. Rain had extended eastward and was reported from the Central and North-Western Provinces and from a large part of Bengal. The amounts were moderate or small.

Temperature.—Over a large part of the country the general temperature has been very steady during the week. The following table shows the variations of the mean temperature from the normal on each day of the week for the principal provinces of India:—

PROVINCE.	1st.	2nd.	3rd.	4th.	5th.	6th.	7th.	Mean variation of week.
Burma	—4'8	—3'6	—3'3	—3'1	—2'6	—2'5	—1'7	—3'1

MEAN FOR WHOLE INDIA	—0'1	—0'2	—0'1	—0'7	—1'0	—1'2	—1'3	—0'6

From the above it will be seen that the mean temperature has been steadily below the normal average over Burma, the Punjab, Sind and Rajputana, and steadily above over Bengal and Madras, while in the remaining provinces the mean temperature has oscillated, generally by small amounts, above and below the average. The greatest abnormal deficiency was  $3^{\circ}0$  in Burma, Sind and Rajputana, and the greatest abnormal excess  $1^{\circ}3$  in Bengal and Assam. The general temperature of the whole of India was below the normal on each day of the week, the variation ranging from only  $-0^{\circ}1$  on the 1st January to  $-1^{\circ}3$  on the 7th.

Rain — The rainfall table at the close shows that rain has been very fairly general considering the time of year. Out of the fifty-one rainfall divisions twenty-two received effective rainfall during the week, five more received some rain, but the average actual fall for the division was less than one-tenth of an inch, while twenty-four received absolutely no rain. The region which received absolutely no rain included the following divisions:—All the Burma and Assam divisions, East and Deltaic Bengal, Orissa, Malabar, Coorg, Mysore, the Konkan, the Deccan, Guzerat, Katthiawar, Rajputana (West), the East Coast (North and Central), Hyderabad (South), and Madras (South and Central). In all the other divisions some rain was received. The average actual rainfall of the different divisions ranges from 2.32 inches in the hill districts of the Punjab and 2.31 inches in the Central Provinces (West) to only 0.01 inch in the west of the Punjab. Of the twenty-seven divisions which received rainfall, twenty-three had more, and only four less, than the normal rainfall of the week. The greatest excess was 2.24 inches in the Central Provinces (West) followed by 2.02 inches in the hill districts of the Punjab, by 1.86 inches in the submontane district of the Punjab, by 1.74 inches in the central division of the Central Provinces, and by 1.43 inches in Berar. Where the rainfall has been deficient, the deficiency has been small and unimportant.

The three concluding columns of the table give in another form the information conveyed by the first three columns.

The following gives the largest total amounts received during the week as reported in the rainfall telegrams of the week:—

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 14th January.—Only a few showers fallen near coast. Condition of standing crops unchanged. In southern districts extensive failures under small irrigation sources certain, but fair crops under larger works will be secured. Later dry crops generally poor, but small crops being reaped nearly everywhere. In Northern and West Coast districts crops flourishing and harvest good. Supply of fodder and drinking water generally sufficient. Prices slightly easier generally, but still abnormally high.

Bombay.—For week ending 18th January.—Slight rain in parts of Sind. Standing crops damaged by blight, insects or other causes in parts of nine districts, otherwise good. Harvesting of early crops progressing in five, and sowing of late crops in two districts. Preparations for next season commenced in three districts. Prices generally steady. Agricultural stock good. Fodder sufficient.

Bengal.—For week ending 14th January.—No rain fell in East Bengal and Behar, elsewhere there was a slight fall. The harvesting of winter rice is reported to be finished in some districts, and the outturn is generally good, except, as previously reported, in parts of Burdwan, Bankura, Midnapore, and Hooghly. In Hooghly, it is reported that the estimated yield of the crop in the Sadar sub-division and north of the Tarakeswar Railway, in the Serampore sub-division, is not much over three annas, while south of the line it is about twelve annas. The prospects of the spring crops, poppy and tobacco continue to be generally satisfactory. Some of the earlier spring crops and sugarcane are being harvested. Spring rice is being sown, and the preparation of land for the autumn rice and jute is proceeding in the Rajshahi Division. Prices of rice remain stationary. Cattle are in good condition, and fodder and water-supplies sufficient.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 18th January.—Weather generally cloudy with showers in several districts. The rain was accompanied by hail in Benares, Ballia, and Banda, but not much damage to crops is anticipated. Crops have greatly benefited by the seasonable rainfall, and prospects are good everywhere. Damage to wheat by insects reported from Benares. Pressing of sugarcane and weeding of poppy in progress. Prices steady.

Punjab.—For week ending 18th January.—Rain has fallen in five districts. Sowings of spring crops nearly over. Weeding in progress. Irrigation continues. Spring crops flourishing and prospects generally reported good. Recent rains have been very beneficial for the time being to the standing crops. Mustard crops reported to have been attacked by insects in parts of Lahore. Condition of cattle is generally reported fair. Fodder is said to be sufficient in all districts except Peshawar and parts of Dera Ismail Khan. Poppy crops flourishing. Prices rising in Peshawar and stationary elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 18th January.—The weather has been generally clear during the week in two of the northern districts, elsewhere cloudy weather has prevailed with slight rain. Prospects of winter crops remain unaltered.

Burma.—For week ending 14th January.—LOWER BURMA: Reaping nearly completed everywhere. Crops prospects unchanged. UPPER

BURMA: Reaping of wet-weather paddy, jowar (Sorghum vulgare) and other millets continues. Ploughing and sowing for dry-weather paddy, Island and cold-weather crops in progress. Prospects on the whole very fair. Crops in Gangaw, Pakokku district, have turned out much better than was expected. The outturn of the jowar (Sorghum vulgare) crop in Magwe has been considerably diminished owing to the failure of the late rains. The price of paddy has decreased considerably in Pegu, Upper Chindwin, Lower Chindwin and Pakokku; while it has risen in Minbu and (largely) in the Southern Shan States. The rise in price in the Shan States is due to exportation by cartmen returning to Burma. Numbers on relief works: Meiktila, 518.

Assam.—For week ending 18th January.—Weather seasonable. Reaping of late rice almost over. Condition of cattle normal. Fodder and water sufficient.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 18th January.—BERAR: Weather fair and cold. Reaping of jowari (Sorghum vulgare) and tur (Cajanus indicus) and picking of cotton continues. Linseed in pod. Spring crops good except in parts of Akola, Ellichpui and Buldana, where injury from recent rain and hail-storm expected. Fodder and water sufficient. Cattle healthy. Prices almost steady.

HYDERABAD: No rain during the week. Sowing of hot weather crops in progress. Standing crops in good condition. Prices—wheat  $9\frac{1}{2}$ , coarse rice  $9\frac{1}{2}$ , white juar  $13\frac{3}{4}$ , yellow juar 19, and tur 9 seers per current rupee.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 18th January.—MYSORE: Crops withering in parts of Hassan and Chitaldroog districts; elsewhere in good condition. Prospects favourable. Prices risen in the Kolar district.

COORG: Reaping of rice still in progress. Picking of coffee almost completed. Prices stationary. Fodder and water for cattle sufficient.

Central India.—For week ending 18th January.—Some rain during week in Baghelkhand only. The late fall has been sufficient in all parts of Central India. Agricultural operations still in progress in most parts. Opium being weeded and watered in Bhopal. Condition of standing crops generally fair and outturn expected to be good, except in Goona. Some damage in Dewas owing to hail. Condition of agricultural stock and pasturage good. Prices still continue high. Opium crop indifferent in Goona.

Rajputana.—For week ending 18th January.—Slight rain in Bickaneer. Agricultural operations satisfactory. Standing crops generally good. Harvest prospects generally good in Ajmere-Merwara. Outturn of cotton crop is expected to be eight annas in the rupee. Agricultural stock good. Pasturage or fodder sufficient. Prices steady in eleven States, falling in one and rising in four.

ANNUAL REPORT ON THE OPERATIONS OF THE POSTAL LIFE INSURANCE AND MONTHLY ALLOWANCE SCHEME FOR THE YEAR 1891-92.

No. 239 P., dated 19th January, 1893.

ORDER—By the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department.

READ—

Letter from the Director General of the Post Office of India, No. 11227, dated the 2nd December, 1892, and enclosures.

No. 11227, dated the 2nd December, 1892.

From—The Director General of the Post Office of India,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department.

I have the honor to submit the Annual Report on the operations of the Postal Life Insurance and monthly allowance scheme for the year 1891-92.

2. During the year, 157 new policies were granted of the aggregate value of ₹2,21,000 against 168 policies issued in the previous year for sums amounting in all to ₹2,46,150, and eight applications for Life Insurance were refused on account of unfavorable medical reports on the lives of the persons who applied for insurance. Of the 157 persons who insured their lives, 41 were servants of the Telegraph Department, and the total value of the policies issued in their favor amounted to ₹85,100. The remaining 116 persons were Post Office servants, and the aggregate value of their policies was ₹1,35,900. Compared with the results of the previous year, there was a decrease of 11 in the total number of policies issued during the year under report, and also a decrease in the aggregate value of the policies taken out conjointly by officers of both departments.

3. The total realizations during the year on account of premium on both old and new policies amounted to ₹65,058 as compared with ₹58,273 in the previous year; claims were paid to the extent of ₹14,398 as compared with claims for ₹16,559 in the preceding year; and 38 policies, representing a gross assurance of ₹41,750, either lapsed or were surrendered or cancelled. The general results of the past two years are summarised in the table below:—

Life Insurance.	Up to 31st March 1891.	Up to 31st March 1892.
Number of lives insured . . . . .	1,389	1,546
Amount received in premiums of Insurance . . . . .	₹ 2,52,515	₹ 3,17,573
" of claims met . . . . .	18,98,025 67,996	21,14,025 82,395

4. The active policies existing on 31st March 1892 numbered 1,324, representing an aggregate assurance of ₹18,46,500 as detailed below :—

1 for	₹ 700	effected by a single payment of premium.
451 „	6,48,850	effected by payment of monthly premiums up to the age of 50.
448 „	5,96,800	Ditto	ditto	ditto	55.
424 „	6,00,650	Ditto	ditto	during life
TOTAL	1,324 „	18,46,500

5. There was no instance during the year of an assurance effected by a single payment, but 108 policies, securing a total assurance of ₹1,55,000, were issued under the system of paying the premium for a fixed period, of which 86 were taken out by Natives of India, and 22 by Europeans or Eurasians; and 49 policies, for a total sum of ₹66,000, were issued under the plan of life payments, of which 43 were in favor of Natives of India and 6 in favor of Europeans or Eurasians. The 116 policies taken out by servants of the Post Office may be classified territorially as below :—

46 issued in Lower Bengal and Assam.
 34 issued in the Madras Postal Circle
 12 issued in the Bombay Postal Circle.
 24 issued in other Postal Circles.

116

As usual, the greatest advantage was taken of the scheme in the Lower Provinces of Bengal and Assam.

6. The following statement shows the distribution of Life Insurance policies among the various grades of Post Office Officials :—

Grade in Post Office	Number of Officials on 31st March 1892	NUMBER OF LIFE INSURANCE POLICIES HELD		Percentage of Lives insured
		On the 31st March 1891	On the 31st March 1892
Superintendents and Inspectors	396	87	97	24.49
Postmasters, Sub-Postmasters and Branch Postmasters	5,056	290	307	6.07

Clerks	6,501	483	521	7.93
Postmen and Village Postmen	16,914	93	94	.55
Road Establishment	12,384	20	21	.16
Signallers, Clerks and other servants of Combined Offices	1,045	55	66	6.31
TOTAL	46,011	* 1,033	† 1,111	2.41

* Exclusive of 180 policies held by servants of the Telegraph Department

† Exclusive of 213 policies held by servants of the Telegraph Department

Out of a total of 46,015 servants of all grades of the Department, 1,111 persons or 2.4 per cent had insured their lives on the 31st March 1892, and it will be observed that, as in previous years, the percentage was highest in the grade of Supervising Officers.

7. For several years past, there has been no progress in the direction of monthly allowances, but during the year under report, three new contracts of this character were entered into for an aggregate sum of ₹23-8. Two of these secured immediate monthly allowances of ₹9-8 and ₹4 respectively, and the third a deferred monthly allowance of ₹10 by payment of monthly subscriptions for a fixed period. On the 31st March 1892, therefore, there were in existence six monthly allowance contracts, representing in all monthly payments of ₹128-8.

The purchaser of an immediate monthly allowance not having drawn his allowance during the year, the charge in 1891-92 shows a decrease in comparison with that of 1890-91. If he had drawn his allowance as it fell due, there would have been an increase in the charge of the year to the extent of Rs. 24.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year, but an eighth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

(2) The last paragraph of section 7 of the said Act is hereby repealed.

Substitution of new section for section 9, Act XV, 1882 and temporary continuance of existing procedure and practice.

3. For section 9 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"9. (1) The High Court may from time to time, by rules having the force of law,—

(a) prescribe the procedure to be followed and the practice to be observed by the Small Cause Court either in supersession of or in addition to any provisions which were prescribed with respect to the procedure or practice of the Small Cause Court on or before the thirty-first day of December, 1892, in or under the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882, or any other enactment for the time being in force, and

(b) cancel or vary any such rule or rules.

"Rules made under this section may provide, among other matters, for the exercise by one or more of the Judges of the Small Cause Court of any powers conferred on the Small Cause Court by this Act or any other enactment for the time being in force."

(2) The law, and any rules and declarations made, or purporting to be made, thereunder, with respect to procedure or practice, in force, or treated as in force, in the Small Cause Court on the thirty-first day of December, 1892, shall be in force, unless and until cancelled or varied by rules made by the High Court under this section.

When the Court so returns a plaint, it shall comply with the provisions of the second paragraph of section 57 of the Code of Civil Procedure and make such order with respect to costs as it may think just, and the Court shall, for the purposes of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, be deemed to have been unable to entertain the suit by reason of defect of jurisdiction. When a plaint so returned is afterwards presented to a High Court, credit shall be given to the plaintiff for the amount of the court-fee paid in the Small Cause Court in respect of the plaint in the levy of any fees which according to the practice of the High Court are credited to the Government."

Substitution of new Chapter for Chapter VI, Act XV, 1882.

6. Section 23 of and the second schedule to the said Act are hereby repealed.

7. For Chapter VI of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"CHAPTER VI.

"NEW TRIALS AND APPEALS.

"37. Save as otherwise provided by this Chapter or by any other decrees and orders of Small Cause Court being in force, every decree and order of the Small Cause Court in a suit shall be final and conclusive.

"38. Where a suit has been contested, the Small Cause Court may, on the application of either party made within eight days from the date of the decree or order in the suit (not being a decree passed under section 522 of the Code of Civil Procedure), order a new trial to be held, or alter, set aside or reverse the decree or order, upon such terms as it thinks reasonable, and may, in the meantime, stay the proceedings:

Provided that nothing in this section shall apply to any suit in which an appeal to the High Court would lie under the next section of this Act.

Explanation.—Every suit shall be deemed to be contested in which the decree is made otherwise than by consent of or in default of appearance by the defendant.

"39. Save as otherwise provided by any enactment for the time being in force, an appeal shall lie to the High Court from every decree of the Small Cause Court made in any suit of which the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds one thousand rupees.

"40. (1) When hearing any suit in which an appeal from the decree to be made therein would lie under the last foregoing section to the High Court, the Judge of the Small Cause Court shall record a memorandum of the substance of the evidence and a statement of the grounds of his decision.

"(2) The period of limitation for an appeal to the High Court under the last foregoing section shall be the same as that provided by law for an appeal from a decree of the High Court in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, and the High Court shall have all the same powers and jurisdiction in respect of and incidental to every such appeal, as if it were an appeal from a decree of such Court in the exercise of such original jurisdiction."

8. (2) that the fees to be levied for serving or executing processes issued by the Small Cause Court or served or executed under its direction or control shall be regulated by Chapter IV of the Court-fees Act, 1870; and thereupon the fees leviable on complaints or for processes, as the case may be, shall be regulated accordingly.

XIV of 1882.

XV of 1882.

VII of 1870.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. THE object of section 2 of the Bill for the introduction of which leave is asked is to determine, more precisely than Act XV of 1882 does, the qualifications of the persons who may be appointed to be, or to exercise the powers of, Judges of Presidency Courts of Small Causes.

2. The effect of section 3 will be to leave to the High Court all powers of making rules with respect to the procedure and practice of Presidency Small Cause Courts.

It is based on the opinion expressed, by the Hon'ble the Chief Justice and Judges of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, in the following paragraph of their Registrar's letter No. 1383, dated the 1st June, 1891:—

"2. It seems to the Judges convenient, in the first place, to advert to the enquiry contained in the twelfth paragraph of your letter under reply, and I am to say, with reference thereto, that they concur with His Excellency in Council in thinking that it is desirable, while retaining the Code of Civil Procedure as a basis, to have the procedure of the Small Cause Court regulated by the High Court. The exact application of the provisions of the Statute 44 & 45 Victoria, chapter 68, section 27, would not, the Judges think, quite attain the desired object. They presume, however, that that enactment has been referred to rather as furnishing an analogy than as providing an exact precedent, and they desire, therefore, to recommend that the High Court be empowered to frame by rules having the force of law a procedure for the Small Cause Court either in supersession of or in addition to, the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code, and from time to time to modify such procedure as experience may suggest. The undertaking is no doubt one of considerable difficulty; but the Judges are prepared to accept the responsibility, being satisfied that this is the most practical mode of arriving at a procedure which shall be found satisfactory and adapted to the purposes of the Small Cause Court."

3. Section 4 of the Bill has been suggested by the following remarks in a letter addressed to the Government of Bombay by Mr. W. E. Hart, Chief Judge of the Court of Small Causes, Bombay:—

"16. In regard to the amendment of the present Act, we think that section 18 should be so amended as to enable the Court to allow a plaintiff at or before the first hearing to strike out the name of any defendant resident beyond the jurisdiction, and take a decree against such defendants as are resident within the jurisdiction, in such suits as there is a several liability, on a cause of action arising within the jurisdiction.

"17. It not unfrequently happens that a plaintiff, in the belief that all his defendants are resident within the jurisdiction, files a suit against them, without previously obtaining the leave of the Court, on a cause of action arising wholly within the jurisdiction, on which they are jointly and severally liable. But when he comes to serve them with the summons he finds that, though some are still resident within the jurisdiction, others had left Bombay before the institution of the suit, and cannot be shown to have acquiesced in it. As the law at present stands, the suit must now wholly fail against all the defendants, and the plaintiff be put to the expense of instituting a new suit (if it be not time-barred) either against all the defendants, after obtaining the leave of the Court, or against the resident defendants only without such leave. But in many cases the plaintiff is too late even to adopt this course, and loses his whole claim, the new suit being barred by limitation. The proposed amendment, which could be introduced by means of a proviso after clause (c), would enable him to obtain a decree in the original suit at least against the resident defendants."

In order, however, to prevent cases of improper severance it is provided that the plaintiff must purchase this privilege by abandoning his claim against the non-resident defendants.

4. Section 5 of the Bill, based on section 23 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887, has reference to the following remarks in Mr. Hart's letter already referred to:—

"20. On the question of jurisdiction, moreover, some of my colleagues with myself are of opinion that section 19 should be so amended as to debar this Court from the cognizance of suits involving any question of title to immoveable property. Clauses (d), (e), (f) and (g) prevent us from entertaining suits for the determination of rights in immoveable property. One object of this doubtless is to prevent the time of a Small Cause Court, which ought to be occupied in the speedy determination of petty litigation, being taken up by the protracted hearings generally involved in adjudication on questions of title to immoveable property, which, though insignificant in themselves, may have far-reaching consequences, and are therefore generally keenly contested and can very rarely be summarily disposed of. But under the present law an equal amount of time is liable to be lost over a suit (e.g.) for rent, in which the defendant raises a question of title. Some of us think, having regard to the general policy of section 19 and to the anomaly involved in obliging a Court expressly debarred from jurisdiction to determine rights in immoveable property yet to determine questions indirectly involving such rights, which moreover in many instances are doubtless tentatively raised for the very purpose of obtaining indirectly the decision directly forbidden by the Legislature, that so soon as the Court is assured that there is a bona fide question of title involved in any suit it should be enabled to decline the jurisdiction. This it could do if to clause (g) were added some such words as 'or in which any question arises involving any such right or interest.'

21. I ought to add, however, that on this particular point we are not unanimous. The Fourth Judge, Mr. Hormusji Dadabhoy, whose opinion has a peculiar value as that of an officer of long experience, both as a pleader and a Judge in this Court, considers that the amendment of section 19 ought to be rather in the direction of extending than of curtailing the jurisdiction of this Court, because the restrictions already imposed have the effect of denying justice to poor litigants with small claims on those causes of action in which jurisdiction is withheld from this Court who are unable to incur the expense of a High Court suit. I had better quote his own words :—

‘As suggestions have been invited on other matters, I take this opportunity of prominently bringing to the notice of Government a serious defect in the existing law. Section 29 of Act XV of 1882, among other things, bars the cognizance of the following classes of suits :—

- (1) suits for the recovery of immoveable property ;
- (2) suits for the determination of any other right to immoveable property ;
- (3) suits for general average loss and suits on policies of insurance on sea-going vessels ;
- (4) suits for a dissolution of partnership or for an account of partnership transactions ;
- (5) suits for compensation for libel, slander, malicious prosecution or breach of promise of marriage.

‘These suits are not filed in the High Court, for the obvious reason that the aggrieved parties could not afford the luxury of a High Court action. The result is a practical denial of justice in such cases. The Court had jurisdiction to entertain these demands, but it was taken away by the Act of 1882.’

“22. The great objection—to my mind an insuperable one—to Mr. Hormusji's suggestion is that without a material addition to its strength the Court could not undertake the disposal of such cases and remain what it was originally intended to be—a Court of summary procedure for the speedy determination of petty litigation. As it is at present constituted the Judges have not time for the trial of lengthy cases, nor is there in the office an establishment sufficient for the taking of long and complicated accounts. It is true that under the old Act we used to try some of the cases mentioned by Mr. Hormusji from the cognizance of which we are debarred by our present Act. But my experience of such cases was that they invariably took several days in trial. By the present Act our monetary jurisdiction was doubled. This, coupled with the annually increasing litigation in our Court, so increased the work, while no increase of the staff was contemplated, that it was absolutely necessary to limit as much as possible that class of cases which took the longest time to try. It is this consideration, I apprehend, that lies at the bottom of the restriction imposed upon our jurisdiction by section 19. Having in view the general utility of our Court to the public at large in its primary and most necessary character of a Court of summary procedure for the cheap, speedy and final determination of petty litigation, which is mostly concerned with the recovery of small debts, though I yield to none in the desire to afford cheap justice to all, I should, in the interests of the majority of litigants, be most unwilling to adopt Mr. Hormusji's suggestion to extend the jurisdiction of this Court so as to include cases of this class, except upon the terms of an addition to the staff of Judges and the strength of the office establishment. But if this cannot be given, and it should be thought right to give effect to Mr. Hormusji's proposal in the interest of those poor plaintiffs who are unable to meet the expense of a High Court suit in petty cases of ejectment, etc, I think it would be found necessary to reduce the pecuniary limit of the jurisdiction of the Court in order to enable it to deal with the increase of work so occasioned.”

5. The amendment of section 38 of the Act contained in section 7 of the Bill is suggested by the following paragraph of the letter from Mr. Hart to which reference has already been made :—

“23. Another suggestion, in which we are unanimous, is that section 37 should be so amended as to make it apparent that the limitation of eight days within which application must be made for a new trial is not to be applied in the case of decrees and orders made ex parte, or to decrees and dismissals by default. As the section stands, it apparently overrides the previous enactment of the Limitation Act, which allows a longer period in the case of a suit determined ex parte for an application for a new trial. Construed literally, too, in the case of a decree ex parte, it would be necessary for the defendant to apply within eight days of the date of the decree, though he may not come to know of the existence of the suit till long after the expiration of that time. I think the insertion of the word ‘contested’ before the word ‘suit,’ wherever the latter occurs in section 37, would suffice to give effect to our recommendation. Applications for re-hearing in uncontested matters would then fall within the general law of limitation as regards the time within which they must be made. But of course the Court would still exercise a discretion as to refusing them when made unless satisfied that there were sufficient grounds for the non-appearance of the party making it, and the mere fact of the application would not necessarily operate in stay of execution.”

6. The other provisions of section 7 of the Bill are founded upon the following paragraph of a letter, No. 1774 (Judicial), dated the 3rd September, 1891, from the Government of Madras :—

“3. It will be observed from the letters of the authorities consulted that there is a general consensus of opinion that—

- (1) the Small Cause Court should retain the power it at present possesses of trying summarily suits between Rs. 1,000 and Rs. 2,000 in value ;
- (2) there should be an appeal to the High Court in the case of all suits exceeding Rs. 1,000 in value ;
- (3) sections 38 to 40 of Act XV of 1882 should be repealed.

With these opinions His Excellency in Council is in complete accord, and the first in particular he strongly endorses. As regards the institution of regular appeals against decrees in suits valued at more than Rs. 1,000, I am to invite attention to paragraph 6 of the High Court's letter, from which it will be observed that the present system of recording notes of evidence in the Small Cause Court is considered sufficient for the purposes of the Appellate Court.”

7. Sections 8 and 9 of the Bill have been inserted at the suggestion of the Government of Madras.

17. In the proviso to section 349 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, for the words and figures “sections 32 and 33,” the words and figures “sections 32, 33 and 34,” shall be substituted

Power to require payment of compensation for injury caused by certain classes of offences against property

19 (1) Whenever it appears to the Local Government—

[X of 1882]

- (a) that offences against section 427, section 428, section 429, section 435 or section 436 of the Indian Penal Code are commonly committed or that conspiracies to commit such offences or any of them are frequently hatched in any tract of country, and that the inhabitants thereof, or a large class or large classes of them, are combined to withhold information in their possession which might lead to the detection of the offenders or conspirators, or

[XLV of 1860]

- (b) that offences against section 395 or section 400 of the same Code or thefts of cattle are commonly committed in any tract of country by a member or members of a clan, and that the members of the clan are combined to withhold information in their possession which might lead to the detection of the offend-

[Cf. Act X, 1882, s. 45 (1)]

the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may, by notification, declare the provisions of this section to apply to that tract.

(2) Every such notification shall be published in the official Gazette and in such other manner as the Local Government may direct.

(3) The limits of the tract to which any such notification relates shall be defined in the notification.

(4) The Local Government may cancel any such notification or restrict or, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, extend the limits of the tract to which it relates.

(5) When any offence referred to in sub-section (1) has been committed in a tract to which this section applies, and the District Magistrate is satisfied, after the expiration of a period of three months from the date of the commission of the offence, that, in consequence of such combination as aforesaid, the offender cannot be traced, he may—

(a) make an award fixing the amount of compensation payable to the sufferers for the injury caused by the offence,

(b) make an order determining the village or villages by the inhabitants of which, or the persons or class or classes of persons by whom, the amount so awarded shall be paid, and

(c) make an order assessing the proportion in which the same shall be paid by each such inhabitant or person according to his judgment of their respective means:

Provided that no portion of the compensation so awarded shall be payable by any person or class of persons whom the Magistrate shall, in such order, declare to be innocent of complicity with the offence.

(6) An award or order made under sub-section (5) shall not take effect until it has been confirmed by the Commissioner of the Division, or, where there is no such Commissioner, by the Local Government.

(7) When an assessment has been confirmed under sub-section (6) the amount assessed shall be recoverable, under the warrant of the District Magistrate in the manner provided by sections 386 and 387 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, for the recovery of fines. X

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE principal object of this Bill is to provide for the more effectual surveillance of habitual offenders, and thereby to enable the police to control and check their movements. In this respect it is founded on the model of section 8 of the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871 (34 & 35 Vict., c. 112), which is believed to have been attended with excellent results.

2 Taken in detail, its provisions may be classified under four heads:—

- (1) the improvement of the law relating to security for good behaviour (sections 2 to 4);
- (2) the surveillance of convicted persons judicially declared to be habitual offenders (sections 5 to 15);
- (3) the modification of the procedure for the trial and adequate punishment of habitual offenders (sections 16 to 18);
- (4) the repression of certain offences against property by the assessment of compensation in the localities where they occur (section 19)

3. Section 2.—Magistrates are authorised to require security for good behaviour from persons who (i) habitually protect or harbour thieves or aid in the concealment or disposal of stolen property, or (ii) habitually commit mischief, or (iii) are of a character so desperate and dangerous as to render their being at large without security hazardous to the community.

4. Sections 3 and 4.—Magistrates are empowered to order police surveillance for any term up to three years in lieu of requiring security for good behaviour.

5. Sections 5 to 15.—Sections 6 to 15 contain provisions for the surveillance of persons who have been declared under section 5 to be "habitual offenders." Two convictions under Chapter XII or Chapter XVII of the Indian Penal Code are essential, and it is further necessary before such a declaration can be made that the Court or Magistrate shall be satisfied on the evidence that the accused habitually commits crime or depends on crime as a means of livelihood.

The maximum period of police surveillance is, as in the English Act, seven years from the date of the expiration of the substantive sentence; and such orders have been made subject to appeal and revision as if they formed part of the substantive sentence to which they are attached.

Magistrates are empowered to accept security for good behaviour in lieu of police surveillance, and to cancel orders for surveillance when this can safely be done.

6. Section 16.—The only modification which has been made in the procedure for the trial of habitual offenders is the amendment of section 348 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, on the lines of section 349. Section 348 provides that, when a person who has been convicted of an offence punishable under Chapter XII or Chapter XVII of the Penal Code is again accused of any such offence, he shall ordinarily, if the Magistrate before whom he is accused considers him to be an habitual offender, be committed to the Court of Session. Section 16 of the Bill authorizes the Magistrate in such cases to take cognizance of the offence himself and to enter a conviction and refer the case to the Court of Session for sentence, the Court of Session being at liberty to make or direct such further enquiry as it may think fit.

7. Section 19.—This section contains provisions for the repression of offences against property in cases in which they can be traced to a particular locality but the offenders cannot be identified owing to a combination of the inhabitants to withhold information which would lead to their detection. In such cases the Magistrate has been empowered to assess compensation on the residents of the locality generally, excluding any persons or classes of persons whom he finds to be clearly innocent of complicity with the offence.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 12th January, 1893 :—

NO. 4 OF 1893.

A Bill to extend the provisions of the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1891 to the Books of Post Offices carrying on Savings Bank or Money Order Business

WHEREAS it is expedient to extend the provisions of the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1891, to the books of post offices carrying on savings bank or money order business, It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title and commencement.

I (1) This Act may be called the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1893; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

2. After clause (b) of sub-section (2) of section 2 of the said Bankers' Books Evidence Act, XVIII of 1891, the following clause of 1891. shall be added, namely :—

Addition to definition of "bank" and "banker" in section 2, sub-section (2), of Act XVIII of 1891.

"(c) any post office carrying on savings bank or money order business in respect of such business."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to extend the provisions of the Bankers Books' Evidence Act (XVIII of 1891) to the books of post offices carrying on savings bank or money order business. The Select Committee on the Bill which afterwards became Act XVIII of 1891 considered that these books were public documents within the meaning of section 74 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, and covered therefore by section 65 of that Act, and accordingly did not recommend their inclusion in the Bill before them. It has, however, been brought to the notice of Government by the Director General of the Post Office that, without questioning the correctness of the view of the law taken by the Select Committee, there are practical advantages in bringing these books expressly under the Act of 1891 rather than relying on the Evidence Act, and, in order to secure these advantages, the present Bill has, at his request, been prepared.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

It is proposed in this Bill to provide a form of statutory agreement for Government tenants in the Punjab who settle on tracts first made culturable by means of irrigation from a Government canal.

Several lakhs of acres of Government land upon the Chenab Canal are at present being allotted to tenants. In order to obviate the necessity of executing a vast number of separate deeds of lease, the Bill provides that the Local Government may issue statements of the conditions on which it is willing to grant lands to tenants. Copies of such statements will then be prefixed to registers of tenancies, which registers will contain particulars of each tenancy, and will be signed by the proposed tenants and the Deputy Commissioner. When the entries have been so signed, the proposed tenants and their successors in interest will be deemed to have accepted and to hold their lands on the conditions prescribed in the statement prefixed to the register. Section 8 of the Bill, limiting the transfer of the rights of tenants, is analogous to section 56 of the Punjab Tenancy Act, XVI of 1887, and delegates to the Financial Commissioner the power of sanctioning a transfer. Section 9 provides that all sums due to Government in respect of a tenancy shall be recoverable as arrears of land-revenue.

"On receipt of any such order by the Local Government, the Inspector or Magistrate shall cancel the contract referred to, and shall thereupon make an endorsement that it has been so cancelled on the labourer's copy of the contract or, if the same be not forthcoming, shall give to the labourer a certificate to that effect.

140B. 140C. If any employer and labourer desire to dissolve a labour-contract by mutual consent, such employer may appear in person or by agent with such labourer before the Inspector or Magistrate having jurisdiction in the local area in which the estate where the labourer is employed is situated, and, if the Inspector or Magistrate is satisfied, after such enquiry as he thinks sufficient, that both parties are desirous of dissolving the contract and that there are no good reasons why it should not be dissolved, he shall declare the labour-contract to be cancelled by mutual consent.

"Every such cancelment shall be certified by the Inspector or Magistrate on the back of both the employer's and the labourer's copies of the contract, or, if the same be not forthcoming, by an order in writing under the hand of the Inspector or Magistrate, copies of which shall be delivered to the employer and the labourer.

"Except under the provisions of this section, it shall not be lawful for any employer or labourer to dissolve or cancel any labour-contract by mutual consent.

"Every such addition or deduction from the term of any contract shall be certified by such Inspector or Magistrate on the back of both the employer's and the labourer's copies of the contract, or, if the same be not forthcoming, by writing under the Inspector or Magistrate's hand, copies of which shall be delivered to the employer and the labourer.

J.—Repatriation of Labourers and others.

142B If any labourer, not being a native of the labour-districts, whose contract is determined under section 122, desires to be sent back to his native district, the Inspector may, instead of awarding a sum as receivable by such labourer from his employer, as provided by that section, order the employer to deposit such amount, whether in excess of the three months' wages awardable under that section or otherwise, as shall, in the Inspector's opinion, be sufficient to cover the entire expenses of sending the labourer to such district. Such amount shall be deposited by the employer in the Inspector's office and shall be expended by the Inspector in sending the labourer back to his native district.

"On failure of the employer to deposit such amount within twenty-four hours in accordance with any such order, the Inspector may pay the same, and any amount so paid shall be recoverable from the employer as if it were an arrear of wages.

142C. If any person, being a native of India but not being a native of the labour-districts, or not being a labourer, has no means of subsistence and is, in the opinion of the Inspector or Magistrate, permanently incapacitated from earning his livelihood in a labour-district, the Inspector or Magistrate may, on the application of such person, send him back to his native district, and may, subject to the control of the Local Government, charge the expenses incurred in so doing to the Inland Labour Transport Fund.

142D. Subject to any orders which the Local Government may issue in this behalf, the Inspector or Magistrate may send back to his native district any labourer, together with his dependents (if any), whose contract has been cancelled under section 111A, 111B or 140A on the ground of coercion, undue influence, fraud, misrepresentation or mistake, or of any irregularity in connection with his recruitment or the execution of his contract, and may recover, as if it were an arrear of wages, from the employer on whose estate such labourer was under contract to labour, the whole or any part of the expenses incurred in so sending him back.

142E. If it appears to the Inspector or Magistrate, on complaint made before him or otherwise, that there is reason to suppose that any native of India, not being a labourer, has been induced by any coercion, undue influence, fraud, misrepresentation or mistake to emigrate to a labour-district, the Inspector or Magistrate shall call upon the employer on whose behalf such person was made or induced to emigrate, or to whose estate he is being or has been conveyed, or, if the employer cannot be communicated with without undue delay, upon his agent or any one accompanying such person or conveying him to any labour-district or estate, to appear before the Inspector or Magistrate and show cause why such person should not be sent back to his native district.

"If the Inspector or Magistrate is of opinion after such enquiry as he thinks sufficient that such person was engaged or compelled or induced to emigrate by any such coercion, undue influence, fraud, misrepresentation or mistake as would justify his being sent back to his native district, the Inspector or Magistrate shall record a finding to this effect and shall send such person, if he so desires, together with any other persons dependent on him (if any), back to his native district.

"Subject to any orders which the Local Government may issue in this behalf, the whole or any part of the amount expended in sending a person back to his native district under this section may be recovered as if it were an arrear of wages from the employer on whose behalf such person was induced to emigrate or to whose estate he was being or had been conveyed; or if the employer is not known, or if there is no such employer, by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the person accompanying such person or conveying him to any labour-district or estate.

142F. In any case in which a labourer or other person is sent back to his native district under the provisions of section 142D or section 142E, the Inspector or Magistrate may provide an escort or make such other arrangements as may appear to him to be necessary for ensuring that such labourer or person is actually conveyed to such district. Any expenditure incurred in providing such escort or making such arrangements may be recovered as part of the amount expended in sending such labourer or other person back to his native district."

26. To section 143 of the said Act the words "In addition to any other power to make rules conferred by this Act" shall be prefixed; and in section 145 of the said Act for the word "hereunder" the words "under this Act" shall be substituted.

27. For section 152 of the said Act the following shall be substituted, namely:—

in accordance with the decisions arrived at by the Government of India and the Secretary of State in the correspondence marginally noted, which has been communicated to the public. The chief objects with which these amendments are proposed are, first, to prevent and remedy abuses in the system of recruiting labourers and other emigrants for employment on estates in the labour-districts; secondly, to strengthen the control of the local Administration over unhealthy estates and to enable the local authorities more readily to enforce sanitary improvements on them; and, thirdly, to restrict, as far as may be practicable, consistently with the interests of the tea industry and the present conditions of labour emigration, the operation of the penal contract system sanctioned by the Act.

2. The amendments proposed in section 2 of the Bill are necessitated by the incorporation of Act XXII of 1891 with the Inland Emigration Act, 1882.

The title of the Act has also been altered to "the Assam Labour and Emigration Act," as the Act regulates, not only the conditions of emigration, but also those under which the labour-system is carried out.

3. The object of sub-section (1) of section 3 of the Bill is to exclude from the list of labour-districts the districts of Chittagong and the Chittagong Hill Tracts, which have been withdrawn by the Local Government from the provisions of the Act relating to labour-districts, and the Khasi Hills District, where those provisions are no longer required.

The amendments proposed in sub-section (2) of this section are necessitated by the above changes and by the incorporation of Act XXII of 1891 with the Inland Emigration Act, 1882.

4. Sections 4 and 5 of the Bill give effect to the proposals made by the late Chief Commissioner of Assam, Mr. Quinton, and approved by the Secretary of State, that power should be reserved to the Local Government to exclude sub-divisions of districts and particular gardens from all or any of the provisions of the Act relating to the labour-districts.

5. By section 7 of the Bill it is proposed to reduce the maximum term of the labour-contract which may be entered into under this Act from five to three years, the recent inquiry into the working of the labour-system having led the Government to the conclusion that contracts for longer periods than three years are not really necessary under present conditions.

6. The object of section 8 of the Bill is to provide that no labourer shall be bound to engage in work involving regular labour underground, such as work in a coal-mine, unless he has specifically contracted to do so.

7. The object of section 9 of the Bill is to supply an omission in the present system and to place at the disposal of an employer a recognized method of ascertaining, before he enters into a labour-contract with a labourer, that the labourer is in a fit state of health and able to reside and labour for hire in a labour-district.

8. In section 11 of the Bill it is proposed to recast sections 111 and 112 of the Inland Emigration Act, and to make the following changes in them :—

- (1) to limit the term of a contract entered into under section 111 of the Act to one year;
- (2) to limit the term of a contract entered into under section 112 of the Act to three years;
- (3) to limit the execution of a contract under section 111 to the actual labour-district in which the contract is to be performed;
- (4) to empower the Inspector or Magistrate to require the production before him of any labourer who has executed a contract under section 111 for verification of his contract;

- (5) To place on a legal footing the existing arrangements under which labour-contracts are entered into at Dhubri in the presence of the Magistrate or Civil Surgeon by bringing such contracts within the scope of section 112 of the Act, and by empowering the Chief Commissioner to make rules having the force of law for regulating the procedure for the execution of such contracts.

The amendments specified in heads (3), (4) and (5) have been accepted by the Chief Commissioner of Assam, and are, it is reported, generally agreed to by the planting community. The amendments specified in head (2) follow from the change made by section 7 of the Bill.* The amendment proposed in head (1) gives effect to the declared policy of the Government to restrict, from time to time, as may be found practicable, the operation of the penal contract system.

9. The object of sections 15 to 20 of the Bill is to strengthen the hands of the Local Administration in dealing with, and enforcing sanitary measures on, unhealthy estates employing contract labourers.

10. The object of section 23 of the Bill is to provide a remedy for cases in which labourers have been fraudulently or illegally recruited or placed on contract by specifically empowering the local Administration to cancel their labour-contracts.

11. The object of section 25 of the Bill (proposed sections 142A to 142F of the Act) is partly to legalize existing practice and partly to provide safeguards against malpractices in recruitment by empowering the local authorities to repatriate to their native districts labourers or other immigrant persons who are either physically incapacitated from earning their livelihood in a labour-district or have been fraudulently or illegally recruited or conveyed to a labour-district, and, in the latter case, to recover the cost of such repatriation from the person at fault or from the employer on whose behalf or to whose estate such persons were induced to emigrate. By section 34 of the Bill local officers have also been empowered, subject to the orders of the Chief Commissioner, to pay the cost of repatriation from the Inland Labour Transport Fund.

12. By section 31 of the Bill it is proposed to slightly modify the procedure to be followed on the arrest by the employer or his agent of a labourer who has deserted from service by dispensing with the necessity of producing the labourer before the Magistrate in cases in which he admits the contract and does not desire to be forwarded to a Magistrate.

13. By section 32 of the Bill it is proposed to render periods for which a labourer is sentenced to imprisonment under the ordinary law, and (subject to certain restrictions) periods for which a labourer was absent from service owing to desertion, endorseable on the labour-contract as an addition to the original term thereof.

14. The opportunity has been taken to make certain other modifications and improvements of detail in the provisions of the Act.

NEW MEMBERS.

The Hon'ble SIR GRIFFITH EVANS and the Hon'ble MR. STEVENS took their seats as Additional Members of Council.

LAND ACQUISITION ACT, 1870, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. WOODBURN moved that the Bill to amend the Land Acquisition Act, 1870, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir Philip Hutchins, the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Miller, the Hon'ble Sir Charles Pritchard, the Hon'ble Raja Udai Partab Singh of Bhinga, the Hon'ble Dr. Rash Behari Ghose, the Hon'ble Palli Chentsal Rao Pantulu and the Mover. He said:—

"I may perhaps take the opportunity to say that, speaking for myself, I think the main object which the Mover of the Bill had in view may be met without very material alteration of the principles and procedure of the existing Act. The chief defect of the present law as explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons is this. By the law the Collector must refer to the arbitration of the Judge every case in which the owner of the land he acquires is dissatisfied with the award. And he is also compelled to refer to the Judge every case in which any one of, perhaps, a large number of persons interested in the award has failed to attend before him. It is in evidence that their failure in attendance is occasioned, in the great majority of instances, not by dissatisfaction with the award but by indifference; and the result has undoubtedly been, particularly in the Punjab, that large numbers of people have been subjected to unnecessary inconvenience and expense by the consequent proceedings in the Civil Court. It is possible, perhaps, to remedy this defect without making the considerable change of requiring a dissatisfied owner to institute a formal suit against the Collector of his district, and I shall ask the Select Committee to consider an alternative draft which would make the Collector's award final if it is not objected to within a reasonable time, but which would continue to the Collector his present duty of referring to the Judge every case in which exception is taken to his award."

The Hon'ble THE RAJA OF BHINGA said:—

"While admitting the necessity of dispensing with the services of the assessors, I cannot overlook the objectionable parts of this Bill. It is, however, a matter of great satisfaction to me to find my hon'ble friend Mr. Woodburn proposing such valuable modifications, which, if carried out, are sure to meet the requirements of the case. In the words of a high Government official, the Bill as it stands now cannot help making 'the Collector a Judge in his own cause, throwing the burden of proof on the private owners of property whose rights and interests are assailed.' The same, however, cannot be said of a Judge who tries a case of a similar nature. The argument that the one is no less a Government servant than the other, and, consequently, both equally competent to try such suits, is not quite sound. All Principals and Professors attached to Government educational institutions are Government servants. They are, however, never appointed as the examiners of their own schools or classes. In human life impartiality as well as circumstances have scope for full play. I am one of those who have a great respect for the Collectors, and think that India can never expect to get a better class of officers. But with the best of motives I respectfully submit that they cannot avoid suspicion and mistrust if they are made to try cases under the new law. In comparison with the Presidency and other large towns the interests of the Mufussal are in greater danger. A Collector might be an entirely new man, placed in temporary charge of a district, or one relying solely in such matters on the reports of the tahsildar or peshkar. In a country like India, under a foreign rule, it is of the utmost importance that the men in authority should be not only honest and impartial, but also as far as possible, above suspicion. As regards the trouble and expense, I do not think the proposed change would be beneficial, unless the Collector's enquiry is to be of a summary nature—a procedure certainly undesirable. Again, the claimant in a suit of partition is allowed to pay court-fees only on the share claimed, and not on the value of the entire property. In connection with this, the Chief Commissioner of Coorg very justly remarks that 'for instance, the rival claimants to compensation are A and B. According to the award of the Collector, A is entitled to Rs. 100 and B to Rs. 200. A, however, contends that he is entitled to half the compensation awarded, and he accordingly sues B for the balance due to him. According to the draft amendment referred to above, A would be required to pay the court-fee on Rs. 300, while it seems more reasonable that he should be required to pay the court-fee on Rs. 50 only, the difference between the amount claimed by him and that awarded by the Collector.' Further, under the Limitation Act, the period assigned for bringing suits regarding lands taken up for public purposes by Government is one year, but according to the amendment it is too short. I would therefore respectfully beg to make two suggestions: (1) should the difference between the Collector's award and the value claimed exceed twenty per cent., the owner be allowed to have resort to the Civil Courts free of institution-fees; (2) the limitation under section 18 be extended to six months in one case, and one year in the other."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

PARTITION BILL.

The Hon'ble DR. RASH BEHARI GHOSE moved that the Bill to amend the Law of Partition be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir Philip Hutchins, the Hon'ble Sir Alexander Miller, the Hon'ble Palli Chentsal Rao Pantulu, the Hon'ble Sir Griffith Evans and the Mover. He said that all that it was necessary for him to state at that stage was that the Bill had been, generally speaking, favourably reported upon by the different Local Governments, as well as by the officers and public associations consulted by them. It had also been approvingly noticed by the Press. At the same time he was bound to say that, while accepting what might be called the principle of the Bill, many of the communications received contained valuable criticisms on what might be described as the details of the measure. Those criticisms he was sure would receive every attention from the Select Committee to which the Bill was now about to be referred.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

BILL TO LEGALIZE EXECUTION IN BRITISH INDIA OF CAPITAL SENTENCES PASSED BY BRITISH COURTS IN FOREIGN TERRITORY.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER moved that the Bill to legalize in certain cases the execution within British India of capital sentences which have been passed by British Courts exercising in or with respect to foreign territory jurisdiction which the Governor General in Council has in such territory be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir Philip Hutchins, the Hon'ble Mr. Elsmie, the Hon'ble Sir Griffith Evans and the Mover. He said:—"The Bill is a very small one, and, as I fancy most of the members know, is merely introduced to remedy the inconvenience discovered in some of the small semi-independent States,—principally in the Bombay Presidency,—where in the few cases in which capital sentences have been passed by British Courts there is no proper machinery for carrying them into execution, and sometimes we have been left to the alternative of a scandal or an irregularity. It is desirable that that alternative should be removed by legalising within British India the execution of such capital sentences. The Bill will probably require some little amendment in its details, and I have no doubt that the Select Committee will be able to deal satisfactorily with them."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

PETIT BARONETCY BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also moved for leave to introduce a Bill for settling Bonds of the Municipal Corporation of the City of Bombay producing an annual income of one lakh and twenty-five thousand rupees and a Mansion-house and hereditaments called "Petit Hall" in the Island of Bombay, the property of Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, Baronet, so as to accompany and support the title and dignity of a Baronet lately conferred by Her Present Majesty Queen Victoria on him for and during the term of his natural life, and from and immediately after his decease to hold to his second son, Framjee Dinshaw Petit, Esquire, and the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten, and in default of such issue with remainder to the heirs male of the body of the said Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit, and for other purposes connected therewith. He said:—"This is the second case which has arisen in which, Her Majesty having conferred a hereditary honour upon a Native of India, the Baronet has been desirous of settling an endowment which will prevent the dignity from falling into poverty or disrepute at any future time. As the law at present stands there are difficulties with regard to perpetuities, and this object can now only be attained by a special Act of the Legislature. Whether a general Act may at any future time be passed that will meet these cases may be matter for consideration, but in the meantime the only way in which sanction can be accorded to the creation of a perpetuity is by a special Act. An Act of this nature was passed in the case of Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy in 1860, and it is now proposed to follow that precedent in the case of Sir Dinshaw Manockjee Petit."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also moved that the Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons be published in the Gazette of India in English, and in the Bombay Government Gazette in English and in such other languages as the Local Government thinks fit.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT, 1882, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882. He said:—

"Very considerable complaints have, from time to time, been made of the working of one at least of the Small Cause Courts established by the Act of 1882, and in two or three important particulars it has been found that the Act worked badly, and accordingly, after much consideration, it has been determined to introduce a Bill to amend that Act in three (there are other small amendments with which I need not trouble the Council) important particulars. At present, with the single exception of a rule that the Chief Judge of a Small Cause Court, and at least one-third in number of the Judges, must necessarily have been barristers or advocates, there is no qualification whatever for the office of Judge: though I have no doubt that the Governments which have the appointment of the Judges to these Courts would always take care to appoint qualified men, there is absolutely nothing in the law as it stands which would prevent two-thirds of the Judgeships of any one of these Courts from being filled up by young gentlemen who had landed in India to join the Indian Civil Service the day before their appointment. We propose to provide for the future, while not altering the qualification of Chief Judge, that no person can be appointed a Small Cause Court Judge who has not secured a standing of five years either as a barrister of England, Ireland or Scotland, or as an advocate, attorney or vakil of a High Court in India, or as a Subordinate Judge. It is scarcely conceivable that any one can be fit for the office who has not satisfied one at least of these three qualifications. We also propose to provide that in the case of a man who has not got five years' standing in any one of such capacities, still if he can make up five years in all amongst his qualifications, that shall be sufficient qualification for him. This will get rid no doubt altogether of the one-third principle, which I may say incidentally was very nearly being found a great difficulty with regard to the new Court in Madras, and, whilst retaining a barrister or advocate as necessary for the Chief Judge, it will require that every one of the other Judges shall be qualified in the manner I have mentioned.

"The second point on which amendment seemed to be imperatively called for was that the rules of procedure in Small Cause Courts were not found to work altogether satisfactorily, and accordingly we now propose to provide that the High Court under whose jurisdiction the particular Small Cause Court may be shall have power to make and alter all such rules of procedure as may be required. We consider that the proper authority to regulate the procedure in the Small Cause Courts is the High Court of the Presidency in which the Small Cause Court is; they will not make any alteration unless it is found desirable, but we propose to put the matter entirely in the hands of the High Court to make any such alteration by rule as they may consider necessary for the good working of the Small Cause Court.

"The third alteration is one on which I myself lay very great stress indeed. As the law stands at present, there is practically no appeal from the decision of a Small Cause Court Judge. You may indeed apply to him for a new trial, or you may move the Court under certain somewhat complicated and onerous conditions to call up the record for revision; but there is nothing in the nature of a direct appeal to any superior authority from the decision of a Small Cause Court Judge. We propose to alter that,—to get rid of the complicated and onerous regulations which have been established for revision,—by providing that in every case in which the value of a suit exceeds Rs. 1,000 there shall be an appeal to the High Court by either party under exactly the same conditions as if it were an appeal from an original decision of the High Court itself in its original jurisdiction. On the other hand, in order to prevent a complication of appeals, we propose to provide that in the cases in which an appeal lies there should be no power to move the Judge himself for a new trial; that you are not to be entitled to go first to the Judge and see what you can do with him and then appeal when you fail; and that your remedy is to be one, and one only. We consider that in cases of the value of Rs. 1,000 and over the proper appeal is to the High Court.

"These are the only proposals in the Bill which it is necessary to mention. There are some minor details which are requisite for carrying out the three objects which I have mentioned to which I need not here refer."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble SIR GRIFFITH EVANS craved leave to inquire whether any provision was made in the proposed Bill for the recording of evidence in appealable cases

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER said that the Bill provided that in any case in which an appeal would lie the Judge should take a note of the evidence and give the substance of his judgment. That, in fact, was more than had been found necessary in appeals in County Courts in England and less than was commonly done by Judges of their own motion. It was therefore considered that it would be quite sufficient.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also moved that the Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons be published in the Gazette of India in English, and in the Fort St. George Gazette, the Bombay Government Gazette and the Calcutta Gazette in English and in such other languages as the Local Governments think fit.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

HABITUAL OFFENDERS BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS moved for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the more effectual surveillance and control of habitual offenders and for other purposes. He said:—

"Of the subjects first brought before me when I joined the Government of India, and before your Excellency when you assumed your exalted office, one of the most important was the apparent increase in the number of criminal offences and the growing inability of our police to cope with the criminal classes. The matter was referred to Local Governments and Administrations, and, although it turned out that in most of the provinces crime had not really reached the formidable dimensions which had been supposed, it was nevertheless admitted that the administration of criminal justice was far less effective than it should be in most parts of the country, and various causes were assigned to account for the shortcoming. Most of these causes have been dealt with, and as far as possible remedied, executively. Chief among them were defects in the police force itself. This has now been thoroughly overhauled in almost every province, and measures have been taken, involving considerable expenditure, to improve the personnel of the force generally, and more particularly to secure better and more trustworthy men as investigating officers.

"But another result of our enquiries, and that on which I desire to lay stress in connection with the Bill which I am about to introduce, was to show very clearly that the improvement in communications which has been effected in recent years, chiefly by railways and the telegraph, has greatly facilitated the depredations of professional criminals, and has increased the difficulty experienced by the police in the detection and prevention of certain classes of crime. This difficulty, we believe, arises mainly from the fact that there is no provision of law authorizing the police in this country to keep habitual criminals under surveillance, so as to control and watch over their movements; for, although some sort of police supervision over convicted and suspected persons is undoubtedly exercised in most parts of the country, this is an irregular arrangement and rests on no legal basis.

"Twenty years ago, in 1873, a proposal was submitted to the Government of India that legislation should be undertaken on the model of section 8 of 34 & 35 Vict., c. 112, with a view to the prevention of crime by controlling bad characters. The proposal was not then adopted for two reasons. In the first place, the precedent cited was a novel provision of the English law; it had not been subjected to the test of experience, and it was thought better to wait for some years until the system had been fully tried. In the second place, the police of the country were also at that time a comparatively young body: they were not considered fit to be entrusted with such large powers of supervision. But the reports which were received by Lord Ripon's Government in 1881 in connection with the amendment of the Criminal Procedure Code, and the more recent reports submitted to us in connection with our late inquiry into the state of crime in the larger Provinces in India, have made it clear that many of the authorities most competent to form an opinion on the subject are more than ever convinced that legal powers of surveillance over bad characters are indispensable if the police are to exercise any adequate check over habitual criminals. And, on the other hand, the two chief objections to the enactment of such a measure in India have been removed—the first by the successful manner in which the English Statute has worked, and the second by the fact, to which I have just adverted, that extensive schemes for the re-organisation of the police have already been carried out in many Provinces, while others are being matured for improving the condition of the force and raising the standard of intelligence and honesty among its members. Moreover, as some form of surveillance is already carried out in most parts of India, it seems very desirable that it should be placed on a legal footing—that the limits within which it may be properly applied and the persons to be brought under it should, as far as conveniently may be, be declared by the Legislature, and that, as a consequence of such a declaration of what may be done, any excess of those limits or irregular interference with persons who are merely suspected should be redressed.

"With this object a Bill has been prepared to provide for the surveillance and control of habitual offenders and certain cognate matters. It had its origin in a draft Bill forwarded by the Punjab Government in 1889, in continuation of its report on the state of crime in that Province. That Bill was forwarded for the opinions of Local Governments and Administrations and the High Courts; and, after a consideration of the replies received, we have modified the draft and put it into the form in which I shall shortly lay it on the table. There is, I think, a general consensus of opinion among the authorities consulted in favour of the principle of the measure, and particularly as to the necessity for more effective regulations for the control of habitual offenders.

"I will now proceed to explain in some detail what it is that we propose to enact. The provisions of the Bill fall roughly under four heads:—

- (1) the improvement of the law of security for good behaviour;
- (2) the surveillance of persons judicially declared to be habitual offenders;
- (3) the modification of the procedure for the trial and adequate punishment of such offenders;
- (4) the repression of certain offences against property by the assessment of compensation in the localities where they occur.

"(1) The provisions for the improvement of the law relating to security are contained in sections 2 to 4 of the Bill. The existing law for the prevention of crime by habitual offenders is to be found in Chapter VIII of the Criminal Procedure Code, which authorizes the taking of security for good behaviour from any person who is 'an habitual robber, house-breaker or thief, or an habitual receiver of stolen property knowing the same to be stolen, or who habitually commits extortion, or in order to the committing of extortion habitually puts or attempts to put persons in fear of injury.' By section 505 of the Code of 1872, Magistrates were further empowered to require security from persons who were 'of notoriously bad livelihood,' or 'dangerous characters,' but these words were omitted from the Code of 1882 in consequence of objections that the phraseology was vague, and that it placed in the hands of the police powers which are liable to abuse. It has been represented in many quarters that this omission has deprived the preventive part of the Code of much of its value; and the Local Governments of Bombay and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, as well as the Chief Commissioner of Burma, recommend that the same or similar words should now be re-enacted. Sir Auckland Colvin has also pointed out that, under the existing law, security cannot be demanded from persons habitually committing such offences as kidnapping or professional poisoning. It is accordingly proposed to re-enact section 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code in a form which will both slightly enlarge and show much more clearly the several classes of persons from whom security may be required. The material changes are three in number: first, by clause (f) of the section, the words omitted in 1882 will be restored, but in such a shape as to render them free from the charge of vagueness and less liable to abuse—a man must be of a character so desperate and dangerous as to render it hazardous to the community that he should be at large, without any safeguard, before he can be bound over to good behaviour; secondly, in clause (d) mischief has been added to the list of offences the commission of which makes the offender liable to be called upon to furnish security—this addition has been made to meet the case of such offences as habitual cattle-poisoning, which is largely practised in certain parts of the country; thirdly, in pursuance of a note to section 110, which will be found in Mr. Whitley Stokes' Anglo-Indian Codes, I have inserted a new clause (c) to provide for the case of a man who 'habitually protects or harbours thieves or aids in the concealment or disposal of stolen property.'

"Then it is proposed to make surveillance by the police an alternative in certain cases to the requisition of security. Section 3 of the Bill empowers the Magistrate to make an order for police surveillance instead of requiring security for good behaviour. Section 4 permits a person who has been ordered to give security, but has been unable to furnish it, to be kept under surveillance in lieu of being detained in prison. Under section 8 of the Bill such orders for police surveillance will be subject to the same rights of appeal as are allowed by the Code in respect of orders to give security.

"The second main division of the Bill comprises sections 5 to 15, and makes provisions for the surveillance of persons who are 'habitual offenders' within the definition contained in section 5. This definition is framed on the principle embodied in 34 & 35 Vict., c. 112, and indeed the whole of this part of the Bill is based upon section 8 of that Statute. For the convenience of any one who may not have the Statute at hand to refer to, I will quote the entire section:—

'Where any person is convicted on indictment of a crime, and a previous conviction of a crime is proved against him, the Court having cognizance of such indictment may, in addition to any other punishment which it may award to him, direct that he is to be subject to the supervision of the police for a period of seven years, or such less period as the Court may direct, commencing immediately after the expiration of the sentence passed on him for the last of such crimes.

' Every person subject to the supervision of the police who is at large in Great Britain or Ireland shall notify the place of his residence to the chief officer of police of the district in which his residence is situated, and shall, whenever he changes such residence within the same police district, notify such change to the chief officer of police of that district, and whenever he changes his residence from one police district to another shall notify such change of residence to the chief officer of police of the police district which he is leaving and to the chief officer of police of the police district into which he goes to reside; moreover, every person subject to the supervision of the police, if a male, shall once in each month report himself at such time as may be prescribed by the chief officer of police of the district in which such holder may be, either to such chief officer himself, or to such other person as that officer may direct, and such report may, according as such chief officer directs, be required to be made personally or by letter.

' If any person subject to the supervision of the police who is at large in Great Britain or Ireland remains in any place for forty-eight hours without notifying the place of his residence to the chief officer of police of the district in which such place is situated, or fails to comply with the requisitions of this section on the occasion of any change of residence, or with the requisitions of this section as to reporting himself once in each month, he shall in every such case, unless he proves to the satisfaction of the Court before whom he is tried that he did his best to act in conformity with the law, be guilty of an offence against this Act, and upon conviction thereof he shall be subject to be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for any period not exceeding one year.

" Following these lines, section 5 of the Bill requires two convictions under Chapter XII or XVIII of the Indian Penal Code, and it will further be necessary before a person can be declared a 'habitual offender' that the Court or Magistrate shall be satisfied on the evidence, of which the convictions will only be part, that the accused habitually commits crime or depends on crime as a means of livelihood. The maximum period for which any person may be ordered to be kept under surveillance in such cases is, in the English Act, seven years from the date of the expiration of the substantive sentence; and such orders will be subject to the same rights of appeal and revision as if they formed part of the substantive sentence to which they are attached. Presidency Magistrates and District and Sub-divisional Magistrates are empowered, on the application of the person concerned, to accept security in lieu of surveillance, and also to release him from surveillance when this can safely be done. The details of the rules as to the supervision of persons under surveillance must necessarily differ to some extent according to the local circumstances and requirements of each Province. Accordingly, it is not proposed to include any general rules in the Bill; each Local Government will have power to frame such rules for its own territories; but, in order to secure some uniformity of principle, the lines on which such rules should proceed are generally indicated in section 12, and the rules will require the previous sanction of the Government of India. Finally, section 15 extends the obligation which section 45 of the Code imposes upon village headmen, land-holders and others, to report the movements of bad characters, so as to include reports as to the movements of persons ordered to be kept under surveillance.

" The necessity for some such provisions as these was strongly pressed on us by Sir James Lyall, lately the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, than whom no one had a more intimate acquaintance with the needs of that Province. He urged that the provisions of the Code regarding the taking of security from bad characters (the only preventive measure recognized by the law) had proved an inefficient substitute for a system of authorized surveillance, and that it was necessary that they should be supplemented by an enactment legalizing the surveillance of habitual offenders. The improvement in communications effected in late years, he said, had not only encouraged and facilitated the operations of those classes of criminals who are in the habit of leaving their homes to commit crimes at a distance and returning with their plunder, but had also greatly diminished the deterrent effect of an order to furnish security for good behaviour. It will, however, be better that I should quote his exact words, or those used by his Secretary under his instructions:—

' The development of railways, and the increased means of procuring employment at distance from their homes, has rendered the loose characters more able and willing to leave their villages and take up their abodes elsewhere. The deterrent effect of being placed on security has therefore been much impaired. The offender is not bound thereby to remain in any particular locality, and neither by inclination nor by the difficulty of communications is he precluded from seeking new scenes wherein to indulge his criminal propensities. The result is that old offenders on security resume their careers of crime in places distant from their homes—perhaps in other Provinces—where their antecedents are unknown, and where, even if they are convicted, a light sentence alone may be meted out to them. Again, security for good behavior cannot be taken at the time of conviction; separate proceedings have to be instituted subsequently. District Magistrates in the Punjab have multifarious duties and are hard-worked, and the result is that the power is only used intermittently.

‘It is essential,’ in Sir James Lyall’s opinion, ‘that the police and Magistrates should have the means of knowing how certain classes of criminals are conducting themselves after their release from jail, and this end can only be attained effectively by the establishment of a system of surveillance which shall disclose their movements to the officers responsible for the administration of the criminal law.’

“It is to those proposals of the Punjab Government that this Bill endeavours to give effect, with such modifications as appeared desirable, having regard to the replies received from other Local Governments and the High Court of Calcutta. The only persons who can be subjected to surveillance are persons of so bad a character that under the existing law they can be required to furnish security, or persons who have been judicially declared to be habitual offenders.

“The Governments of Bombay and Bengal, however, would go beyond these proposals and legalize surveillance over unconvicted persons who are merely suspected to be bad characters. The Government of Bombay report that the most experienced district officers believe it to be impossible to secure any effective control of habitual offenders without legalizing the roll-call system for the surveillance of unconvicted bad characters, and these will not be reached by the Bill though they form the classes from which the habitual offenders in the jails are recruited. And my hon’ble friend the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal would like to frame rules for two classes of bad characters—convicted ‘habitual offenders’ and unconvicted ‘suspected persons.’ The latter class would be subject to less stringent regulations than ‘habitual offenders,’ but rules should, he thinks, be made for their registration, and for domiciliary visits, searching of their houses and information as to their movements. These remarks come from eminent authorities and are entitled to the highest consideration, but, as at present advised, the Government of India are even more impressed with the obvious objections to the maintenance of anything like public registers of mere suspects or the establishment of a system of legalized supervision over unconvicted persons. The Government are unwilling to go beyond the principle of the English Statute, which only permits interference in the case of convicted criminals. The police in India, as in all other countries, must of course maintain secret registers of suspects, and keep a watch over the movements of persons supposed to be bad characters, but we are not prepared to give them power to interfere with or harass such persons, as we fear that such power would be very constantly and grievously abused.

“The next part of the Bill comprises three sections, 16 to 18, and has been described by me as modifying the procedure for the trial and adequate punishment of habitual offenders. The principal provision under this head is contained in section 16, and consists in the amendment of section 348 of the Criminal Procedure Code upon the lines of the section which immediately follows it. The present section 348 provides that when a person who has been convicted of an offence punishable under Chapter XII or XVII of the Penal Code (offences relating to coinage, the stamp law and property) with imprisonment for a term of three years or upwards is again accused of any such offence, he shall ordinarily, if the Magistrate before whom he is accused considers him to be a habitual offender, be committed to the Court of Session. The result is that almost every petty case in which the accused is an old offender has to be sent up for trial at the sessions, not because of any inherent difficulty or importance of the offence itself, but simply because, in view of the bad character of the offender, the Magistrate cannot inflict on him an adequate punishment. But section 349, which, as I have said, immediately follows, proceeds on very different lines: it provides that, when an inferior Magistrate has found a person guilty of an offence over which he has jurisdiction, he may, if he considers such punishment as he can himself inflict to be inadequate, send up the prisoner to his superior with his recommendation for an enhanced sentence.

"Many years ago, in 1885, when the Criminal Procedure Code was last under revision, the High Court of Madras suggested that the procedure as between Magistrate and Sessions Court in section 348 should be assimilated to that laid down in section 349 as between inferior and superior Magistrates. But here again I should prefer to quote the Court's own words and the reasons which it gave for its proposal. The Registrar wrote.—

'With regard to the amendment in procedure which the High Court desires to see adopted, I am to say that under section 349, Criminal Procedure Code, a Magistrate of the second or third class can now convict of an offence cognizable by himself, even though the offender seems to deserve a more severe punishment than he is empowered to inflict, and may refer the case to the District or Divisional Magistrate to whom he is subordinate to pass sentence. All the reasons which induced the Legislature to make this provision apply, the High Court considers, with even greater force to those cases which become cognizable by the Court of Session, merely because the offender has been previously convicted and seems to be an habitual criminal. The sessions divisions, I am to point out, are in this Presidency very large, and it entails a great hardship on the witnesses, in cases of petty theft and the like, that they should have to attend the sessions simply because the accused is an old offender. The Court believes that this liability often leads to a failure of justice and the illegal compounding of offences.'

"Precisely similar reasons have been advanced by the Chief Commissioner of Burma also, and he has added that Magistrates themselves are disinclined to put the Sessions Court to the trouble of trying cases of a petty character, merely because a long sentence is demanded owing to the antecedents of the accused. The result of course is that Magistrates too often dispose of such cases themselves, notwithstanding their inability to pass a sufficiently deterrent sentence.

"The arguments in support of this proposal seem to the Government of India to be entitled to much weight. The proposal also commended itself to the Select Committee before whom it came originally, and I understand that the only reason why it was not incorporated in the Bill which became Act X of 1886 was that this would have necessitated a republication of that Bill and its postponement for nearly a twelvemonth. The cases contemplated are, as a rule, in no way complicated, the evidence is generally of a simple character, and a committal to sessions is necessary merely because it is beyond the power of a Magistrate to pass an adequate sentence. The existing procedure causes great delay and inconvenience, and exposes the parties and witnesses to the trouble of attendance in Court on two occasions. Under the revised section they will be relieved from the second attendance unless the Sessions Judge finds some defect in the proceedings, or sees reason to doubt the correctness of the conviction, in which case he will recall and re-examine such of the parties or witnesses as he may think fit, or do whatever else may be necessary to ensure justice being done.

"It has been suggested by the High Court of Calcutta as a preferable course that such cases should be tried by the District Magistrate, and that he should be empowered under section 30 or section 34 of the Code to pass adequate sentences. There are two objections to this alternative. I think it is undesirable to give such high powers to Magistrates in settled districts, and it seems much better that cases of this description should go before a purely judicial officer. Moreover, I apprehend that it would not meet the difficulties which led the Madras Judges to propose the alteration of the law. Their main object was to save witnesses from being brought from great distances into head-quarters, and from the temptation to hush up cases in order to save themselves such hardship and inconvenience. But the District Magistrate is himself at head-quarters; or when he is not at head-quarters he will be on circuit, and this would entail on the witnesses a still further journey in search of him. Moreover, our district officers are already overworked in many places, and could not undertake the heavy additional duty of trying all the cases now in question. The opportunity, however, has been taken by section 17 of the Bill so to modify section 349 of the Criminal Procedure Code as to permit such District Magistrates as have been invested with powers under section 30 or 40 of the Code to sentence up to the limit of their powers on a reference by Subordinate Magistrates. And, following the same principle, it is proposed by section 18 to give the High Court a wider discretion as to the enhancement of sentences which come before them on revision. At present, in a case which has been tried by a Magistrate, even a High Court cannot inflict a heavier punishment than two years' imprisonment, however inadequate such a sentence may be to the gravity of the offence.

"I now come to the last section of the Bill, which is of quite an exceptional character and is only to be put in force in special localities and by a special notification. It is designed for the repression of certain offences against property in cases in which they can be traced to a particular locality but the offenders cannot be identified owing to a combination of the inhabitants to withhold information which would lead to their detection. In such cases the Magistrate will be empowered, after due inquiry and subject to confirmation by the Commissioner, to assess compensation on the residents of the locality generally, excluding any persons or classes of persons whom he finds to have been innocent of complicity with the offence. This provision is also taken from the same draft Bill sent up by the Punjab Government. In submitting his proposals the Lieutenant-Governor pleaded earnestly for legislation on these lines to meet the numerous cases of cattle-poisoning and incendiarism in which the offenders could not be traced. After pointing out that the number of cases of serious mischief annually reported in the Punjab had risen considerably in late years, he added:—

'This matter engaged the attention of the Commissioner of the Rawalpindi Division so long ago as 1883, in which year he advocated the expediency of enacting that, in the case of persistent want of detection of the crimes of cattle-poisoning and rick-burning, the village or patwari-circle where such undetected crimes had been committed should be ordered to pay the value of the property destroyed * * * *

* Offences of this nature are very rife in certain parts of the Punjab, while the detection of them is most difficult, not only because it is not easy to produce satisfactory evidence in Court of a crime which can be committed by one person on a dark night, but also because, although the perpetrator is often known to the villagers, no one dares to come forward and give evidence lest a similar fate befall his own property.'

"The need for such legislation does not seem to be anywhere so strong as in the Punjab; but nevertheless it appears expedient to take power to recover compensation in this manner, and that not only in cases of mischief but also in cases of dacoity and cattle-lifting, which frequently, and specially in border districts, partake of the nature of clan offences. As I have already stated, the section can only be put into force under exceptional circumstances and in particular tracts where the crimes mentioned prevail to a serious extent. There must also be a combination of a clan or other large section of the inhabitants to screen those who commit such crimes. And in no case can the section be applied to any locality without the express previous sanction of the Governor General in Council."

"As precedents for such legislation I may refer to section 37 of Bombay Regulation XII of 1827, and to the provisions of the Police Acts, which sanction the quartering of additional or punitive police at the charge of the inhabitants in disturbed or dangerous localities. I understand too that Statutes providing for the levy of compensation in similar cases have been passed for Ireland, and that their working has been attended with good results.'

BANKERS' BOOKS EVIDENCE BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER moved for leave to introduce a Bill to extend the provisions of the Bankers' Books Evidence Act, 1891, to the Books of Post Offices carrying on Savings Bank or Money Order Business. He said :—" When the Bankers' Books Evidence Bill was before the Select Committee in 1891, the Committee were unanimously of opinion that the books of post offices carrying on this business were public documents and that they came under the provisions of the Evidence Act which applies to public documents, and on that ground, and on that ground alone, they were not expressly mentioned in the Bill which has become the Bankers' Books Evidence Act. However, the Director General of the Post Office was not satisfied that the view taken by the Select Committee on that occasion was right, and he referred the question to a gentleman of considerable eminence in the legal profession in this country, who has expressed a direct opinion, without giving any reasons whatever for it, that that view was wrong. I am not inclined to enter into a discussion either with Mr. Fanshawe, or with the eminent counsel who has advised him, and I think that on the whole, without for a moment admitting that the view taken by the Select Committee in 1891 was erroneous, it is better to get rid of the question by introducing a short Bill to include expressly the words which Mr. Fanshawe desires and which he wishes to be embodied in the Act. The object of the Bill which it is now proposed to introduce is to effect that purpose."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER also introduced the Bill.

GOVERNMENT TENANTS (PUNJAB) BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. ELSMIE moved for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the grant of Special Tenancies in certain Government lands in the Punjab. He said :—" Many thousands of acres of Government land, commanded by the new Chenab Canal, are now being allotted to peasant cultivators gathered from various parts of the Punjab, and in future years, as irrigation schemes are further developed, the work of colonization will, it is hoped, be greatly extended. Hitherto, the grant of waste lands to cultivators has generally been made by written leases often involving formal registration. This system has been found to be inconvenient and unsuitable to the class of men who come in as settlers. The late Colonel Wace, my predecessor in the office of Financial Commissioner in the Punjab, expressed the opinion, some years ago, that the conditions of canal tenancies should be carefully defined, that registers of tenures should be opened, and that settlers should take their holdings by entries in those registers, such entries to be evidence of the nature of the tenancies. The Local Government and the Government of India have adopted Colonel Wace's suggestion, and the object of the present Bill is to give legal effect to it, opportunity being taken at the same time to provide for one or two other matters, such as the conditions under which a tenant may transfer his rights, and the means by which sums due to Government from a tenant in respect of his tenancy may be recovered. Sections 4, 5, 6 and 7 of the Bill contain provisions enabling the Government to lay down the conditions under which it may be willing to grant to settlers lands situated on canal tracts, and prescribing the procedure under which, by certain duly signed entries in registers and without any further formality, a tenancy on those conditions will be created in favour of the settlers. The effect of these sections will be somewhat analogous to that of section 111 of the general Punjab Tenancy Act, No. XVI of 1887, which provides that the entry of an agreement by a revenue-officer in a record-of-rights or an annual record shall have the force of a personally executed agreement between landlord and tenant. Section 8 of the present Bill corresponds for the most part to section 56 of the Punjab Tenancy Act. It is intended to prevent the voluntary transfer or compulsory sale of the rights of a tenant without the sanction of his landlord, i.e., the Government; the actual duty of giving or withholding sanction being delegated to the Financial Commissioner. In conclusion I have only to say that, as the proposed law will not affect the rights of Government or private persons without their consent, there seems to be no reason why the wish of the Local Government should not be complied with, viz., that the Bill should be passed at an early date so as to facilitate the location of tenants on lands which are now ready for cultivation."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. ELSMIE also introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble MR. ELSMIE also moved that the Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons be published in the Gazette of India in English, and in the Punjab Government Gazette in English and in such other languages as the Local Government thinks fit.

INLAND EMIGRATION ACT, 1882, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Inland Emigration Act, 1882. He said:—

"Most of the Hon'ble Members of Council are aware that Act I of 1882 is only the last of a series of laws framed for regulating the system of emigration to Assam, and for the control of labour on the tea-gardens of that province. The first of the series was Bengal Act III of 1863, which dealt only with the conditions under which emigration should be carried on, leaving the relations of employers and labourers to be governed by the ordinary law. This state of things was found unsatisfactory for sanitary and other reasons, and in 1865 it became necessary, in the interests of the labourers as well as of the employers, to pass an Act [VI (B. C.) of 1865] establishing what is substantially the present system of officially controlled labour in Assam. The subsequent Acts [II (B. C.) of 1870 and VII (B. C.) of 1873] combined, with improvements, the provisions of the Acts of 1863 and 1865, and each was a complete labour and emigration law. In 1880 and 1881, proposals for the amendment of the Act of 1873 were carefully considered by the Government of India, in communication with the Bengal Government and the Chief Commissioner of Assam, and, as the result, a Commission was appointed which drew up the Bill subsequently passed as Act I of 1882. As this Bill affected Provinces other than Bengal (Assam having itself become a separate Province in 1874), it was passed in the Council of the Governor General and not in the Bengal Council.

"The labour system then established was based on the fact that the employer incurs heavy expenditure in importing emigrant labourers to Assam, and in making sanitary, medical and other arrangements on the garden for their health and comfort, while no civil suit would give him an adequate remedy against persons of the classes to which these labourers belong. The Act accordingly laid down a system of contracts under which both employer and the labourer are bound under criminal penalties to fulfil their respective obligations. On the one hand, certain disciplinary powers are given to the employer, and, on the other, ample powers of inspection and control are retained in the hands of Government. The system, in short, gives to the employer the penal contract as security for his outlay, while it ensures to the labourer complete protection by Government.

"And Act I of 1882 made important changes in the system of emigration no less than in the system of labour; it permitted free emigration—a subject to which I shall have to refer at greater length later on; it established local contracts which might be entered into within the labour-districts, either by newly arrived immigrants or by resident coolies; and it raised the maximum period of contract under the special law from three to five years.

"On the Act being reported to the Secretary of State, he took exception to this extension of the maximum period of contract, and, having regard to certain matters, chiefly the reported unhealthiness of parts of the Assam Province, he asked for a special report after three years, with a view to the consideration of the possibility of dispensing with exceptional legislation regarding labour-contracts in the tea-districts. This report was submitted in 1886, and in reply, while laying down the policy that such exceptional legislation was only temporary and must not be maintained longer than is absolutely necessary in the interests of both the classes concerned, the Secretary of State agreed with the Government of India that the time had not yet arrived when penal contracts could safely be abandoned. At the same time he desired that the working of the Act should be narrowly watched, and a further special report submitted after another three years.

"As the time for the preparation of the second special report was approaching, the Bengal Government brought to notice certain serious evils in the system of what is called 'free' emigration; that is to say, emigration conducted outside the Act, where the labourers go up to the labour-districts as 'free labourers,' not yet under any contract. The evils complained of were, first, the prevalence of abuses and malpractices committed by professional recruiters working under the 'free' system without a license. And, secondly, the extremely unsatisfactory conditions as to sanitation under which the emigrants travelled from their homes in Bengal to the labour-districts. A serious outbreak of cholera occurred along the emigrant routes in 1887-88, and to prevent the recurrence of such evils the Government of India sanctioned the enactment of the Bengal Sanitary Act, I (B. C.) of 1889. This Act empowers the Bengal Government to prescribe routes and halting-places for free emigrants, and to frame rules for their health and comfort, as well as for their medical examination and inspection in transit.

"Thorough enquiry was then made both in Bengal and Assam into the whole subject of coolie emigration, and into the conditions of labour on the tea-plantations. The question has for a long time been under the consideration of the Government of India, in communication with the two Local Governments concerned, and the amendments in the law which have now been formulated are embodied in the Bill which I am about to introduce, and have received the general sanction of the Secretary of State.

"The result of this protracted investigation has been not only to show that the continuance of the labour system established in 1882 is essential for the well-being of the tea industry, which has done so much towards colonizing and opening out the rising Province of Assam, and in the prosperity of which the Government of India and all of us have a great and natural interest, but also to bear out the opinion, expressed again and again by successive Chief Commissioners and other impartial observers, that the condition of the labourers on tea-gardens is far superior to that of the masses in the districts from which they emigrate. It has also been made clear that the time has not yet come when labourers can be left to emigrate of their own accord and at their own charges; that without the security of the present system employers could not risk large expenditure in assisting them to emigrate: and that therefore the continuance of the system established in 1882 is still required as a means towards drawing off the surplus population of the recruiting areas and opening out the sparsely peopled districts of Assam. The system has worked eminently to the advantage of the emigrants and in a manner on the whole creditable to the body of planters; and the Government of India, after prolonged and anxious consideration, have come to the conclusion that there are only two serious evils which have to be remedied. These are, first, abuses and malpractices in recruitment, and, secondly, the high rate of sickness and mortality on the gardens, chiefly among newly arrived emigrants.

"I have gone into the history of the matter at this length in order that the objects with which the Government of India are introducing this amending Bill may be easily apprehended. Our first and foremost object is to provide all practicable safeguards for the detection and prevention of malpractices in recruitment ; secondly, we think it necessary to give the Chief Commissioner and his local officers complete powers to enforce proper sanitary measures on tea-estates, and to cancel the obligation of labourers to work or remain on unhealthy gardens. As I stated in some instructions recently issued to the Chief Commissioner of Assam, 'unhealthy gardens require to be urgently dealt with, and employers must clearly understand that failure to preserve their labourers in health will disentitle them to all the benefits of the Act.' In the third place, although we are convinced that the maintenance of the present contract system is still essential in the interests of good administration and of all the classes concerned, we think it possible to make some slight advance towards a system of free labour, and to restrict to some extent the operations of the penal contracts. These then are the three main objects which we have in view, and I will now proceed to explain how the Bill deals with them respectively.

"Sections 11, 22, 24 and 26 of the Bill contain provisions directed against abuses in recruitment. It will be in the recollection of the Council that the question of these abuses attracted considerable public attention four or five years ago. There is no doubt that under the name of free emigration things had been allowed to get into a somewhat lax state in the recruiting districts. The class of arkatis—unlicensed professional recruiters—had become rampant, and the executive had failed to fully utilize its legal powers for their control. Frequent complaints were made of labourers, and even large batches of labourers, being enticed away or fraudulently induced to proceed to Assam; and, indeed, it was alleged in some cases that large gangs had been forcibly taken there against their will. I do not doubt that in some cases some slight amount of force had been used in the recruiting districts, but I have been unable to find any well substantiated case, and I cannot bring myself to believe that any case occurred in which any emigrant, and much less any large body of emigrants, had been forced to go against their will as far as Assam. At all events, after full deliberation, we arrived at the conclusion that the abuses in recruitment had been much exaggerated, both as to their character and prevalence; that recruitment by violence could be readily and adequately prevented by the police or punished by the Magistrate under the ordinary law; and that the only forms of abuses requiring anything like special treatment were (1) recruitment by misrepresenting the advantages of emigration to Assam, and (2) the voluntary resort to emigration by women and young people with a view to escape, for some reason or other, from their family connections. Even these abuses must be inseparable from any system of emigration on a large scale; but, so far as they are aggravated by the evil advice and interference of arkatis, we agreed with the Bengal Government that the strongest measures for their suppression would be justified.

"But the remedies for these evils, proposed by the Bengal Government, were a reversion to the system of officially controlled emigration which was in force under the earlier Labour Acts, the abolition of the present system of placing emigrants under contract at Dhubri, and the restriction of local contracts to emigrants proved to have lived at least two years in Assam. The essential part of this scheme was that every emigrant with whom it was proposed to execute any contract under the Act should be registered by a public officer at some place in the recruiting districts before proceeding to Assam.

"The reasons which led the Government of India to reject this proposal have been fully stated in the published correspondence. Briefly summed up, they are that a system of initial registration would be expensive, vexatious and altogether alien to the principle of free emigration, which for the last twenty years we have sought to encourage; that there would be serious difficulties in discriminating between emigrants who had been two years in Assam and those who had not; and lastly, and to my mind this by itself was sufficiently conclusive, that initial registration would be an ineffectual remedy against those abuses which really prevailed, and which alone called for special measures of repression—against those cases in which the labourer, though under the influence of enticement or misrepresentation, is nevertheless a willing emigrant at the time of registration and himself desirous of emigrating.

"The measures by which the Government of India preferred to combat these malpractices were (1) that more energetic executive action should be taken in the recruiting districts; (2) that constant and vigorous precautions should be adopted along the line of march to the labour-districts; (3) that the inspection system in Assam should be strengthened, and more complete remedies applied whenever emigrants were found to have been taken up to Assam wrongfully.

"Some action has already been taken under each of these heads. It will be supplemented by the provisions of this Bill. The first and second heads chiefly concern the Bengal Government. I have already mentioned that in 1889 a Sanitary Act was passed, authorizing the Local Government to make rules for the sanitary regulation of the journey of free emigrants to Assam. By enabling the Government to prescribe routes and halting-places for free emigrants, and to frame rules for their examination and inspection by medical and executive officers during their journey, this Act has materially fortified the hands of the local authorities in detecting and preventing malpractices in recruitment. Further, a special police-officer was for some years engaged in inquiring into offences of this character, and an attitude of vigilance generally was enjoined on district officers. The result is that such malpractices have now been reduced within very narrow limits. His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor has reported that altogether, during the year 1891, 161 complaints in connection with emigration were made in the Bhagulpore and Chota Nagpore Divisions, which are the principal recruiting grounds; but in 146 of these cases the coolie emigrants themselves were the accused persons, the alleged wrong-doers, and it was only in 13 cases that they were the accusers or alleged themselves to have been injured. In view of these facts my hon'ble friend the Lieutenant-Governor has decided that the deputation of a special police-officer is no longer necessary, but he will insist on the present attitude of vigilance being maintained by district officers, and he has under consideration the revision of the rules under the Act, with the special object of facilitating the prevention of abuses.

"Turning now to Assam, emigrants to the districts of the Assam Valley travel from Dhubri as Act-labourers, and very complete and elaborate arrangements are already in force for their supervision in transit. To Sylhet and Cachar labourers travel chiefly as free emigrants. The Bengal Act of 1892 has been extended to those districts, rules have been framed under it and the arrangements for controlling free emigrants in transit are very similar to those made in Bengal. Moreover, the present Bill will supply several defects in the arrangements authorized by the existing law. The system of executing contracts at Dhubri is popular with the emigrants themselves, but it was hardly contemplated by the framers of Act I. It will now be placed on a legal footing. The powers of inspecting officers have been greatly strengthened by the Bill. Power has been given to the Chief Commissioner to cancel contracts in cases where there is reason to believe that a labourer has been illegally or fraudulently recruited, and complete arrangements have been made for repatriating to their native districts at the cost of the employer of any emigrants who may have been wrongfully taken up to Assam. In future the check over malpractices in recruitment will be as complete as it is possible to make it, and I venture to say that there need no longer be any apprehension on the part of the public in this respect. What was wanted primarily was not to revert to the antiquated and vexatious system of twenty years ago but simply more vigorous executive action. In so far as the law was wanting, the defects will now be supplied.

"The prevention of malpractices in recruitment being thus provided for, the next point was to devise practicable remedies for the two evils which we found to exist in the labour system in Assam, viz, (1) insufficient inspection, especially sanitary inspection; and (2) the high death-rate on tea gardens. The first of these defects is one which can be met by executive action, and in a recent letter, which has been already made public, the Chief Commissioner has worked out an excellent and well-considered system of inspection, the principal feature of which is that the bulk of the inspection, and the responsibility for the sanitary condition of tea-gardens, will fall on the Civil Surgeon of the district.

"The provisions of the Act which enable the Administration to bring pressure to bear on the owners of unhealthy gardens, in which the death-rate is high, are contained in sections 128 to 133 of the Act. A special chapter is devoted to unhealthy gardens in the annual labour report, in which the measures taken to enforce sanitary inspection are described at length. The law empowers the authorities, if an estate appears to be unfit for the residence of labourers by reason of its general unhealthiness or of a high mortality, either to convene a committee to hold a sort of inquest on the garden or to make an inquiry through the chief medical officer of the district. In either case, if the estate is found to be really unfit for the residence of labourers, the authorities are empowered to cancel their obligation to labour on it. It must be admitted that the power to cancel the contracts of labourers on unhealthy gardens, or, as it is called, to close the garden to Act-labourers or to any particular class of Act-labourers, had not been exercised to the extent it might, and even should, have been; we have, however, taken measures to remedy this, and will insist on these provisions being more vigorously worked in future. Section 18 of the Bill amends the sections in question by conferring more complete power on the Local Government and district officers to hold the requisite inquiry and to close a garden to Act-labour.

‘It is often urged that the high death-rate on tea-estates, which without doubt is, as a matter of fact, almost entirely confined to newly arrived immigrants who have been less than two years in the Assam Province, is due to the fact that coolies of inferior physique, or as they are called ‘bad batches,’ unfit to stand the Assam climate and garden-work, are sent up by contractors and agents. As the law at present stands, a medical examination to test a labourer’s fitness to reside and labour in Assam is not enforced and in the case of coolies recruited by contractors not even recognised. In the case of sirdari coolies the Act provides that, if an employer requires such a certificate, the registering-officer shall not permit the labourer to execute his contract until the certificate has been produced. Section 9 of the Bill makes a similar provision in the case of contractors’ coolies. It will thus, in future, be open to an employer to satisfy himself as to the physical condition of a coolie before he finally contracts with him, and to exclude ‘bad batches’ and labourers of inferior physique; but, whether he avails himself of this provision or not, he will be held responsible for the results, and the coercive provisions of the Act will be put in force rigorously against him.

“The late Mr. Quinton recommended that medical examination with a view to ascertain a labourer’s fitness to labour in the labour-districts should be made compulsory in the case of contractors’ coolies; but we have not been able to accept this suggestion. Under the earlier Acts the system of compulsory medical examination was in force, but in 1882 it was found necessary to place the responsibility for the physical fitness of the labourer absolutely on the employers. The system of Government responsibility was abandoned, partly as impossible under a system of free emigration, but chiefly because even under a system of officially controlled emigration it had been found to be unworkable. Even under that system, complaints as to new labourers being physically unfit were by no means uncommon, and there were difficulties as regards the identification of the coolies—excuses as to them being changed en route, or having left in sound health and fallen ill in Assam, being generally made with the result that reference to the emigration authorities in Bengal were almost always inconclusive in showing where the fault lay. Moreover, as free emigration has now become firmly established, it is impossible any longer for the Government to undertake responsibility for the medical examination of the coolies, for there would be no means of preventing a medically rejected coolie, if he so wished and if the employer agreed, from going up to the garden as a free labourer and entering into a local contract there. Indeed, this often happens in the case of persons who, though themselves unfit to labour on a tea-garden, accompany their friends and relations to the labour-districts.

“I come now to the third group of amendments, those undertaken with a view to restrict the penal contract system, as far as this can safely be done consistently with the encouragement of emigration and the well-being of the tea industry. It must be clearly understood that in proposing these changes no reflection is cast on persons connected with the tea industry. We are simply carrying out our declared and consistent policy of gradually restricting the scope of Government control over the emigration and labour system. The Government of India gladly acknowledge the just and considerate treatment which, as reported by successive Chief Commissioners, the labourers have, with rare exceptions, received from planters as a body; but we have always held that exceptional legislation in respect of labour-contracts on tea-gardens can only have a temporary application, and opportunity must be taken from time to time to prepare the way for its abandonment. In accordance with this policy the decision of the Government of India on the entire labour question has proceeded on two principles: (1) that a labour system based on contracts on the lines sanctioned by Act I of 1882, though necessary under existing circumstances in Assam, as well as in other parts of Her Majesty's dominions outside India, where the conditions of labour are similar, such as the Straits, Ceylon and other colonies, is not one which should be permanently maintained; (2) that its abandonment should be effected, not by any premature or sudden dislocation of existing arrangements, but by facilitating and encouraging the use of such methods as will lead to, or prepare the way for, the gradual withdrawal of Government interference in contracts between employers and labourers. The Legislature has recognised since 1873 that the development of free emigration is the method best calculated to lead to the desired result, and for this reason we have always been anxious to encourage emigration conducted outside the legal trammels of the Act. A system of free or non-Act recruitment was for the first time sanctioned by the Bengal Act of that year in the hope that it would gradually lead to a system of free or non-Act labour, but owing to certain defects in the Act it failed to give the desired stimulus to free emigration. These defects were more or less remedied by the Act of 1882. Since then, pari passu with, and in consequence of, the development of free recruitment there has been a gradual tendency towards the abandonment, through natural disuse, of those parts of the labour system which it is desired gradually to abolish. Considerable progress in the direction of the establishment of free labour has already been made in the Surma Valley. In the Assam Valley Districts the progress has been less, and only the earlier stages of the development have been reached, in the expansion of privately assisted emigration under the system of Dhubri contracts. In accordance with the principles which I have just stated, we have determined to maintain (with improvements of detail) the present system of Dhubri contracts, as necessary for the Assam Valley in this intermediate stage of development; but all our other amendments of Act I are directed to facilitating the disuse or abolition of the system of penal contracts on which it rests. I have already referred to free emigration in connection with the Bengal Government's proposal for compulsory initial registration, and, as no change is proposed in this respect, all I need say here is that we think it most important that free emigration should be maintained, subject to the provision of proper safeguards for the prevention of abuse in recruitment and for the sanitary control of the journeys of free emigrants. But with respect to the labour system the time seems to have come when some curtailment of penal contracts may safely be made; with this view we proposed to the Chief Commissioner that the maximum term of first agreements should be reduced from five to three years, and that local contracts with persons other than newly imported emigrants should be restricted to one year.

"The first of these changes will affect the Assam Valley alone, for in Sylhet and Cachar contracts are rarely entered into for terms exceeding three years. The Government of India regret to find that this proposal has not been favourably received by employers of labour, but they still consider that a three years' initial contract is sufficient for popular and well-managed gardens, and that, therefore, penal agreements for a longer term should no longer be permitted. In 1882 the period of contract was raised to five years, on the ground that a three years' term was insufficient to enable the planter to recoup the cost of importing the labourer and maintaining him during the period of acclimatisation, when he is most liable to sickness and inefficient as a worker. This ground, no doubt, still holds good to some extent, but there is abundant evidence in the special report submitted by the late Mr. Quinton that emigrants, when well treated, do not ordinarily leave their gardens on the expiration of the term of their initial engagements, but renew their contracts from time to time till they are in a position to return to their homes, or, as more frequently happens, to engage in trade or cultivation in the labour-districts independently of the garden. It is further important to bear in mind that the five years' contract has chiefly taken root among labourers recruited under the arkati system and placed under agreement at Dhubri; it thus gives an undesirable advantage to arkatis and professional recruiters. The Bill accordingly provides for reducing the maximum period of first engagement to three years.

"As to the restriction of contracts entered into with local and time-expired coolies to one year, I have always felt very great doubt. There would certainly be great difficulty in working the restriction owing to the difficulty of distinguishing between new emigrants and those who have been for some time in the province, and it would be impossible to hold a minute inquiry in each case as to whether a person offering himself for engagement is really a new emigrant or not. The Chief Commissioner reports that this difficulty, though not insuperable, would be very great, and would cause much annoyance and harassment to the parties concerned. It also appears that employers of labour are strongly opposed to the absolute restriction of such contracts to one year. It is accordingly proposed to limit the contract to one year only when it is entered into under section 111 between employer and labourer without the intervention of a public officer, but to allow the full maximum of three years in the case of contracts under section 112 executed before a Magistrate or Inspector. Section 11 of the Bill gives effect to this conclusion. It seems reasonable and will, I hope, prove acceptable to the planting community.

"The Government of India are not prepared to go further at present in the direction of imposing new restrictions on the labour contract system. But, when railway communication has been completed, it may be found practicable to remove the Sylhet District (and possibly also Cachar, or some parts of it) from the operation of the special law, and even to revise the arrangements in force in the Assam Valley.

"I have now explained the chief amendments contained in the Bill and the reasons for them. There are several other minor improvements of detail provided for, but I do not think it necessary to trouble the Council at present with any further discussion of the innumerable points connected with this intricate subject. The minor details may be left to be considered by a Select Committee as soon as the opinions of the persons most interested have been elicited."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS also introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS also moved that the Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons be published in the Gazette of India in English, and in the Port St. George Gazette, the Calcutta Gazette, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Government Gazette, the Central Provinces Gazette and the Assam Gazette in English and in such other languages as the Local Governments think fit.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Thursday, the 19th January, 1893.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, December 31st, 1892.

During the first portion of the week under review, the weather remained quiet throughout the Indian region. Pressure was high in the north—more particularly on the 28th—and low over Malabar, Ceylon and the south of the Bay, and the winds were anti-cyclonic. The weather was generally very fine, though on the 25th and 26th some showers occurred in the extreme south, and on the 27th over the Central Provinces. On the 29th a rapid barometric fall occurred over the Indus valley, and on the 30th a considerable depression was shown over Rajputana with its centre near Bikanir. It had occasioned a well-marked cyclonic circulation of the wind over North-Western India and given rain to a large number of stations. On the 31st the barometer was rising with great rapidity over North-Western India, and the depression which had moved eastward had almost filled up. Rain, in many cases heavy, was reported from the North-Western Province and the Punjab, and snow from the hill stations.

The chart of the 25th showed a general but slight rise of pressure—a large area of high readings overlay Northern and Central India, while readings were low off the west coast of the Peninsula and over the south of the Bay. The wind directions were fairly normal and the force generally moderate or light. The weather was generally fine, though cloudy in the north-west, but rain had fallen in the extreme south. Negapatam had received over 2 inches and Tinnevely, Wellington, Trevandrum, and Cochin light showers. On the 26th the barometer had begun to fall slowly, but the general conditions were unchanged. Calms prevailed over a large part of Northern India, but elsewhere the winds were practically unchanged. Showers of rain were reported from Wellington, Trevandrum, Cuddalore, and Negapatam, and of snow from Srinagar, but elsewhere the weather remained fine. The reports of the 27th showed that the barometer was changing by small amounts and the general distribution was practically unaltered. Calms prevailed over a large part of Northern India, northerly winds over the Bay area, and easterly winds in Western and Central India. Showers of rain have fallen at several central stations and of snow at Chaman and Srinagar, but the rain had ceased in the south of the Peninsula, and the weather was fine generally. On the 28th the barometer was rising almost everywhere, but the change was much greater over North-Western India than in the south, so that the pressure difference had increased considerably and gradients were steep. Northerly winds had appeared over a large part of Northern India, but in other parts of the Indian region the changes in the wind direction were small. The force was, however, inclined to rise. A few scattered showers were reported from the central parts of the country and had commenced at Quetta. On the 29th pressure was decreasing, except at a few places in Bombay. The fall was rapid over the Indus valley, and gradients were steep between Jacobabad and Karachi. Strong winds were reported from Lower Sind and from Chaman, and there was every sign of the appearance of a depression over North-Western India. Calms prevailed over the Punjab, north-westerly winds down the Gangetic plain, northerly winds over the Bay and south-easterly winds over the west of the Peninsula. Light rain was falling at Quetta, Chaman and Cuddalore, and the sky was very cloudy over North-Western India. On the 30th pressure was falling rapidly over North-Western India and changing irregularly elsewhere. The high pressure area, which had hitherto been shown over North-Western India, had been transferred eastward, and a well marked and moderately deep depression had appeared over Rajputana. The centre of the depression lay near Bikanir. Strongish cyclonic winds prevailed around the disturbance, but at Chaman the force had decreased. Rain was falling over Baluchistan, Sind, Katthiawar and parts of Rajputana, Central India, and the Punjab, but the amounts were nowhere large. On the 31st pressure was increasing almost everywhere, and the depression which had advanced eastward to the neighbourhood of Bahoraich had almost filled up. A high pressure area was re-established over North-Western India, and the general distribution was similar to that prevailing at the commencement of the week. The wind was still strong at Murree, but the cyclonic circulation over North-Western India had disappeared. Rain had fallen over the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab, and at some stations in Central India and Rajputana, and snow was reported from the hills. Rawal Pindi received 2.44 inches and other stations in the north of the Punjab amounts exceeding 1 inch.

Temperature.—The variations of temperature above and below the normal average have been considerable over a large part of the Indian region, but the final result for the whole week for the whole of India was only an excess of 0.4. The following tables show the variations of the mean temperature from the normal on each day of the week for the principal provinces of India —

MEAN FOR WHOLE INDIA . . . . .	-0.5	-0.4	+0.2	+0.4	+1.4	+1.3	+0.2	+0.4

In Burma there was a large and steady deficiency throughout the week ; in Northern India there was more or less deficiency during the early part of the week and an excess at the close, while over the central parts of the country and over the Peninsula there was a fairly steady excess throughout. In Burma the mean deficiency was nearly 4°0 and in the Central Provinces and Berar the mean excess was nearly 2°½, but in the other Provinces the variations from the normal were not large.

Rain.—The concluding table shows that rain was much more general throughout India than has been the case for several weeks past. The scattered showers in the south at the commencement of the week, the general showers over the Central Provinces in the middle of the week, and the general rain in the North-West at the close of the week, have resulted in rain being reported from a large part of the country. Rain has hence been received in twenty-two of the rainfall divisions, including the following regions —The whole of the Punjab, the greater part of the North-Western Provinces, Assam (Surma), the west and centre of the Central Provinces, Khandesh, Central India and Rajputana, Sind, the East Coast (south), and Madras (south-central and south). Of these 22 divisions, 8 viz Assam (Surma), Oudh (north and south), the North-Western Provinces (central), Berar, the Central Provinces (west and central), and Sind received less than one-tenth of an inch, but all the remaining divisions received effective rain. The amount received ranged from 1·02 inch in the Punjab (central and submontane) to 0·02 inch in the Central Provinces (west).

The third column of the table shows that the rainfall of the week has been considerably in excess of the normal over the Punjab and slightly in excess over Assam (Surma), the west of the North-Western Provinces, Sind, Central India and Rajputana. In all the other parts of India the rainfall was less than normal.

With the present week the rainfall period running from the middle of October to the end of the year comes to a close. The principal rainfall of this period is that which accompanies the north-east monsoon on the Madras coast ; but, under normal conditions there is also a moderate amount of rain over the west of the Peninsula, around the head of the Bay and in Burma. In other parts of India the total anticipated rainfall of the whole period is small and its absence of little consequence. The final column of the table shows that there has been a deficiency of rain in Burma (except Aikan), in the Assam Valley, in Central and North Bengal, in Behar, in the North-Western Provinces, in the north-west of Punjab, in Coorg, in Mysore, in Sind, in Rajputana (east), in the East Coast (south), and in Madras (south and south-central), and normal or excessive rain elsewhere. The principal area of deficiency owing to the importance of the normal fall is in the south of the Peninsula.

The following are the principal heavy total falls reported :—

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of Madras.—For week ending 7th January.—No rain except a few showers near coast from Madras to Pamban. Sowings almost completed except in Tinnevely, where they are still proceeding. No. 233, dated the 6th September, 1892.

From—The Government of India,

To—The Secretary of State for India.

We have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of the Despatch from Your Lordship's predecessor, No. 49 (Statistics), dated the 7th July 1892, forwarding copy of a Convention between Great Britain and Roumania, relating to Trade-marks, and enquiring whether we have any observations to make as to the participation therein of India.

2. The Convention is not open to any of the political objections which have induced us to refrain from assenting to India becoming a party to Commercial Treaties with other Powers; and although it is hardly likely to be of any practical use to us, still, as it may possibly become useful hereafter in the case of a British Indian subject trading in Roumania, and as it will impose no new obligation on us, we think that its stipulations may unobjectionably be made applicable to India.

4. (1.) Where a marriage according to the local law of a foreign country is valid by English law, then before the marriage is solemnized in that country under the Foreign Marriage Act, whether in an Embassy house or at a Consulate, the Marriage Officer must be satisfied either—

- (a) That both the parties are British subjects; or
- (b) If only one of the parties is a British subject, that the other is not a subject or citizen of the country; or
- (c) If one of the parties is a British subject, and the other a subject or citizen of the country, that sufficient facilities do not exist for the solemnization of the marriage in the foreign country in accordance with the law of that country.

(2) If a marriage officer, by reason of anything in this Article, refuses to solemnize or allow to be solemnized in his presence the marriage of any person requiring such marriage to be solemnized, that person shall have the right of appeal to a Secretary of State given by section 5 of the Foreign Marriage Act.

5. In the case of any marriage under the Foreign Marriage Act, if it appears to the marriage officer that the woman about to be married is a British subject, and that the man is an alien, he must be satisfied that the marriage will be recognized by the law of the foreign country to which the alien belongs.

6. The following modifications of the requirements of the Foreign Marriage Act as to residence and notice which appear to Her Majesty to be consistent with the observance of due precautions against the solemnization of clandestine marriages, shall have effect in cases where one only of the parties has dwelt within the district of the marriage officer:—

(1) A marriage may be solemnized under the Foreign Marriage Act in the official house of a marriage officer in whose district one of the parties has dwelt—

(a) If the marriage officer is satisfied that such notice as is mentioned below in Sub-Articles (3) and (4) of this Article, has been given of the intended marriage in the place where the other party has dwelt; or

(b) If a Secretary of State is satisfied that the intended marriage is not clandestine, and that adequate notice has been given, and gives permission for the same to be solemnized.

(2) In either case the oath, affirmation, or declaration under section 7 of the Foreign Marriage Act, shall, in addition to the matters specified in sub-sections (a) and (c) of that section, state that one of the parties has for three weeks immediately preceding had his or her usual place of abode within the district of the marriage officer, and further state the place where the party who has not dwelt within that district has, within three months immediately preceding, had for three consecutive weeks his or her usual place of abode, and the notice which has been given in that place during those three weeks.

(3) The notice to be given where the marriage is not solemnized with the special permission of a Secretary of State shall, if the party has dwelt in a foreign country, be given, entered, and posted up in the manner and during the period provided by the Foreign Marriage Act, in like manner as if the marriage were to be solemnized by or before a marriage officer in that country, and the marriage officer to whom the notice is given in that country shall, on payment of the proper fee, give a certificate that the notice has been so given and posted up, and that he is unaware of any impediment which should obstruct the solemnization of the marriage.

(4) If the party dwells in a place in the United Kingdom, the notice shall be given in the like manner and on payment of the like fee as if that party were about to be married in that place, and in England or Ireland shall be given to the Superintendent Registrar or Registrar, and in Scotland shall be given by proclamation of banns; and the Superintendent Registrar or Registrar shall deal with the notice and give a certificate for marriage in like manner and on payment of the like fee as in the case of a marriage in his district; and the Session Clerk of the parish in which the banns were proclaimed in Scotland shall, in like manner and on payment of the like fee as in the case of a marriage in his district, give a certificate of proclamation of such banns.

Consular Marriages.

7. For the purpose of marriages to be solemnized by or before a marriage officer who is also a Consul as defined by the Foreign Marriage Act, every place within the curtilage or precincts of the house in which the Consul is for the time being resident, or of the building which is for the time being used for the purpose of his office, shall be part of the official house of such marriage officer, and every place to which the public have ordinary access in such official house shall be deemed to be part of the office of such marriage officer.

Registration of Marriages by Foreign Law.

8. (1) A Consular officer shall not be required to attend at the solemnization of a marriage solemnized in accordance with the local law unless the marriage is solemnized at the place where he is appointed to reside, nor unless the proper fee has been previously paid to him.

(2) The Consular officer shall forthwith, after the solemnization of the marriage, register the marriage in duplicate in books furnished to him by the Registrar-General through a Secretary of State for the purpose, separate from any register books provided for marriages solemnized by him, and shall register the same in accordance with section 9 of the Foreign Marriage Act, save that if the person by whom the marriage has been solemnized declines to sign the same, the Consular officer shall enter the name of that person, and the fact that he declines to sign the same.

(3) The Consular officer shall transmit copies and the certificate and the book when filled in manner provided by section 10 of the Foreign Marriage Act.

(4) Nothing in this Order shall authorize any officer who is not a Consular officer to register a marriage solemnized in accordance with the local law.

(5) The expression "Consular officer" includes a Consul-General, Consul, Vice-Consul, Pro-Consul, Consular Agent, and any person for the time being authorized to discharge the duties of Consul-General, Consul, Vice-Consul, or Consular Agent.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By Dr. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is Rs 15 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made); packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs 6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year, but an eighth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

Weather Review of India for the week ending on Saturday, December 24th, 1892.

The showery weather which commenced over the south of the Peninsula at the close of the previous week continued in the extreme south during the week under review, but almost all other parts of India were entirely rainless. Pressure was steadily highest over the north and centre of India and lowest in the south of the Bay, in Ceylon and in Malabar. The pressure difference between the north and south, however, underwent considerable alterations, as the barometer alternately rose and fell in the north and south. Calms and variable breezes generally prevailed over the north and centre of the country, north-east winds over the Bay area and easterly winds in Western India. The force of the different currents increased and diminished as the pressure difference rose and fell. The mean temperature was low for the season in the Eastern Peninsula, while it was normal or a little in excess of the normal over India.

On the 18th pressure was rising over Tenasserim and a large part of the Peninsula and of the Central Provinces, and was falling elsewhere. Readings were highest over the east of Rajputana and lowest over Ceylon and the south of the Bay. Gradients were moderately steep, and the winds which exhibited an anticyclonic circulation around the high pressure arc blew freshly or strongly in several places. Showers of small amount had fallen over the extreme south of the Peninsula and at Goa and Colombo, but there was no rain elsewhere. On the following day, the 19th, pressure was decreasing except at the stations along the eastern half of the Himalayas. The general distribution of pressure was unchanged, but gradients were somewhat slighter, and the winds which maintained the same general directions had fallen lighter except around the Bay. Showers had fallen at Sibsagar and Colombo, but the weather was dry elsewhere. The chart of the 20th showed that the barometer had risen except in Baluchistan and at Deesa. The rise was brisk in the north and moderate in the south, consequently gradients had increased somewhat though the general distribution was unaltered. The winds had fallen light or to a calm over a large part of northern India but were unchanged elsewhere. Showers had fallen at Colombo, Tinnevely and Sibsagar. On the 21st the barometer was still rising, except at a few stations in North-Western India, in Tenasserim, and in Ceylon. Pressure remained highest in the north and lowest in the extreme south, and the pressure difference was greater than usual. Calms prevailed in the north and centre, north-east winds over the Bay and easterly winds in Western India. The force was strong at Diamond Island and fresh at several ports in Madras. Light showers of rain, generally less than one-tenth of an inch, had occurred in Baluchistan and at Cuddalore, Negapatam and Colombo. The following day, the 22nd, showed a general barometric fall, except in part of North-Western India, where a slight rise was reported. Readings were high over North-Western India and over North-Eastern India and low over Malabar, Ceylon and the south of the Bay. Calms and variable winds continued to prevail in the north and centre, and elsewhere the winds were little changed. The force had decreased somewhat over the Bay. There was no rain anywhere. On the 23rd the reported barometric changes were very small, and the general distribution of pressure was little changed. The winds also had hardly altered, and the only rainfall was at Negapatam and Colombo. The chart of the 24th showed very small barometric changes, and very little alteration in the pressure distribution. The winds were more variable on the west coast, but in other parts of the country there was very little change in the general directions. The force was generally moderate or light. Showers of rain had fallen in the extreme south of the Peninsula and at Colombo and Jalpsiguri and of snow at Gnatong. Negapatam received 2·04 inches, but at the other stations the amounts were small.

Temperature.—There has been a steady deficiency of temperature over Burma, the amount increasing from 1·8 on the 18th to 5·0 on the 23rd. There has also been a trifling deficiency over Bengal, Assam, Sind and Rajputana. In the North-Western Provinces the mean temperature of the week exactly equalled the normal, while in the other provinces there was some excess.

The following table shows the variations of the mean temperature from the normal on each day of the week for the principal provinces of India :—

Province.	18th.	19th.	20th.	21st.	22nd.	23rd.	24th.	Mean variation of week.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh . . . . .	+1.0	-0.8	-1.1	+0.6	+0.6	+0.3	-0.8	0
Punjab . . . . .	-1.0	-1.1	+0.9	+1.6	+0.9	-0.3	+0.1	+0.2
Bombay . . . . .	+3.6	+3.6	+2.9	+1.2	+0.1	-0.4	-0.8	+1.5
Central Provinces and Berar . . . . .	+3.3	+1.0	+0.4	+0.2	+1.9	+2.0	+2.1	+1.6
Central India and Guzerat . . . . .	+0.5	-0.5	+0.1	+1.1	+1.2	0	-0.9	+0.2

MEAN FOR WHOLE INDIA . . . . .	+0.4	-0.4	-0.4	+0.3	0	-0.3	-0.4	-0.1

On each day of the week the mean temperature of the whole of India approximated closely to the normal, and the mean for the week was only 0°.1 below the normal average.

Rainfall.—The rainfall table at the close of the summary shows that rain fell in only ten of the rainfall divisions, and of these ten divisions no less than six had an average fall for the division of less than one-tenth of an inch of rain. The divisions which received rain were Assam (Bhramaputra), North Bengal, Malabar, Madras (South-Central and South), Mysore, the Konkan, the Bombay, Deccan, and the East Coast (Central and South). The divisions which received over one-tenth of an inch were Malabar, Madras (South), and the East Coast (Central and South). Assam (Bhramaputra) and Malabar had a trifling excess but in all the other divisions the rainfall did not equal the normal.

The three concluding columns which show the state of the rainfall from October 16th to date exhibit large variations from the normal. There is an excess over a large part of Bengal, over several central divisions, and over a large part of the Peninsula, and a deficiency elsewhere. The most important deficiency is in the south of the Peninsula.

The following are the only important falls during the week :—

Division.	District.	Station.	Amount, Inches.
Deccan . . . . .	Dharwar . . . . .	Bankapur . . . . .	1.73
East Coast . . . . .	Nellore . . . . .	Pakala . . . . .	3.75

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION,

12th January 1893.

Syllabus, showing the extent of the Examination in certain subjects at the Open Competition for admission into the Indian Civil Service in 1893.

The Regulations governing the Open Competition for admission into the Indian Civil Service have been framed with a view to the principle regarded by Lord Macaulay's Committee, in 1854, as essential, viz., that the object of the Competition should be to secure for the Indian Civil Service officers who "have received the best, the most liberal, the most finished education that their native country affords." The scheme of examination has accordingly been made to embrace most of the subjects of the Honour Schools in the Universities of Great Britain and Ireland. In administering the scheme, the Civil Service Commissioners, concurring with Lord Macaulay's Committee in the opinion, "that no Candidate who may fail should, to whatever calling he may betake himself, have any reason to regret the time and labour which he has spent in preparing himself to be examined," desire to avoid all disturbance of the general course of University studies, and to render it possible, with due regard for the principle of Open Competition, for those who have graduated with honours at the Universities, to attend the examination for the Indian Civil Service with good prospects of success. The appended Syllabus shows in outline the intentions of the Commissioners with regard to the extent and character of the examination in those subjects which seem to require further definition. The scope of the examination in the subjects not mentioned in the Syllabus is sufficiently defined in the scheme published in the Regulations themselves. The Examiners will be instructed to keep the standard in each subject up to the level of the highest course of study pursued in the Universities.

ENGLISH COMPOSITION.—An Essay to be written on one of several subjects specified by the Civil Service Commissioners on their Examination Paper.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE.—The Examination will be in two parts. In the one the Candidates will be expected to show a general acquaintance with the course of English Literature, as represented (mainly) by the following writers in verse and prose, between the reign of Edward III. and the accession of Queen Victoria:

Verse—Chaucer, Langland, Spenser, Shakespeare, Milton, Dryden, Pope, Gray, Collins, Johnson, Goldsmith, Crabbe, Cowper, Campbell, Wordsworth, Scott, Byron, Coleridge, Shelley, Keats.

Prose—Bacon, Sir Thomas Browne, Milton, Cowley, Bunyan, Dryden, Swift, Defoe, Addison, Johnson, Burke, Scott, Macaulay (Essays and Biographies).

A minute knowledge of the works of these authors will not be looked for in this part of the Examination, which will, however, test how far the Candidates have studied the chief productions of the greatest English writers in themselves, and are acquainted with the leading characteristics of their thought and style, and with the place which each of them occupies in the history of English literature. Candidates will also be expected to show that they have studied in these authors the history of the English language in respect of its vocabulary, syntax, and prosody.

The other part of the Examination will relate to one of the periods named below, which will follow each other year by year in the order indicated:—

1. A. D. 1600 to A. D. 1700.
(1893) [Shakespeare to Dryden.]
2. A. D. 1700 to A. D. 1800.
(1894) [Pope to Cowper.]
3. A. D. 1800 to A. D. 1832.
(1895) [Nineteenth Century writers to the death of Scott.]
4. A. D. 1360 to A. D. 1600.
(1896) [Chaucer to Spenser.]

The Examination in this part will require from Candidates a more minute acquaintance with the history of the English language and literature, as illustrated in the chief works produced in each period, and will be based to a considerable extent, but by no means exclusively, on certain books specified each year by the Commissioners.* The names placed under the dates are intended to suggest the general character of the literary development of the period, and, consequently, the natural limits of the Examination. All the works of Shakespeare, for example, will be regarded as falling within the first period; all the works of Swift within the second; all the works of Scott and Wordsworth within the third.

FRENCH LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE.—Translation from French into English, and from English into French; Critical questions on the French Language and Literature.

GERMAN LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE.—As in French.

LATIN LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE.—Translation from Latin into English. Composition in Prose and Verse (in the place of the latter may be taken, by those who prefer it, A PAPER OF QUESTIONS ON LATIN PHILOLOGY). Critical Questions on the Latin Language and Literature.

GREEK LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE.—Translation from Greek into English. Composition in Prose and Verse (in the place of the latter may be taken, by those who prefer it, A PAPER OF QUESTIONS ON GREEK PHILOLOGY). Critical Questions on the Greek Language and Literature.

SANSKRIT LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE.—Translation from Sanskrit into English, and from English into Sanskrit. History of Sanskrit Literature (including knowledge of such Indian history as bears upon the subject); Sanskrit Grammar; Vedic Philology.

ARABIC LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE.—Translations as in Sanskrit; History of Arabic Literature; Arabic Grammar; Arabic Prosody.

ENGLISH HISTORY.—General questions on English History from A.D. 800 to A.D. 1848; questions on the Constitutional History of England from A.D. 800 to A.D. 1848.

Questions covering the whole period named will be set, but Candidates will be allowed to attempt only a limited number of them.

GENERAL MODERN HISTORY.—Candidates may, at their choice, be examined in any one of the following periods:—

1. From the accession of Charlemagne to the Third Crusade.

[A.D. 800 to A.D. 1193.]

2. From the Third Crusade to the Diet of Worms.

[A.D. 1193 to A.D. 1521.]

3. From the Diet of Worms to the death of Louis XIV.

[A.D. 1521 to A.D. 1715.]

4. From the accession of Louis XV. to the French Revolution of 1848.

[A.D. 1715 to A.D. 1848.]

Periods 3 and 4 will include Indian History.

* The books for 1893 are:—

Shakespeare: King Lear; Twelfth Night.

Milton: Poems (exclusive of "Paradise Lost" and "Paradise Regained").

Habington; Herbert; Vaughan; Cartwright; Crashaw; Cowley; (selections in Humphry Ward's "English Poets").

Herrick: (Palgrave's Selections).

Dryden: Hind and Panther.

In Greek and Roman History Candidates will be expected to show a knowledge of the original authorities. Questions covering the whole period named will be set, but Candidates will be allowed to attempt only a limited number of them.

MATHEMATICS.—Pure Mathematics :—Algebra, Geometry (Euclid and Geometrical Conic Sections), Plane Trigonometry, Plane Analytical Geometry (less advanced portions), Differential Calculus (Elementary), Integral Calculus (Elementary).

Applied Mathematics :—Statics, including Attractions, Dynamics of a Particle, Rigid Dynamics, Hydromechanics, Geometrical and Physical Optics, and Geometrical Astronomy.

POLITICAL ECONOMY AND ECONOMIC HISTORY.—Candidates will be expected to possess a knowledge of economic theory as treated in the larger text books; also a knowledge of the existing economic conditions, and of statistical methods as applied to economic inquiries; together with a general knowledge of the history of industry, land tenure and economic legislation in the United Kingdom.

LOGIC AND MENTAL PHILOSOPHY. (Ancient and Modern).—Logic will include both Deductive and Inductive Logic.

Letters Patent appointing the Reverend ALFRED CLIFFORD, M.A., Bishop of Lucknow.

Victoria, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland Queen, Defender of the Faith, Empress of India, to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting. Whereas it has been represented to Us that it is expedient to erect a Bishop's see in that part of Our territories in India known as the province of Oudh, together with such portions of Our said territories known as the North-Western Provinces as have been acquired subsequent to the passing of the Act of the third and fourth years of King William the Fourth, intituled "The Government of India Act, 1833." Now know ye that by Our Royal will and pleasure We do by these presents erect, found, ordain, and constitute all that part of our said territories known as the province of Oudh, together with such portions of Our said territories known as the North-Western Provinces as have been acquired subsequent to the passing of the Act of the third and fourth years of King William the Fourth, intituled "The Government of India Act, 1833," to be a Bishop's see or diocese, and to be called from henceforth the Bishopric of Lucknow, saving nevertheless to Us and to Our successors the power of altering from time to time the limits of the said diocese and the jurisdiction of the Bishop thereof. And to the end that this Our intention may be carried into due effect We, having great confidence in the learning, morals, probity and prudence of Our trusty and well-beloved Alfred Clifford, clerk, Master of Arts, do by these presents nominate, constitute and appoint him to be the Bishop of the said Bishopric of Lucknow, and do order and ordain that he shall henceforth be called by the name, style and title of Bishop of Lucknow. And We do by these presents give and grant to the said Alfred Clifford, Bishop of Lucknow, and his successors, full power and authority to confer the orders of deacon and priest, to confirm those who are baptized and come to the years of discretion and to do and perform all the other functions peculiar and appropriate to the office of a Bishop, such Bishop and his successors having been first ordained and consecrated according to the form prescribed by the Liturgy of the Church of England, and also by himself or themselves, or by his or their commissaries, to be by him or them constituted and appointed to exercise spiritual jurisdiction in and throughout the said Bishopric and Diocese of Lucknow. And We do hereby grant and declare that the said Bishop of Lucknow, and his successors, may found and constitute an archdeaconry within the said Bishopric of Lucknow, and may appoint a fit and proper person, being a chaplain on one of Our Ecclesiastical Establishment in India of not less than two years standing, to be Archdeacon of the said archdeaconry Provided always that such Archdeacon shall exercise such jurisdiction only as shall lawfully be committed to him by the said Bishop, and his successors and that the said Bishop, and his successors, may also from time to time nominate and appoint a fit and proper person to be a Registrar of the said Bishopric of Lucknow. Moreover, We will and grant by these presents that the said Bishop be a body corporate, and We do ordain, make and constitute him to be a perpetual corporation and to have perpetual succession, and that he and his successors be for ever hereafter known by the name of Bishop of Lucknow, and that he and his successors by the name aforesaid shall be able and capable in the law, and have full power to purchase, have, hold, take and enjoy such manors, messuages, lands, rents, tenements, annuities and hereditaments, of what nature or kind soever, in fee and in perpetuity, or for term of life or years, and also all manner of goods, chattels, and things personal whatsoever; and that the said Bishop, and his successors, by and under the name or title aforesaid, may prosecute, claim, plead and be impleaded, defend and be defended, answer and be answered, in all manner of Courts, of Us and Our successors, and elsewhere, in and upon all and singular causes, actions, suits, writs and demands, as well spiritual as temporal, and in all other things, causes and matters whatsoever; and that he and his successors shall and may for ever hereafter have and use a corporate seal, and that the said seal from time to time at his and their will and pleasure may break, change, alter, or make new as to him or them shall seem expedient. Moreover, We will and ordain by these presents that the said Bishop of the said Bishopric of Lucknow, and his successors, shall be subject and subordinate to the see of Calcutta, and to the Bishop thereof for the time being, in the same manner as any Bishop of any see within the Province of Canterbury, in Our realm of England, is under the authority of the archiepiscopal see of Canterbury and the Archbishop thereof; and to the end that all the matters and things aforesaid may have their due effect, We do hereby signify to the most Reverend Father in God, Edward White, Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of all England and Metropolitan, that We have erected and founded the aforesaid Bishopric of Lucknow, and have nominated Our beloved Alfred Clifford to the said Bishopric, and have appointed him the Bishop thereof, requiring, and by the faith and love whereby he is bound to Us, commanding him the said Archbishop to consecrate the said Alfred Clifford, Bishop of Lucknow, in manner accustomed, and diligently to do and perform all other things appertaining to his office in this behalf with effect. In witness whereof we have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent. Witness Ourselves at Westminster, the seventh day of September in the Fifty-sixth year of Our reign.

By warrant under the Queen's Sign Manual.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

[Revised Advertisement.]

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Part I, of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 3 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year, but an eighth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

From Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 212, dated 11th January, 1893, and enclosures [Papers No. 13].

Provinces and Oudh, we have thought it desirable to redraft the Bill so as to make it clear that it only legalizes the execution of the capital sentences in question, so far as concerns the action of the superintendents or keepers of jails in British India to whom warrants for their execution may be sent. In order to empower the British Courts in the territory referred to to issue warrants for the execution of such sentences in British India, the Bill requires, in our opinion, to be supplemented by a notification of the Governor General in Council in the Foreign Department of the nature of the draft appended to this Report which we recommend for issue should this Bill become law.

3. In accordance with a suggestion made by the Resident at Hyderabad we have substituted the expression "territory beyond the limits of British India" for "foreign territory" in the title and first paragraph of the preamble to the Bill, as containing a more fitting description of the nature of the territory referred to.

4. We have altered the language of the Bill, which speaks of the "execution of the person" sentenced to death, into "execution of the sentence" of death, as being more in accordance with that generally in use in Indian enactments.

5. Our attention has been drawn to a despatch from the Secretary of State, in which His Lordship notices that the Bill does not extend to all the Courts provided for by section 19 of the Prisoners Act, 1871; the same point has been referred to by the Government of Bombay. We understand, however, that it never was intended that the operation of this Bill should be co-extensive with that of the Prisoners Act, and that it is—rightly, as we think—meant to be restricted to a very limited class of sentences of death, passed under exceptional circumstances by some British Courts sitting in places beyond British India.

6. Lastly, we have considered the various suggestions made for the incorporation of the provisions of the Bill in the Prisoners Act, and for the amendment otherwise of that Act; but we are of opinion that any amendments which may be required in that Act should stand over for future consideration, and meantime that the subject-matter of this Bill should be provided for by a separate enactment.

BILL TO LEGALIZE EXECUTION IN BRITISH INDIA OF CAPITAL SENTENCES PASSED BY BRITISH COURTS IN FOREIGN TERRITORY.

The Hon'ble SIR ALEXANDER MILLER presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to legalize in certain cases the execution within British India of capital sentences which have been passed by British Courts exercising in or with respect to foreign territory jurisdiction which the Governor General in Council has in such territory.

He said that the changes made by the Select Committee were purely verbal and he did not think it necessary to take up the time of the Council on this occasion by going into them. He had to apologise sincerely to Members of Council for bringing them down to a very meagre bill of fare, but at the time when today's sitting of the Council was arranged he was under the impression that Dr. Rashbehary Ghose would be ready with the Partition Bill and that the Council would really have had some business to transact.

HABITUAL OFFENDERS BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS said:—

"There is a Bill which I introduced last month, the Habitual Offenders Bill, about which I should like to say a few words before the Council is adjourned. It is not down in the agenda paper, but it has occurred to me that Hon'ble Members may like to have the earliest possible intimation of our intentions with regard to it, especially as it has not met with universal approval. If Your Excellency sees no objection, perhaps I may be allowed to say that it will not be proceeded with this session and to explain why we have come to this resolution.

"Hon'ble Members have doubtless noticed that exception has been taken to some provisions of the Bill in several quarters. It is undoubtedly a new departure, and there is no part of it which can be considered urgent or which the Council ought to be asked to pass into law without the fullest discussion and deliberation. I have ascertained that some of the material opinions for which we have called cannot well be furnished by a date which would permit of the measure receiving adequate consideration before the end of next month. It seems better, therefore, that I should not ask for a Select Committee at all during this session, but that the whole Bill should stand over till next cold weather. This will give abundant time for Local Governments and the public generally to consider each portion of the Bill in all its bearings and to arrive at mature conclusions. Meanwhile the opinions which led to the introduction of the measure will be published for general information.

"At the same time I am glad to have this opportunity of giving some further explanations with regard to the Bill, and especially that part of it which relates to surveillance as an alternative to security for good behaviour, as it appears to have been misapprehended in certain quarters.

"The effect of section 4 is merely to enable the Magistrate to make an order for surveillance instead of sending a man to gaol. I cannot suppose any one would object to that. Surveillance is obviously something milder than incarceration.

"But section 3 gives to a Magistrate having jurisdiction discretion to determine whether in the particular case security can be accepted as an adequate protection for the public, or whether the habits of the person informed against are such that he ought rather to be placed under surveillance. This provision has been denounced as savouring of oppression. I am entirely of the opinion that even the habitual should be fairly treated, but, on the other hand, I must assume that the Legislature holds the executive authorities responsible for the prevention of crime, as far as this is possible, and is prepared to give them all reasonable powers needful to that end. I expect that we shall find a general consensus among persons who have any knowledge of the habits of the criminal classes that this provision is not only reasonable but even necessary. I will give a concrete instance by way of elucidating its intention. The most dangerous of the habitual offenders against property—the professional burglar or robber—finds little difficulty in furnishing security. Even if he has no money of his own, it is a good investment for the particular habitual receiver whom he patronizes to find the required sureties or, if need be, to deposit the necessary sum in cash. The robber is then free to carry on his depredations wherever he thinks he can do so with impunity, and the surety incurs no risk at all so long as the robber escapes detection. For such a case, I venture to submit, surveillance would operate far more effectually as a safeguard to the public. Indeed, it seems to be the only effectual safeguard.

“Setting aside for the moment the new clause (f) of section 2, no one can be made the subject of an order either for security or surveillance who has not been judicially proved to be an habitual offender against property. In fact, section 2, omitting clause (f), does little more than express the present law in clearer language. It has been said that the police will have no difficulty in finding any number of witnesses to make out an obnoxious person to be an habitual; but as a matter of fact, so far as my experience goes, this is a case in which witnesses are especially averse to come forward. A man's neighbours often know him to be a dangerous criminal, and will tell you so out of Court and pray earnestly for protection against him; but they are afraid to come forward as witnesses, knowing that at the worst he will give security, while the more dangerous his character the more certain he is to wreak vengeance on those who depose against him. Moreover, it should be remembered that, even when witnesses are forthcoming, they will be subject to cross-examination, contradiction and all the other ordinary tests of honesty and credibility.

“As to the new clause (f) I do not wish at present to add anything to what I said when I introduced the Bill. It was inserted in a tentative way to meet the wishes of some of the Local Governments, and personally I can only say that I am inclined to think something of the kind desirable. When it comes before a Select Committee they will of course consider carefully what other authorities have to say about it and report for the consideration of the full Council the conclusion at which they may arrive.

“I am sorry to see that section 5 has also been misunderstood: a careful perusal of the section would, I think, have removed the misapprehension. It requires not only two convictions, but also that the Court shall be fully satisfied that the convict habitually commits crime or depends on crime as a means of livelihood, before he can be declared an habitual offender. The declaration is further subject to appeal. I cannot at present see what other safeguards are required or even possible.

“As to the last section the only question of principle appears to be whether it should be retained in this general enactment or relegated to a separate Bill which will apply only to the Punjab, where it is known to be required. As it is certain to be a mere dead-letter where it is not required, it seems of little practical importance how this question may be decided: when a Select Committee comes to be appointed they will see what is recommended by the various local authorities, and report their opinion. The justification of the provision is very simple. It can only be put in force where there is a widespread conspiracy to commit offences, such, e.g., as arson, and to screen the offenders. In such a locality it cannot be unjust to levy contribution from those classes which connive at and facilitate such offences, while the classes who suffer from them will simply help to indemnify one another against the losses to which every one of them is exposed.”

The Council adjourned to Thursday, the 9th March, 1893.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, February 11th, 1893.

Unsettled weather, with rain on the plains and snow and gales on the Hills, prevailed throughout Northern India from Sunday until Wednesday of the week under review. After Wednesday a high pressure area was established in North-West India, anticyclonic conditions of wind and weather appeared over the greater part of the country and fine weather lasted until the close of the week. The snowfall on the Hills and the rain on the plains of Northern India maintained the general depression of temperature which has been noticed for some weeks past, and the mean temperature of the whole of India was over four degrees below the normal.

On the 5th the barometer was rising over the Peninsula, the North-Western Provinces, and Bengal, and falling elsewhere, the decrease being brisk in the North-West. A shallow diffused depression lay over Rajputana and a small subsidiary depression over the north of the Punjab. The winds were cyclonic and the weather very unsettled in North-West India. Elsewhere the directions were variable and the weather fine. Rain was falling over the Punjab, Sind and Rajputana and at one or two places in the North-Western Provinces. Snow was falling at the Hill stations in the North-West. On the next day, the 6th, three barometric depressions were shown. One over the central parts of the country, the second over the south-east of the Punjab, near Sirsa, and the third near Rawalpindi. Pressure was high in Sind and in the Upper Assam Valley.

The weather remained very unsettled over North-West India. Rain had fallen over a large part of the Punjab, of the North-Western Provinces and of Rajputana, as well as at Deesa, Neemuch and Jacobabad. Snow was again reported from the Hill stations in the north-west. The chart of the 7th showed that, the depression noticed over the central parts of the country on the 6th, had reached Lower Bengal and Orissa, while the other two had disappeared. The high pressure area which was appearing over Sind had intensified and extended eastward over North-West and Central India. The winds were anticyclonic over North-West and Central India, cyclonic over North-East India, and variable elsewhere. Rain was reported from the south-east of the Punjab, from most stations in the North-Western Provinces, and from many places in Bengal. Snow had fallen from Murree to Darjeeling, but had ceased in Baluchistan. . On Wednesday, the 8th, the depression which lay over Lower Bengal and Orissa on the previous day apparently existed over the head of the Bay, while a large area of high pressure had been formed over North-West India. Gradients were steep over the head of the Peninsula and a low pressure area was forming off the West Coast. Strong winds were blowing in several parts of the country. General rain was reported over Lower Bengal and light showers in the North-Western Provinces and Chota Nagpur. Snow had fallen at some Hill Stations. By the morning of the 9th, the depression over the head of the Bay had disappeared, while that forming off the West Coast of the Peninsula had become better defined. Gradients remained steep across the head of the Peninsula and the general distribution of pressure and the circulation of the winds were the same as on the previous day. Showers of rain were reported from Sibsagar, Gopalpur and Rajahmundry and of snow from Gnatong. On the 10th the general conditions of pressure and wind were little changed, except that the low pressure area off the West Coast had almost disappeared. Light snow was reported from Baluchistan and Gnatong and moderate rain from Coconada and Masulipatam. On the 11th the barometric changes were irregular, and the only important alteration was a fall at Chaman. The winds were very irregular. Light rain had fallen at Sialkote and Vizagapatam and some snow at the Hill stations.

Temperature.—The abnormal depression of temperature which has been so noticeable throughout nearly the whole of India during the past few weeks has been maintained during the week under review, the abnormal depression for the whole country being as much as  $4^{\circ}$ . The following table shows the variations of the mean temperature from the normal on each day of the week for the principal provinces of India :—

PROVINCE.	5th.	6th.	7th.	8th.	9th.	10th.	11th.	Mean Variation of week.

	+2.0	+1.6	+1.5	+0.8	+0.4	−0.5	+0.1	+0.8
MEAN FOR WHOLE INDIA . . . . .	−2.7	−1.7	−3.0	−6.0	−6.4	−5.3	−3.2	−4.1

On each day of the week the mean temperature of the whole country was below the average, the abnormal deficiency ranging from  $1.7^{\circ}$  on the 6th to  $6.4^{\circ}$  on the 9th. The provincial variations show that in Madras the mean temperature of the week was  $0.8^{\circ}$  above the normal average, but that in all the other provinces there was a defect which ranged from  $1.2^{\circ}$  in Burma to  $7.2^{\circ}$  in the Punjab. On the 8th, 9th and 10th the mean temperature was  $10^{\circ}$  to  $13^{\circ}$  below the normal. The greatest deficiency was in the day temperatures and, as shown by the Daily Weather Report this occasionally amounted to as much as  $20^{\circ}$ . The weather has been steadily frosty on the Hills and slight frost has occasionally occurred on the plains of the north-west.

Rain.—Nearly the whole of the rainfall of the week has been connected with the depressions which crossed Northern India during the first half of the week, and hence most of the rain is reported from Northern India. In the latter part of the week some showers occurred in the Peninsula. The rainfall table, at the close of the summary, shows that rain has fallen in twenty-nine of the rainfall divisions. These twenty-nine divisions include the whole of Bengal, of Assam, of the North-Western Provinces, of the Punjab, of Central India and of Sind, the western division of Rajputana, Malabar, Madras (south central), and the north and central divisions of the East Coast. The regions which received no rain were Burma, the Central Provinces, and the greater part of the Peninsula. The average actual amounts of rain received in the different divisions were not large, except in the Hill districts of the Punjab, which received an average fall of  $1.97$  inch. This was followed by  $0.81$  inch in Deltaic Bengal, by  $0.69$  inch in the submontane division of the Punjab and by  $0.53$  inch in Orissa. The rainfall of the week was excessive in Deltaic and Central Bengal, in Orissa, in North Behar, in Oudh, in the North-Western Provinces (central and west), the Punjab (south, submontane and hill districts) Sind, Rajputana and Central India, and the East Coast (north and central). The greatest excess was  $1.15$  inch in the hill districts of the Punjab.

The three concluding columns of the table show that since the commencement of the year the rainfall has been considerably short of the normal in Burma (where hardly any has fallen), in East Bengal, in Behar (south), in the west of the Peninsula and part of the Carnatic. In all other parts of the Indian region, the rainfall equals or exceeds the normal of the period. In the case of many of the divisions reporting deficient rainfall, the normal fall for the period under review is usually so small that its absence is not of great importance.

The following are the largest total amounts received during the week as reported in the rainfall telegrams of the week:—

Division.	District.	Station.	Amount. Inches.
East Bengal . . .	Dacca . . .	Manikgunj . . .	2.45

Fodder and water supplies are plentiful in all districts.

Fodder sufficient in all districts but one, where it is getting scarce. Poppy crops flourishing. Prices rising in one district and unsettled in another, but stationary elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 22nd February.—Showers have fallen in some places. Frost has damaged the wheat crops in ear in the northern districts, and in the Nagpur country a good deal of injury is feared from rust. The linseed harvest is in progress in the south of the provinces, and the wheat harvest has commenced.

COORG:—Threshing of rice and ragi (Eleusine coracana) in progress. Picking of coffee completed. Water for cattle sufficient, but supply of fodder decreasing.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 22nd February.—BERAR: Weather cool. APPOINTMENT OF A COMMISSION TO ENQUIRE INTO AND REPORT UPON
THE SYSTEM OF TRIAL BY JURY BEFORE COURTS OF SESSION IN BENGAL.

No. <sup>5 (Judicial)</sup>
201—208.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Home Department (Judicial),—under date Calcutta, the 23rd February 1893.

READ—

The correspondence on the working of the Jury system in India, forwarded to the Secretary of State with the Government of India's Despatch No. 32, dated the 21st December 1892.

Further despatches on the same subject, so far as it relates to Bengal, No. 1, dated the 4th January, and No. 5, dated the 18th January 1893.

A letter from the Government of Bengal, No. 35 J., dated the 2nd January 1893.

RESOLUTION.

IN a letter, No. 35 J., dated the 2nd January 1893, addressed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal to the Government of India, His Honour, with reference to the notification issued by him on the 20th October 1892, withdrawing certain offences from trial by jury in eight districts of Bengal, wrote that he desired—

“as far as possible, to reconsider the question from the new light thrown on it by the fact that the distress and dissatisfaction caused by the partial removal of what is valued as an important privilege had been so great and so much beyond his expectation;”

and, after making various suggestions for the modification of the provisions relating to Juries in the Criminal Procedure Code, His Honour concluded his letter in the words quoted below—

“A suggestion has been made to the Lieutenant-Governor that a Commission might be appointed with instructions to consider such questions as those indicated above, and to report to Government on the feasibility of any scheme which would be generally acceptable, and yet would safeguard the Government from a recurrence of the scandalous verdicts and grievous failures of justice to which attention has been drawn in the published correspondence. There are obvious difficulties attending the appointment of such a Commission, but it seems not impossible that it might result in the formulation of an authoritative report which the Government could accept, and if such a result could be obtained, it would be more satisfactory and would tend more to re-assure the public mind than a decision arrived at by Government alone. The Lieutenant-Governor, therefore, thinks it his duty to submit this suggestion for the consideration of the Government of India, and to say that, should they accept it, nothing will be wanting on his part to afford the Commission such assistance as is in the power of the Bengal Government.”

The suggestion thus made seemed to the Government of India well worthy of consideration, not only for the reasons which had been stated by His Honour, but also because the Governor General in Council was aware that the residents of the Jury districts had made it a special ground of complaint that the Notification of the 20th October had been issued without their having been allowed an opportunity of showing cause against it. The following paragraph was, therefore, added to the Despatch of the 4th January, transmitting to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India a memorial adopted by the public meeting held at the Town Hall of Calcutta on the 20th December, in which the memorialists protested against the Notification of the 20th October 1892:—

“Since the above paragraphs were written, we have received from His Honour a suggestion that if an enquiry is to be made into these points, it might be conveniently entrusted to a special Commission. Sir Charles Elliott's proposal, provided the scope of the enquiry is carefully defined, seems to us well worthy of consideration. We shall, however, take no further steps until we have heard from Your Lordship in reply to this and our former Despatch.”

2. The Governor General in Council has now received from the Secretary of State an intimation that the course above proposed appears likely to be approved by the Government, and is in a position to be acted on at once. His Excellency in Council has decided to appoint a Commission, consisting of the following gentlemen :—

The Honourable Mr. Justice FRANKS, President,
 Maharaja Sir JORNGEO MOHUN TAGEE, Bahadur, K.C.S.I.,
 The Honourable Sir GRIFFITH EVANS, K.C.I.E., Sir ROMESH CHUNDER MITTER, Kt.,
 Mr. C. A. WILKINS, Indian Civil Service, District and Sessions Judge.

The services of Mr. H. C. Streatfeild, of the Indian Civil Service, will be placed at the disposal of the Commission as Secretary.

3. The Commission will be instructed—

- (1) to consider the classes of offences triable by jury in the several districts of Bengal in which the system of trial by jury has been introduced, and to report whether any, and, if so, what, changes in the classification which now obtains are desirable ;
- (2) to consider and report whether any, and, if so, what, modifications of the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code relating to the trial of offences triable by jury before Courts of Session are desirable for the purpose of preventing miscarriage of justice.

4. The whole of the correspondence which has recently passed on the subject of the working of the Jury system in Bengal, and which is read in the preamble to this Resolution, as well as reports subsequently received from the Madras and Bombay Governments on the same subject, will be placed at the disposal of the Commission by the Government of India, and the Government of Bengal and the High Court of Calcutta will be requested to afford the Commissioners all the assistance in their power in the prosecution of their enquiries.

It will be left to the Commission to decide whether or not they should take oral evidence.

5. The Governor General in Council is desirous that the Commission's report should be submitted with as little delay as possible, and therefore considers it advisable that their sittings should commence at once, and be as continuous as they can arrange without inconvenience.

---

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Government of Bengal, to the Honourable the Chief Justice and Judges of the High Court at Fort William, and the Members of the Commission, for information, and that it be published in the Gazette of India.

(a) Includes Rs. 5,39,500 on account of old outlay now brought into this account.

6. The receipts from Major Works were less by Rs. 48,264 than during the previous year. The working expenses were also less by Rs. 75,742, so that there was an improvement in net receipts of Rs. 32,478. The net revenue derived from the Godavari, Kistna, Karnul, and Srivaikuntham systems showed an increase over the figures for 1890-91. In the case of the Karnul Canal, a deficit of Rs. 37,679 in 1890-91 was converted into a net profit of Rs. 8,280 in 1891-92. On the other hand, the Pennér and Sangam systems showed a considerable falling off owing to the supply of water having been deficient. The Minor Works are separated in this year's review into Irrigation and Navigation, following the separation that was effected in the general review of the revenue and expenditure recorded under the head "Irrigation Works" in the accounts of the Government of India for 1890-91 published as Public Works Department Resolution No. 177 I., dated 26th July 1892.

Under Irrigation minor works the only fact requiring notice is that the figures for the Lower Coleroon Anicut showing a deficit of Rs. 24,419, as compared with a net revenue in 1890-91 of Rs. 3,36,077, are not the correct figures for the year, the irrigation revenue for the year having been omitted owing to the necessary figures not having been furnished by the Board of Revenue. The Government of India trust that the necessary information may be furnished in subsequent years in time to be included in the Administration Report.

Under Navigation minor works the Buckingham Canal shows a deficit of Rs. 74,599, as compared with a deficit of Rs. 29,684 in the previous year. The receipts on this canal were better by Rs. 10,257; but there was a large increase in the working expenses caused by heavy clearances and by having to open two bars so as to increase the depth of water in the canal.

7. Of the total revenue credited to Irrigation from the Major Works Rs. 74,72,256 is the share of the land revenue on account of the water supplied, and Rs. 5,06,918 is the irrigation share of the enhanced land revenue. These figures are taken from Statement I. C. attached to the Report. They differ slightly from those given in para. 6 of the Resolution on the Report by the Madras Government. The difference is due to the amount credited to the Karnul Canal on account of water supplied to Government tanks having been shown as enhanced land revenue instead of as indirect irrigation revenue.

8. In the following statement the irrigation receipts are compared with the areas charged as irrigated under first and second crops:—

	Revenue derived from irrigated lands.		Area charged as irrigated		Rate per acre.

The total area irrigated during the year shows a satisfactory increase. The increase occurs principally on the Godavari, Kistna, Srivaikuntham, and Karnul Canals. On the latter it was due to the failure of the rains which caused an increased demand for canal water. The area irrigated under the Pennér and Sangam systems showed a considerable reduction for the reason already stated.

9. The following figures, which are given in the individual canal reports and in para. 7 of the review by the Madras Government, exhibit the incidence per acre under first and second crop, respectively, of the irrigation revenue derived from the Major Works. This may be taken, practically, as the equivalent of the water rate:—

	First crop. Rs.	Second crop. Rs.
Godavari . . . . .	3.90	2.45
Kistna . . . . .	4.03	4.08
Pennér . . . . .	4.36	2.63
Sangam . . . . .	4.50	2.98
Barur . . . . .	3.77	1.18
Cauvery . . . . .	3.25	2.44
Srivaikuntham . . . . .	5.96	3.20

This average rate is calculated on the area irrigated, exclusive of the area of such zemindari and inam lands as are entitled to receive water free of charge. The figures showing the area on which this calculation is based are not, however, furnished in the report, the area of the land that receives water free not being given. In future reports the Madras Government are requested, if possible, to furnish this information.

10. The area charged as irrigated under first crop by the Major Works, excluding the Karnul canal, amounted to 2,127,875 acres, and under second crop to 212,216 acres. Of the aggregate area thus irrigated about ten-elevenths was supplied by flow, and one-eleventh by lift.

11. The following statement shows the details of the working expenses, including the old maintenance charges, for each of the Major systems, and for the Minor systems in the aggregate:—

REVENUE REPORT OF IRRIGATION WORKS IN THE PUNJAB FOR 1891-92.

No. 39 I., dated Calcutta, the 21st February 1893.

OBSERVATIONS—By the Government of India, Public Works Department.

Read—

Letter No. 97 I., dated 10th January 1892, from the Government of the Punjab, forwarding the Revenue Report of Irrigation works in the Punjab for 1891-92, and Resolution by that Government reviewing the Report.

OBSERVATIONS.—The number of canals in operation in the Punjab remains unchanged at twelve. The Sirsa Branch of the Western Jumna Canal was partially opened to irrigation during the Rabi crop, but no revenue was realized during 1891-92 as the Rabi assessments did not fall due until 1892-93. As stated in paragraph 42 of the Chief Engineer's Report, the Sirsa Branch will for revenue purposes be treated as an integral portion of the Western Jumna Canal system, and not as a separate canal.

2. The Capital outlay incurred during and up to the end of 1891-92 is shown in the following statement under the financial heads of account :—

* The Sirsa Branch being treated as a portion of the Western Jumna system.

† Includes Capital outlay on Madhopur Workshops.

3. The total outlay was nearly double that of 1890-91, and the bulk of it was incurred on the Sirsa Branch of the Western Jumna Canal, the Sirhind Canal, and the Chenab Canal.

On the Sirsa Branch, which is partly in British territory and partly in the Patiala State, the outlay from Imperial Funds amounted to Rs. 5,98,158 and from funds contributed by the Patiala State to Rs. 2,83,818. The main channel was almost completed in the second or Patiala section and water was passed down to the 79th mile. The main lines of the two most important distributaries were finished and their branches were well advanced. At the same time good progress was made on the new works which have the object of enabling the Western Jumna Canal to carry the extra supply required for the Sirsa Branch.

On the Sirhind Canal there was an outlay from Imperial funds of Rs. 3,44,560, principally on new distributaries towards the tails of the British Branches which are required to complete the irrigation system. Under contributions the outlay on works was Rs. 3,619, but there were credits under Tools and Plant and Suspense amounting to Rs. 19,556, so that the net result was a reduction of Capital outlay by Rs. 15,907.

On the Chenab Canal the Capital outlay was Rs. 35,57,362, mainly on the permanent headworks and the feeder channel which connects them with the original canal. The progress on these works was so good that a permanent supply was assured to the canal in January 1892, or two years earlier than was originally anticipated. The work on the distributaries was simultaneously pushed forward, and the colonization of the Government waste lands was started before the close of year.

4. The following statement shows the mileage of main canal and distributary in operation at the close of the year under review :—

The length of navigable channels was 386 miles. In addition to the above, in the Native States there are 223 miles of completed canal, of which 46 are navigable, and 1,940 miles of completed distributary.

During the year the length of canal has been increased by 68 miles and of distributary by 362 miles, all in British territory.

5. The financial results of the canals in operation, excluding the Native States' portion of the Sirhind Canal, are exhibited in the following statement.

The Irrigation Revenue includes the collections on account of the Rabi season of 1890-91 and the Kharif season of 1891-92 :—

* Refunds deducted from Revenue.

† These percentages of net Revenue on Capital outlay do not include Muzaffargarh Canal.

6. The net revenue for the whole province is higher by Rs. 3,85,197 than it was in 1890-91, but the percentage on Capital outlay has fallen slightly owing to the large addition during the year to the Capital account of the canals.

The Major Works show an increase in net revenue of Rs. 1,32,298. There is a large increase on the Sirhind Canal, but all the other canals except the Sidhnai show a decrease.

The Swat River and Lower Sohag and Para Canals are the only Major Works which seem likely to fail in meeting the interest charges, and paragraph 3 of the Resolution by the Local Government shows that the necessity for improving the revenue from these canals is receiving due attention. A permanent supply having now been assured to the Chenab Canal, a rapid improvement in the returns from it may be expected.

The Minor Works show an increase in net revenue of Rs. 2,02,899, but this is partly due to the receipts from the Indus Canals being unduly raised this year by large arrears of collections. The condition of these canals, which have always been worked at a loss, is said (paragraph 7 of the Resolution) to be under the consideration of the Local Government.

7. The net revenue of the Major Works in operation exceeded the interest charges by Rs. 13,43,616, and at the close of the year the balance of net revenue over interest charges for all Major Works amounted to Rs. 224½ lakhs.

8. The area irrigated and the irrigation revenue assessed thereon during the year are shown in the following statement. The revenue assessed differs from that actually collected, because the revenue assessed on the Rabi crop of any one year is not collected until the following year:—

9. The expansion of the irrigated area noticed in previous reviews still continues, the increase in 1891-92 being 224,678 acres, of which 83,642 acres belong to Perennial and 141,036 acres to Inundation Canals. The progress during the past decade is very striking, the area having risen from 1,645,321 acres in 1881-82 to 3,067,336 acres in 1891-92: the area irrigated by Perennial Canals has increased by 161 per cent. during this period.

The rainfall was considerably below the average during both crops, and locusts caused much damage in the early part of the year.

The rate per acre for the whole province has fallen slightly: it is higher than in 1890-91 on most of the Major Works and lower on all the Minor Works except one.

10. The areas of Kharif and Rabi crop were as follow :—

	Kharif, acres.	Rabi, acres.
Perennial Canals . . . . .	572,657	1,175,962
Inundation „ . . . . .	600,027	718,690
TOTAL . . . . .	1,172,684	1,894,652

Compared with the figures of last year, the area under Kharif crops is smaller on both Perennial and Inundation Canals: this is mainly due to the ravages of locusts, the young crops having been eaten up as soon as they appeared above the ground. The area under Rabi crops is, on the other hand, by far the largest yet recorded on both descriptions of canal.

11. The areas of the principal crops cultivated during the last two years compare as follow :—

	1891-92. Acres.	1890-91. Acres.
Sugarcane . . . . .	91,238	77,207
Rice . . . . .	184,637	199,901
Jowar . . . . .	157,146	160,232
Maize . . . . .	114,879	102,891
Wheat . . . . .	1,120,932	1,011,127
Cotton . . . . .	188,072	273,300

The areas under sugarcane and wheat are the largest yet recorded. The area under rice fell off somewhat owing to the cultivation of this crop having been discontinued in the low lands of the Hissar District, where the soil was becoming water-logged, and to the late commencement of the rainy season. The decrease in the area under cotton, which is very marked, is due to the locusts having attacked this crop more than any other.

The estimated value of irrigated crops is 895 lakhs of rupees.

12. Particulars of the discharge and duty of the perennial canals, and of the lowest volumes in the rivers from which they draw their supplies, will be found in the following statement. The river discharges are, with the exception of the Chenab, lower than those of last year, but are above the average. The duty of the Western Jumna Canal for the Rabi crop is very low owing to the demand for water having been slack, but the opening of the Sirsa Branch may be expected to create a steadier demand in future. The duty of the Chenab Canal for the same crop is not a true duty as water was not available early in the season, when it was required for sowings, though the completion of the weir gave a plentiful supply towards the close of the season :—

* Excluding Native States Branches.

13. The improvement in the proportion of the area actually irrigated from the Native States Branches of the Sirhind Canal to the area which would have been irrigated according to the standard of the British Branches, which was noticed in last year's review, has not been maintained. This proportion has fallen from 64 per cent. in 1890-91 to 58 per cent. in the year under review. The proportion for the Kharif has altered but little, and it is in the Rabi that the change is greatest. The Rabi season was very dry and the demand for water great: in such a season the superior organization on the British Branches naturally shows to greater advantage.

14. The following statement shows the working of the Native States Branches:—

STATE.	Capital outlay.	Gross revenue collected less refunds.	Working expenses.	Net Revenue.	Percentage on capital outlay.	Water rates assessed.	Area irrigated.	Water raised per acre.	Working expenses per acre.

Compared with the previous year, these figures again show a satisfactory advance: the net revenue is better by over a lakh and a half of rupees, and the percentage on Capital outlay is nearly doubled, while the working expenses are lower. The value of crops irrigated from the Native States Branches during the year is estimated at Rs. 57,40,388.

15. The working expenses of the different canals are shown below in detail:—

	Per acre irrigated .	...	...	...	...	0.83	1.04

The total working expenses are lower by Rs. 62,959 than in 1890-91, but the decrease is entirely under Minor Works, the Major Works showing an increase of Rs. 78,252. Of the Major Works, the Bari Doab Canal shows the largest increase, the reason for which is explained in paragraph 5 of the Resolution by the Local Government: it is remarked in connection with this explanation that the cost of all but minor extensions and improvements will in future be a charge against the open line Capital account. There is an aggregate increase of Rs. 26,746 under "Works" and "Tools and Plant," and an aggregate decrease of Rs. 69,705 under "Establishment" and "Indirect charges." The establishment and indirect charges against the revenue account vary inversely with the outlay against the Capital account, and this latter outlay was larger than usual during the year under review.

16. The following are the details of the charge for establishment:—

	Revenue management.	Maintenance.	Total.	Percentage.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Direction . . . . .	27,718	26,873	54,591	4.84

TOTAL .	8,40,437	2,88,520	11,28,957	100.00

The share of "Direction" charged to Revenue is lower than in 1890-91, because of the larger Capital outlay, as explained above.

17. The working expenses on the major works formed 37.2 per cent. of the gross revenue realised, of which revenue management accounted for 12.1 per cent. and upkeep 25.1 per cent.

18. The following are some of the principal works charged against the Revenue account:—

On the Swat River Canal, a flour mill and the regrading of the distributaries.

On the Western Jumna Canal, a bridge over the Ganauli cut near Dadupur, a pontoon bridge over the canal at Madilpur, and flour mills at Karnal.

On the Bari Doab Canal, flour mills at Dhariwal and Raya, building weirs at three bridges on the Lahore Branch and collecting materials for heavy repairs to the first nineteen rapids on the main line, constructing five new minor distributaries and remodelling five distributaries, raising the roadway of the Madhopur under-sluices and repairing the floor, regrading the channel of the Lahore Branch, repairs to head and channel of Kirn Escape.

On the Sirhind Canal, the Machiwara and Kumb drains in the Sutlej Khadir, re-building and raising the side walls of the Budki Super-passage, a lock from the main line into the combined branch, a flour mill on the Bhatinda Branch, a discharge run on the Abohar Branch, a drainage siphon under the Butana District Canal.

On the Lower Sohag and Para Canal, extending the alternative head channel and widening the main canal channels.

On the Lower Sutlej and Chenab Canals, a supply channel for the Bakhtuwal Branch of the Gajju Hatta Canal.

19. The navigation receipts and charges are shown in the margin. The receipts from tollage on private boats amounted only to Rs. 5,717 on the Western Jumna and Rs. 2,708 on the Sirhind Canal. The main source of revenue is the tollage on rafts, and the rafting rates have lately been revised so as to encourage this traffic as far as possible.

	Receipts. Rs.	Charges. Rs.
Western Jumna Canal . . . . .	80,090	7,794
Sirhind Canal (including Native States Branches.)	10,899	9,804

20. The receipts on account of water-power amounted to Rs. 1,65,877 as compared with Rs. 1,49,033 in 1890-91.

As explained in paragraph 19 of last year's Review, the Miscellaneous Receipts on the Lower Sutlej and Chenab and the Muzaffargarh Canals include the value of the "Chher" labour and the contributions from the Zar-i-nagha funds.

On the Lower Sutlej and Chenab Canals, out of 664,801 labourers called out, only 425,537 were actually present, and the number of actual absentees, after allowing for 25,274 whose absence was sanctioned, was 218,490: the proportion of absentees was unusually large. Fines to the amount of Rs. 1,06,745 were inflicted for absence. The value of "Chher" labour was Rs. 1,46,282, and the contributions from the Zar-i-nagha fund amounted to Rs. 55,498: in both cases there is a considerable decrease from the figures of the previous year.

On the Muzaffargarh Canals the numbers of labourers were—Called out, 464,054, present 401,016, absent with sanction 13,046, absent without sanction, 49,992. Fines for absence amounted to Rs. 26,845.

The value of "Chher" labour was Rs. 1,03,516, and Rs. 16,207 were contributed from the Zar-i-nagha fund.

The Zar-i-nagha funds on both canals are in a sound condition, the credit balances at the close of the year under review being respectively Rs. 73,757 and Rs. 48,136.

21. The year opened with an unrealised demand of Rs. 1,13,500 on account of water-rate (after making the corrections detailed at the foot of statement III C) and closed with an unrealised balance of Rs. 66,504. The demands during the year, after deducting remissions, amounted to Rs. 50,18,653 and the collections to Rs. 50,65,649.

22. The report has not been submitted so punctually as usual, and did not reach the Government of India until the 13th January, or nearly two months after the prescribed date. It has, however, been very carefully prepared, and sets forth in a clear and interesting manner the results of another year of successful working.

The Government of India note with satisfaction the continuance of the good progress shown in previous years, and consider that Colonel Ottley and Messrs. Higham and MacLean, whose names are mentioned in paragraph 21 of the Local Government's Resolution, have well earned the encomiums passed on them by Sir Dennis Fitzpatrick.

REVENUE REPORT OF IRRIGATION WORKS IN RAJPUTANA FOR
THE YEAR 1891-92.

No. 40 I., dated Calcutta, the 21st February 1893.

OBSERVATIONS—By the Government of India, Public Works Department.

Read—

Revenue Report of Irrigation Works in Rajputana for the year 1891-92, forwarded with letter No.  $\frac{230}{6}$  dated the 17th December 1892, from the Secretary to the Agent to the Governor General and Chief Commissioner, Rajputana.

OBSERVATIONS.—The year 1891-92 was especially unfavourable to the crops in Rajputana, the supply of water in the tanks having been insufficient owing to a practical failure of the monsoon. The average rain-fall in the Ajmere and Merwara Districts was only 8.51 and 10.24 inches, or less than that of the previous year by 3.53 and 3.32 inches, respectively. The average rain-fall during ten years ending 1890 was 22 inches for Rajputana and 20 inches for Merwara District.

2. The capital outlay during the year amounted to Rs. 2,28,771, chiefly on Famine Relief Irrigation Works. The total capital expenditure on the three groups of tanks to the end of the year amounted to Rs. 18,96,675.

3. The following statement shows the actual financial results of the year under review as given in the Revenue Accounts:—

TANKS IN	Total Capital outlay to end of year, including indirect charges.	GROSS REVENUE COLLECTED.			WORKING EXPENSES.			Net Revenue.	Percentage of net revenue on capital at end of year.

The irrigation revenue collected was made up as follows:—

	1891-92.	1890-91.
	Rs.	Rs.
Water-rates directly paid	6,852	9,243
Share of enhanced land revenue	76,244	1,12,583
	83,096	1,21,826

The share of enhanced revenue is made up of water-rates, share of well assessments, and the difference between dry and wet rates which are collected with the land revenue.

4. The revenue assessed for the year is compared in the following table with the area irrigated. The large decrease in the assessments is entirely due to the deficient rain-fall during two years in succession, the tanks having been either left quite dry, or having received a very inadequate supply of water:—

Sub-Collectorate.	Irrigation Revenue assessed.	Area			Assessment per acre.
		Irrigated.	Protected.	Total.

The irrigation revenue assessed includes all assessments due on protected as well as on irrigated areas.

Of the irrigated area, 5,287 acres were cultivated under kharif and 2,423 acres under rabi crop. The irrigation, both in the kharif and rabi crops of 1891-92, was less than half that of the preceding year owing to deficiency of water. Certain remissions and suspensions of revenue were sanctioned by the Local Administration after the accounts for 1891-92 had been closed.

5. The following table shows the distribution of the working expenses:—

	1890-91.	1891-92.	Increase (+) or decrease (—)
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
New Works, Maintenance and Repairs . . . . .	39,549	85,183	+ 45,634

Leave and Pension Allowances . . . . .	1,482	2,165	+ 683
Total . . . . .	59,617	1,06,703	+ 47,086

There is an increase in the working expenses of Rs. 47,086 as compared with the figures of the previous year, and this, combined with the falling off in the irrigated area, has raised the cost of working expenses per acre from Rs. 2-09 in the preceding year to Rs. 8-90.

The establishment charges were divided as follows:—

	Rs.
Direction . . . . .	8,518
Executive . . . . .	6,126
Civil Officers . . . . .	5,068
	19,707

The outlay on new works and repairs was Rs. 172 and Rs. 85,011, respectively. The maintenance charges are abnormally high owing to a large proportion of the work having been especially undertaken during the year for famine relief purposes.

6. As suggested in para. 6 of the Review on last year's report, information is furnished in para. 16 of the Report regarding the average results obtained from experiments on cutting crops of different kinds; the figures given are not considered trustworthy, but arrangements are to be made for conducting the experiments on a more satisfactory basis in future. The value of crops raised during the year is estimated at Rs. 1,93,591, but it is said that the estimate is not a very correct one.

7. Some information regarding the measurement of the depth of water in wells has also been furnished in para. 17 of the report; but in this case also the statistics are said to be untrustworthy, and improvement in the form and substance of the returns is being arranged for.

8. Figures of discharge and duty were not given this year in Statement 1 E, as originally submitted, presumably because many of the tanks did not fill at all. Figures for four tanks in the Merwara District, viz., the Jalea new tank, the Bulad new and old tanks, and the Chittar new tank, were, however, furnished subsequently by the Local Administration with letter No. 298 S., dated 8th February 1893. In other respects the Report has been correctly prepared, and the sketch map referred to in the Reviews on the three preceding years' Reports has now been furnished.

Owing to the almost total failure of the rains these irrigation works were seen at their worst in 1891-92, but a year of this kind must be expected to occur from time to time in the case of works which are entirely dependent for their supply on local rain-fall.

SIXTEEN YEARS ENDING 1890-91.

No. 788 P., dated Calcutta, the 24th February 1893.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department.

RESOLUTION.—The Governor General in Council is pleased to direct the publication in the Gazette of India, for general information, of the accompanying table relating to the mortality among pensioners for the sixteen years ending 1890-91.

2. Similar statistics are available for each Province and will be supplied to any persons interested in the subject who may apply for them.

J. F. FINLAY,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

Explanatory Memorandum.

In 1871 the Government of India directed that every office from which pensions are disbursed should submit an annual return showing the number of deaths among the pensioners paid from that office during the course of the year. The returns for the sixteen years ending with 1890-91 have now been collated and the general result is given in the accompanying table.

2. The pensioners are divided into three classes, namely:—

- (1) those drawing pensions not exceeding R10 a month;
- (2) those drawing pensions exceeding R10 but not exceeding R50 a month; and
- (3) those drawing pensions exceeding R50 a month; and they are grouped by periods of age beginning with that for 50 years and under.

The returns include all pensioners paid in India, whether Europeans, Eurasians, or Natives of India; but as the overwhelming majority are Natives of India, the results may be considered as specially applicable to that class of lives.

3. The number of deaths shown in the returns is—

- (a) the number of pensioners actually reported to be dead;
- + (b) the pensioners whose pensions have lapsed owing to non-appearance for six months;
- (c) those whose pensions have been subsequently renewed;

it being assumed that the difference between (b) and (c) represents the number of pensioners whose deaths have not been reported. The number of pensioners shown as exposed to risk is half the number on the rolls at the beginning plus half the number on the rolls at the end of each year.

4. The returns were not prescribed with the object of compiling tables of mortality. But the statistics now obtained, comprising, as they do, more than two millions of years of life and over 115,000 deaths, may be found by actuaries and statisticians to be of value for that purpose; and the Governor General in Council has directed the publication of the results of the observations. In dealing with them it should be borne in mind that pensioners of the earlier ages, below 55, have ordinarily retired on invalid pensions, and that in the age group 51 to 60, there is always a large accession of new pensioners after the age of 55, the maximum number of new entrants coming on the pension list at the age of 56 or 57.

NOTIFICATION.

Bangalore, the 1st February, 1893.

No. 379—389-92—1. Notice is hereby given that the right of selling country spirits in each of the thirty shops in the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore, specified in the subjoined schedule, for the year beginning 1st April, 1893, and ending 31st March, 1894, will be put up to public auction at the upset annual prices, specified therein. The sale will be conducted by the Collector at his office in the Mayo Hall, commencing at 12 noon on Monday the 27th February, 1893.

2. Each bidder at the auction will deposit a sum of Rs 50 previous to bidding. The shops will be knocked down to the approved highest bidder above the upset price mentioned in the aforesaid schedule, subject to the formal confirmation by the Collector who will be at liberty to accept or reject the bid at his discretion without assigning reasons for the same, such formal confirmation will be tantamount to an acceptance of the bid. Parties intending to bid must attend either in person or by duly accredited agents. Should there be no bid above the upset price, the officer conducting the sale may lower the upset price at his discretion.

3. As soon as the auction is completed, the deposits made by the unsuccessful bidders, and not forfeited as hereinafter provided, will be returned to them. As the auction proceeds, the person whose bid is accepted for each shop, shall at once deposit a sum equal to half a month's rent for that shop. Should he fail to do so, the deposit made by him under paragraph 2 will be forfeited, the shop will at once be put up again on the above conditions, and he will be debarred from bidding again for the same or for any other shop.

4. Persons to whom shops have been knocked down, and who have made deposits as provided in paragraphs 2 and 3, shall also, within seven days from the date of the auction, deposit such further sum as, with the first and second deposits will make up an amount equal to two months' rent of each shop knocked down to them; and shall take out licenses in the appended form A on the conditions hereinafter set forth. On the failure of any person to make the deposit, or to take out licenses as aforesaid, the shop or shops will be resold at the risk of such person, or, if the auction hereby notified, has already been completed, will be otherwise disposed of at the discretion of the Collector of the Civil and Military Station. In the case of the purchaser's death after the confirmation of the sale, it will be binding on his heirs or assigns.

5. Re-sales effected under paragraph 4 will be at the risk of the defaulting bidder who will forfeit all gain; and in the event of a loss by re-sale, he will make good the deficiency between the total amount payable for the whole period under the terms of the original sale and the total amount payable by the successful bidder at the re-sale. In the latter case the forfeited deposit will be deducted from the loss arising from the re-sale, and the remainder, if any, will be recovered from the bidder in the same manner as if it were an arrear of land revenue. Should, however, the forfeited deposit be greater than the loss by re-sale, the whole of such deposit will be credited to Government.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By Dr. Geo. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

Published under the authority of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Part I, of the Dictionary are now ready at the Office of Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is Rs 45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, Rs 6 and 8 shillings respectively will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal octavo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G, Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L, and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O. The whole work will, it is expected, be completed in seven volumes during the current year, but an eighth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

Bill to amend the Law of Partition was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

2. We have made it clear by the substitution of the word "shareholders" for the expression "parties interested" in section 2 that the section is not intended to include mortgagees or others having only a special interest in the property.

3. In section 3, we have completed sub-section (1) by inserting words requiring the Court to offer to sell the share in question to the shareholders undertaking to buy, and we have added a new sub-section (3) making a shareholder, who fails to buy after applying for leave so to do, liable to pay the costs incidental to his application.

4. We have made section 5 somewhat more elastic by only requiring the Court to be of opinion that the sale or purchase will be beneficial before complying with a request or undertaking under the section.

5. Clauses (a) and (b) of section 7 have been altered so as to bring sales under a decree or order of the Recorder of Rangoon, whose Court has a procedure in such matters similar to that of the High Courts at Calcutta, Madras and Bombay, within the former clause.

6. We have omitted sections 8 and 9 of the Bill as introduced, as they appear to us to be superfluous.

7. In section 8 (formerly section 10) we have, in deference to a suggestion made by the High Court at Calcutta, put an order for sale under section 3 as well as one under sections 2 and 4 on the footing of a decree under the Code.

8. The first words of section 9 (formerly section 11) have been recast so as to make what was the intention of the section more clear.

9. Section 10 (formerly section 12) has been revised with the object of extending the benefit of the proposed Act to pending suits which may be at any stage prior to the final approval of the partition by the Court.

No. II.

A Bill to amend the Law relating to Partition.

WHEREAS, it is expedient to amend the law relating to partition; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Title, extent, commencement and saving. 1. (1) This Act may be called the Partition Act, 1893.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India; and

(3) It shall come into force at once.

(4) But nothing herein contained shall be deemed to affect any local law providing for the partition of immoveable property paying revenue to Government.

2. Whenever in any suit for partition in which, if instituted prior to the commencement of this Act, a decree for partition might have been made, it appears to the Court that, by reason of the nature of the property to which the suit relates, or of the number of the shareholders therein, or of any other special circumstance, a division of the property cannot reasonably or conveniently be made, and that a sale of the property and distribution of the proceeds would be more beneficial for all the shareholders, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the request of any of such shareholders interested individually or collectively to the extent of one moiety or upwards, direct a sale of the property and a distribution of the proceeds.

3. (1) If, in any case in which the Court is requested under the last foregoing section to direct a sale, any other shareholder applies for leave to buy at a valuation the share or shares of the party or parties asking for sale, the Court shall order a valuation of the share or shares in such manner as it may think fit and offer to sell the same to such shareholder at the price so ascertained, and may give all necessary and proper directions in that behalf.

(2) If two or more shareholders severally apply for leave to buy as provided in sub-section (1), the Court shall order a sale of the share or shares to the shareholder who offers to pay the highest price above the valuation made by the Court.

(3) If no such shareholder is willing to buy such share or shares at the price so ascertained, the applicant or applicants shall be liable to pay all costs of or incident to the application or applications.

4. (1) Where a share of a dwelling-house belonging to an undivided family has been transferred to a person who is not a member of such family and such transferee sues for partition, the Court shall, if any member of the family shall undertake to buy the share of such transferee, make a valuation of such share in such manner as it thinks fit and direct the transfer of the share on payment of the purchase-money so fixed by the Court.

(2) If in any case described in sub-section (1) two or more members of the family undertake to buy such share, but do not agree as between or among themselves with regard to the respective proportions in which they should buy, the Court shall follow the procedure prescribed by sub-section (2) of the last foregoing section.

5. In any suit for partition a request for sale may be made or an undertaking to buy given on behalf of any party under disability by any person authorized to act on behalf of such party in such suit, but the Court shall not be bound to comply with any such request or undertaking unless it is of opinion that the sale or purchase will be for the benefit of the party under such disability.

6. (1) On any sale under this Act any of the shareholders shall be at liberty to bid at the sale on such terms as to non-payment of deposit or as to setting off or accounting for the purchase-money or any part thereof instead of paying the same as to the Court may seem reasonable.

(2) If two or more persons, of whom one is a shareholder in the property, respectively advance the same sum at any bidding at such sale, such bidding shall be deemed to be the bidding of the shareholder.

7. When any property is directed to be sold under this Act, the following procedure shall, as far as practicable, be adopted namely:—

(a) if the property be sold under a decree or order of the High Court of Calcutta, Madras or Bombay in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, or of the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon, the procedure of such Court in its original civil jurisdiction for the sale of property by the Registrar;

(b) if the property be sold under a decree or order of any other Court, such procedure as the High Court may from time to time by rules prescribe in this behalf, and until such rules are made the procedure prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure in respect of sales in execution of decrees. XI

8. Any order for sale made by the Court under section 2, 3 or 4 shall be deemed to be a decree within the meaning of section 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure. XI

9. In any suit for partition the Court may, if it shall think fit, make a decree for a partition of part of the property to which the suit relates and a sale of the remainder under this Act.

10. This Act shall apply to suits instituted before the commencement thereof, in which no scheme for the partition of the property has been finally approved by the Court.

SUPPLY OF PROVISIONS TO GOVERNMENT OFFICERS ON TOUR.

The Hon'ble RAJA UDAI PARTAB SINGH of Bhinga asked whether the attention of Government has been drawn to the hardships to which cultivators and village shop-keepers are subjected under the present system by which tahsildars collect russuds, vis., provisions, fodder and fuel, etc., for Government officers on tour; and whether it would not be advisable to institute enquiries into the present arrangements with a view to relieve the cultivators and venders of the burdens now laid upon them.

The Hon'ble SIR PHILIP HUTCHINS replied :—

“The attention of the Government of India has not been specially directed to the hardships alleged by the Hon'ble Member in his question to be suffered by cultivators and village shop-keepers owing to the system of collection by tahsildars of supplies for Government officers on tour. There was indeed one petition received from certain 'ilakadars and raiyats' in Behar some months ago, in which it was stated, among other things, that the Sub-Divisional Officer brought 500 or 600 persons in his train, and that these people required things not usually found in villages, and brought ruin on the villagers. It does not appear that any 'shop-keepers' took part in this representation: and, supposing them to be paid for their goods, it would clearly be to their advantage that their customers should be as numerous as possible. This petition was transferred to the Local Government for disposal. Complaints relating to this matter have occasionally been noticed in the Vernacular Press, but they have been for the most part of a general nature, and too vague to justify an order for enquiry. The subject is one within the province of the Local Governments to deal with, and the Government of India have no doubt that it has attracted their attention, and that in most, if not in all, provinces orders exist, in the spirit of section 8 of Bengal Regulation XI of 1806, requiring 'a just price for the provisions or other articles provided to be secured to the persons entitled thereto,' as well as forbidding requisitions for more articles than are actually required, and prohibiting the interference of the tahsildar at all where there are regular shops or markets at which the necessary supplies can be readily obtained. I may perhaps add my belief that officers on tour generally make it a rule either to pay for their supplies personally, or at least to satisfy themselves that the price of any supplies which have been procured through the tahsildar has reached the person from whom they have been obtained.

“The Government of India will, however, have great pleasure in circulating the Hon'ble Member's question and this answer to Local Governments and Administrations, in order that their attention may be specially drawn to the matter, and that they may consider whether the present arrangements sufficiently provide for the avoidance of hardship to the furnishers of supplies, and, if not, in what way they should be supplemented.”

PARTITION BILL.

The Hon'ble DR. RASHBETHARY GHOSE presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Law of Partition. He said :—

“In presenting this Report I have very little to add to what is contained in the Report itself. We have made no change in the substance of the Bill, but we have supplied some omissions; for instance, in section 3 we say that the Court shall not only value the share or shares but proceed to a direct sale. We have also added a clause prescribing what is to be done should a shareholder or shareholders who have applied for leave to purchase ultimately refuse to do so.

“Some verbal alterations have also been made in some of the sections to avoid ambiguity, which is always a fruitful source of litigation, as every lawyer knows, and some suitors too by painful experience.

“We have omitted two sections of the Bill because the matters which were dealt with in those sections are sufficiently provided for in the Code of Civil Procedure, which will govern all proceedings in suits under the proposed Act.

“We have also in deference to a suggestion made by the Calcutta High Court altered the language of section 8 as the sections are now numbered. The section has been now so framed as to give parties a right of appeal from an order directing a sale under section 3 or section 4, which would include the valuation made by the Court.

"We have also extended, to a certain extent, the operation of section 10, the last section of the Bill, so as to make it applicable to all cases in which a final decree for partition has not been made.

"I ought perhaps to say a few words with regard to some suggestions made by the Local Governments but which the members of the Select Committee felt themselves unable to accept. The Bengal Government recommended that tanks, specially old tanks, should be dealt with in an exceptional way, and that the rule which requires the consent of at least one-half of the shareholders before the Court can direct a sale should be relaxed in the case of such tanks. The suggestion was, I think, made in the interests of sanitation, but the members of the Select Committee felt themselves unable to comply with the request because it was thought that a sufficient case had not been made out to entitle the Court to deal with tanks in the way suggested by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. I may also say, from my own experience, that such an amendment was not likely to be acceptable to the people, especially in the case of kirkee tanks, which are regarded as appurtenant to private houses and are used, for domestic purposes, by the members of the family, including women.

"Another suggestion of the same Local Government, apparently made on the recommendation of the British Indian Association, was that, having regard to what is called the compulsory character of sales under the Act, something in the nature of compensation should be given to such shareholders as might be obliged to part with their shares on the lines of the Land Acquisition Act. It seemed to the members of the Select Committee, however, that the recommendation was based, to a certain extent, upon a misapprehension of the character of the provisions contained in section 3 of the Bill. That section authorizes no compulsory sale of any shareholder's share. It is only when a shareholder himself applies for the sale of his share that he may be bought up by the other shareholders, so that there can be no compulsory sale at all under the Act. The Government of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh proposed that certain words should be added to sub-section (4) of section 1 of the Bill so as to avoid what appeared to the Local Government to be a conflict between the provisions of this Bill as also those of section 265 of the Code of Civil Procedure and the local Act, XIX of 1873, dealing with the partition of estates actually paying revenue to Government or the land-revenue of which has been redeemed. It seemed to the members of the Select Committee, however, that there was no real conflict whatever in this matter. The present Bill does not in any way enlarge the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts, nor does it curtail in any way any jurisdiction possessed under local or other statutes by the Revenue Courts in any part of the country. The jurisdiction of the Revenue Courts is, moreover, amply protected and safeguarded by sections 4 and 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure. A recommendation in the nature of an amendment to this section was also made by the Government of Madras. That Government proposed that the words 'immoveable property paying revenue to Government' ought to be defined so as to make it clear that raiyatwari holdings in the Madras Presidency were not intended to be included in the section; but, as the Madras Government themselves point out, the construction which has been invariably put upon the same words in the Code of Civil Procedure excludes raiyatwari holdings from the operation of section 265 of that Code. The Madras Government suggest that we ought, in order to avoid any contention, to say expressly that raiyatwari holdings are not intended to be included. I should, however, think that any attempt on our part to define immoveable property paying revenue to Government would have precisely the consequence which the Madras Government were seeking to avoid.

"Another proposal made by the Madras Government was that, instead of having a separate Act, the provisions of the Bill might be included in the existing Code of Civil Procedure. This proposal was carefully considered by the members of the Select Committee, and an alternative draft was prepared by my learned friend Mr. Macpherson, embodying, as far as it could be done, the provisions of this Bill in the existing Code of Civil Procedure. It was ultimately, however, decided by the Select Committee that the provisions of this Bill could not be properly incorporated with the Code of Civil Procedure.

The Bill really deals with matters of substance; it affects the ordinary rights of shareholders to a certain extent, and does not therefore fall within the domain of mere procedure. There were other objections too to the proposal of the Government of Madras with which, however, I do not think it is at all necessary to detain Hon'ble Members.

"In conclusion I have only to add that, having regard to the nature of the alterations, which are not of a very material character, the members of the Select Committee do not consider that the Bill requires to be republished, and they accordingly recommend that the Bill should be passed as amended by them."

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, February 4th, 1893.

The unsettled weather, storms and low pressures which characterised the meteorological conditions of last week were succeeded during the present week by high pressures, anticyclonic winds and generally fine and dry weather. Pressure throughout the week was steadily highest over North-Western and Central India, but in Baluchistan and the Indus Valley the barometer rose and fell by considerable amounts showing that conditions were not settled, and at the close of the week a very rapid fall of the barometer commenced in Baluchistan and the Indus Valley accompanied with a shift of wind and snow at Chaman and Quetta, indicating the advance from the westward of a fresh period of unsettled weather. Nearly all the rain which fell occurred along the line of the hills and was connected with the unsettled conditions resulting from the deep depression of the previous week or from local disturbances over the hills. The weather was colder than usual over nearly the whole country, the cold being very severe over Northern and North-Western India. Snow was reported from Rawalpindi on the 29th and the thermometer in the shade fell below freezing point at that station on two or three occasions.
